GENERAL STATEMENT.

Georgetown University consists of the COLLEGE, the SCHOOL OF MEDICINE, the SCHOOL OF LAW and the SCHOOL OF DENTAL SURGERY. The College, however, comprises in itself three distinct departments, viz: The Graduate School, the Undergraduate School, and the Observatories. Each School or Department is under the direction of its own Dean, and each Faculty has the power of legislating on its own affairs, but this power can be exercised only in subordination to the President and Directors of the University, and subject to their approval.

HISTORY.

The foundation of Georgetown College was projected as early as the year 1785, when the Rev. John Carroll, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore, formed the plan and proposed it to his associates.

On November 13. 1786, the Corporation of Roman Catholic Clergymen, in the Chapter held at Whitemarsh, Md., adopted a series of "Resolves Concerning the Institution of a School," in which it ordered that a School should be erected at Georgetown, Md., and directed the sale of a piece of land belonging to the corporation, in order that the proceeds might be applied to the erection of the first building. Rev. Messrs. John Carroll, James Pellenz, Robert Molyneux, John Ashton, and Leonard Neale were appointed Directors.

Shortly afterwards an appeal was issued, entitled "Proposals to Establish an Academy at Georgetown, Potowmack River, Maryland." In this circular it was stated that "Agreeably to the liberal Principle of our Constitution, the Seminary will be open to students of Every Religious Profession." In 1788 the erection of the first building was undertaken; yet 1789 is commonly considered the year of the foundation of the College, as the deed of the original piece of ground was dated January 23rd in that year. Students were not received before 1791. Upon the reorganization of the Society of Jesus in Maryland, in 1805, the Georgetown College, as it had already begun to be called, was transferred to the fathers of that Society, under whose control and direction the University still remains.

An act of Congress, dated March 1, 1815, reads as follows:

"AN ACT

"CONCERNING THE COLLEGE OF GEORGETOWN IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it shall and may be lawful for such persons as now are, or from time to time may be, the President and Directors of the College of Georgetown, within the District of Columbia, to admit any of the students belonging to said College, or other persons meriting academical honors, to any degree in the faculties, arts, sciences, and liberal professions, to which persons are usually admitted in other Colleges or Universities of the United States; and to issue in an appropriate form the diplomas or certificates which may be requisite to testify to the admission to such degree.

"LANGDON CHEEVES,
"Speaker of the House of Representatives.
"JOHN GAILLARD,
"President pro tempore of the Senate.

"Approved March 1, 1815.
JAMES MADISON."

Two years later the power of granting degrees, thus acquired, was first exercised.

On March 30, 1833, the Holy See empowered Georgetown College to confer, in its name, degrees in Philosophy and Theology.

The next step in the development of the College was the erection and equipment of a complete Astronomical Observatory in 1842; and in the following year the formal incorporation of the institution was effected by Congress in the following act:

"AN ACT

"To Incorporate Georgetown College, in the District of Columbia:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there be erected in Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, a college for the instruction of youth in the liberal arts and sciences, the name, style, and title of which shall be, 'The President and Directors of Georgetown College.'

"Sec. 2. And be it enacted, That James Ryder, Thomas Lilly, Samuel Barber, James Curley, and Anthony Rey, be, and they are hereby declared to be, a body politic and corporate with perpetual succession in deed or in law to all intents and purposes whatsoever, by name, style and title of 'The President of Georgetown College,' by which name and title they and their successors shall be competent, at law and in equity, to take to themselves and their successors, for the use of said College, any estate whatsoever, in any messuage, lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, chattels, moneys, and other effects, by gifts, bequests, devise, grant, donations, bargain, sale, conveyance, assurance, or will; and the same to grant, bargain, sell, transfer, assign, convey, assure, devise, declare to use and farm let, and to place out on interest for the use of said College, in such manner as to them, or a majority of them, shall be deemed most beneficial to said institution; and to receive the same, their rents, issues and profits, income and interest, and to apply the same for the proper use and benefit of the said College; and by the same name to sue and be sued, to implead, be impleaded in any courts of law and equity in all manner of suits, actions, and proceedings whatsoever, and generally by and in the same name to do and transact all and every business touching or concerning the premises, Provided, That the same do not exceed the value of $50,000 net annual income, over and above and exclusive of the receipts for the education and support of the students of said College.

"Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the said corporation shall adopt a common seal, under and by which all deeds, diplomas and acts of said College or corporation shall pass and be authenticated, and the same seal, at their pleasure to break and alter, or devise a new one.

"Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That no misnomer of the said corporation shall defeat or annul any donation, gift, grant, devise or bequest to or from the said corporation.

"Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the said corporation shall not employ its fund or income, or any part thereof, in banking operations, or for any purpose or object other than those expressed in the first section of this Act; and that nothing in this Act contained shall be so construed as to prevent Congress from altering, amending, or repealing the same.

"J. W. JONES,
"Speaker of the House of Representatives.
"WILLIE P. MANGUM,
"President pro tempore of the Senate.

"Approved June 10, 1844.

"JOHN TYLER.

"I certify that the above is a true copy from the original act in this department.

"Department of State, November 22. 1844.

"J. C. CALHOUN. Secretary."

The School of Medicine was opened in 1851, and the School of Law in 1870. The Graduate School was in existence as early as 1856, in which year it comprised four resident graduates. The University Hospital was opened in 1898 and the training school for nurses in 1903. In 1901 the first session of the Dental School was held. In 1909 the Seismic Station was erected.

LOCATION AND EXTRINSIC ADVANTAGES.

In its location at the Capital of the nation, Georgetown University enjoys advantages which can hardly be overestimated and which must necessarily increase with the growth of the country. Not only is the city, free as it is from noise, dirt and distracting surroundings of a great commercial center, most favorable to the tranquil and earnest pursuit of study, but it has an unparalleled educational equipment in the great scientific collections and libraries of the Government. By the authority of Congress all such facilities for research and illustration in the Governmental collections are made accessible to the scientific investigators and students of institutions of higher learning in the District of Columbia.

This provision applies to the Library of Congress, the National Museum, the Patent Office, the Bureau of Education, the Bureau of Ethnology, the Army Medical Museum, the Department of Agriculture, the Fish Commission, the Botanical Gardens, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Geological Survey, the Naval Observatory, several hospitals and other departments supplied with special libraries, laboratories and equipment for research. The administration of these bureaus brings together a large corps of scientific workers, and has already made Washington the great scientific as well as political center of the country. One consequence of these conditions is that the scientific societies are numerous and flourishing. Even the presence of the National Government, with its executive, legislative and judicial machinery, is a most powerful agent of education; to be familiar as a matter of daily observation with the workings of the House of Representatives, the Senate, the Supreme Court and the Administration is a privilege and a training which cannot be found elsewhere.

Of all these extrinsic facilities, the various Faculties of Georgetown University make full use, and among her instructors are found not a few of the eminent scholars and scientific men employed in the technical service of the Government.

Her students meet with a cordial reception and careful assistance in their work in the various libraries, museums and scientific bureaus.

To the advantages enumerated above is added the atmosphere of study and research engendered by the presence of the many universities of which Washington is rapidly becoming the seat.

NEEDS OF THE UNIVERSITY.

The ordinary source of income for the University is the fees of the students. During her history she has received donations greater or less in amount, but with all these her present equipment of buildings and educational apparatus has been acquired only by incurring a considerable debt. Even this much could not have been effected, had not the President and Directors, as well as the other Fathers, the Scholastics, and Lay Brothers of the Society of Jesus, given their services to the University without compensation. Under the present administration every effort is being made to diminish this debt. It is hoped that it may be steadily decreased until it is extinguished, so that after that the students' fees may be used entirely to meet the running expenses of the University, and that thus our financial affairs may be put upon a better financial basis.

The more pressing needs of the University are the following:

1. New and more commodious buildings for the Medical and Dental Schools in the immediate vicinity of the College.
2. The extinction of the debt of the Medical School, and the foundation of professional chairs.
3. The extinction of the debt of the Georgetown University Hospital.
4. The foundation of a practical School of Technology to consist at the beginning of at least a School of Civil Engineering, a School of Mechanical Engineering, and a School of Electrical Engineering. This would involve the purchase of ground for the School in the immediate neighborhood of the College, the erection of buildings, the foundation of professorships, and the provision of technological apparatus. Although it is generally known that such a School is not in existence at Georgetown, applications for such instruction are received every year.

5. The erection of a new dormitory building for students of the Law, Medical and Dental Departments.

6. The completion of the Observatory Equipment, and the foundation of a working fund for the Observatory Staff.

7. The foundation of a salary fund for the Physical Director of the Ryan Gymnasium.

8. Funds for the long contemplated and desired removal of the Preparatory School to a place separated from the College.

9. Funds for the completion of the Faculty Building, including a new infirmary for the Faculty and Students. The Faculty now occupy a large part of the present infirmary. On the completion of the Faculty Building with a new infirmary, the present infirmary would be entirely free for the occupation of the students and would be well suited for housing the students of the Junior Section of the Preparatory School until such time as it can be removed to another place.

10. Funds to erect a central heating plant for the College. There are now four independent heat centers. Marked economy would result from such a central heating plant.

All bequests should be made to the "President and Directors of Georgetown College in the District of Columbia."

The College.

Georgetown College constitutes one of the four greater divisions of Georgetown University, viz: The College, the Medical Schools, the Law School and the Dental School. The College, however, comprises within itself three distinct departments, the Graduate School, the Undergraduate School and the Astronomical Observatory.

SITE AND SURROUNDINGS.

Georgetown College is situated on Georgetown Heights, twenty minutes ride from the White House, overlooking the city of Washington and the Potomac River, and commanding one of the noblest views in the world. The site is healthful, and the climate mild.

The College buildings are nine in number: 1. The Infirmary. 2. The Faculty Building. 3. The Ryan Hall. 4 The Maguire Building. 5. The Healey Building. 6. The North Building. 7. The Ryan Gymnasium. 8. The Dahlgren Chapel. 9. The Observatory. They present an aggregate frontage of about twelve hundred feet. They are surrounded by grounds comprising seventy-eight acres, a large part of which is occupied by the "Walks," the woodland scenery of which has made them famous.

ACCOMMODATIONS

There is a large number of private rooms at the disposal of the students, distributed among the following buildings: The Healey Building, Old North Building, Ida M. Ryan Hall, Maguire Building and Mulledy Building. The rooms are all simply furnished, and supplied with heat and light.

None but graduates are allowed to board outside of the collegiate premises, unless with immediate relatives.

In the Healey Building the first, second and third floors are devoted to class-rooms. The College Parlors, the Coleman

Museum, the Philodemic Hall and the Gaston Hall are located in the North Pavilion; the Archive Room, the Hirst Reading Room, and the Riggs Library are in the South Pavilion. The fourth and fifth floors are taken up by the students' rooms of which there are fifty-two, facing east and west.

In the Old North Building the first floor contains the Senior Lecture Room and students' living rooms. The second and third floors are occupied by students' rooms.

The Ida M. Ryan Hall, the splendid gift of Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan, contains the Students' Dining Room and living rooms for students. There are suites of rooms, facing the Potomac, which consist of a study room and two bed rooms opening into a private bath. On each floor there are single rooms, facing east and west, and double rooms facing the Potomac, and facing north and opening on the college quadrangle. The rooms are furnished with desk, chairs, wardrobe, chiffonier, washstand, bed and bedding.

Heat, light and service are supplied for all the students' rooms. The charges for rental of these rooms are given under heading of "Fees and Expenses" on another page.

GENERAL CONSPECTUS OF STUDIES.

The course of studies at Georgetown is carefully and logically graded throughout. The aim of the course is to give the student a complete general and liberal education, which will train and develop all the powers of the mind, and will cultivate no one faculty to an exaggerated degree at the expense of the others. It is intended, too, to impart the broadest possible culture, together with accuracy in scholarship. To attain this end, during the Undergraduate period the course is arranged to train the student in the Arts of Poetry, Literary Criticism and Oratorical Rhetoric, using the Greek and Latin Classics as the basis of instruction together with such of the English Classics as lend themselves to comparative work, the Art of Logic and the Sciences of Rational and Natural Philosophy, to-wit, Metaphysics and Ethics, Mathematics, Mechanics, Physics and Chemistry, giving at the same time the accessory information contained in Geology, the History of Christendom and the History of English literature; and finally adding the accomplishment of one other Modern Language. Hereby it is hoped to develop the faculties of accurate observation and exact expression, logical reasoning and aesthetic taste, of conservative theorizing and imaginative invention, of a sure grasp of the meaning of language, of a power of expression that is creative, convincing and a motive to human action, a familiarity with the canons of classic utterance from the models of antiquity such as will help the students to measure up their own speech and composition to the best of critical taste. All this is supplemented by the foundations of such information and finish as become a youth of nascent culture and Christian manhood.

The exacting and comprehensive nature of this course may fitly form a subject for comment. It is believed that its requirements are seldom equalled. As an indication of the labor demanded for the successful completion of the course, it may be stated that the amount of time spent in class by all the students varies from twenty to twenty-five hours weekly. To prepare for these classes and recitations, obligatory study for about twenty-three hours per week is exacted. Moreover, students who aim at a high standing, spend much time in study in addition to that which is of obligation.

It is presumed that a man of fair capacity who has conscientiously followed this curriculum under capable professors will be possessed of trained and cultivated faculties, and will have a considerable amount of positive knowledge in every department of learning. He will thus be in touch and intelligent sympathy with progress in every field of intellectual activity, and be saved as far as possible from narrowness and superficiality. Such an education serves, it is believed, as the best foundation for special training in any branch which the student, with his mind now mature and disciplined, may decide to take up.

It has been the experience of a century or more at Georgetown that a careful training in the classic languages of Latin and Greek have resulted in the development of the mental faculties of the student. It has yet to be demonstrated that there has been found an adequate substitute of equal educational power. Nay, it has been openly confessed that the omission of the classical languages as a substantial part of a college curriculum has resulted disastrously for liberal education.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION.

One of the most essential necessities for success in educational work is the possession of natural, thorough and effective methods of teaching. It is necessary, too, that these methods should be uniform in spirit throughout the school, employed equally by all teachers under whom the student may come. In this respect Georgetown enjoys peculiar advantages. Her teaching is guided by the principles laid down in the famous Ratio Studiorum. This body of rules and suggestions has been elaborated by centuries of experience, and has been judged worthy of attentive study and hearty approbation by the greatest scholars. It is a noteworthy fact that many of the recently devised methods of teaching, such as the Natural, the Inductive and similar plans, are in reality merely repetitions of the devices recommended long ago in the Ratio Studiorum.

A little careful reflection will justify the traditional training in the liberal arts of grammar, poetics and rhetoric, the sciences of mathematics, mechanics, physics and chemistry, with systematic rational philosophy, as the proper means to accomplish the above development of a student's mental faculties to fullness of adolescent power.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICS.

The Department of Physics occupies the ground and first floors of the Maguire Building. A corridor runs through the center of the first floor dividing it into equal parts. Facing the quadrangle on the north is a spacious lecture room, the rooms on the south side being devoted to work shops. On the ground floor are the cabinet and a well-arranged laboratory for the use of the students.

DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY.

The Chemistry Department is situated on the ground floor of the Healey Building and consists of lecture rooms and laboratories. The lecture rooms are well equipped with all the necessary instruments to demonstrate by experiment the principles given in the lectures. In the laboratories each student is assigned a desk for his individual work; each desk is fitted with drawer and locker and independent drainage and water and gas supply, while all necessary chemicals and apparatus are at hand.

BIOLOGY.

The nucleus of a biological collection exists in the College, consisting of a collection of birds, fishes, shells and plants, together with biological charts and skeletons. At present biology is not a course required by the Bachelor's Degree, but in order to meet the requirements of most of the Medical Schools of the country, a special laboratory has been fitted out offering accommodations for twenty students. The course comprises lectures, recitations and laboratory exercises.

THE COLEMAN MUSEUM.

As early as the year 1840 the collections in Natural History under the care of Fathers James Curley and T. Meredith Jenkins, had become sufficiently extensive to warrant the setting apart of a special room for their preservation and exhibition. Here they remained until 1889, when prior to the Centenary Celebration, they were transferred to their present quarters, in the north pavilion of the main building. To this hall, by decree of the Faculty, was given the name of James V. Coleman, '69, in acknowledgment of his distinguished benefactions to the College. It is a large, well-lighted room, fitted with cases of cherry wood.

The various collections have been rearranged and displayed and a complete catalogue of the Museum prepared.

Particular attention has been given to the mineral collection, which embraces specimens illustrating the entire field of Mineralogy. Besides the exhibition series, numbering about three thousand specimens, there is a working collection carefully determined and arranged in drawers for the convenience of the classes. A feature of this department is the collection of minerals found in the District of Columbia by the late Mr. John W. Langdale, and presented by him to the Museum. The collection contains many species not previously known to exist in this locality. Mr. Langdale also donated several hundred specimens to the general collection, and always placed at the disposal of the Curator his rare skill as a mineralogist.

In Geology and Paleontology, likewise, there are excellent collections, the rocks and fossils, arranged stratigraphically occupying an entire double row of cases. Notable among the latter is the unusual number of specimens of the remains of vertebrates, many collected in Alaska. A special building is needed for the proper display of the articles in the museum, which is now overcrowded.

THE ART AND HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS.

The College possesses a valuable collection of works of art, and a number of Maryland Colonial relics. It has long been the wish of the Faculty to increase these collections and give them the prominence they deserve.

Among the paintings are several works of merit by ancient and modern masters, two mosaic pictures of great beauty and value, several busts in marble or bronze, an admirable portrait of the Founder of the College, Archbishop John Carroll, painted by Gilbert Stuart, and presented by Judge P. Ord. A full length portrait of Mrs. Henry S. Lehr, painted by Muller Ury, adorns the first parlor.

In the room of the Philodemic Society, which has been newly decorated and furnished, is a series of portraits and photographs of distinguished alumni. It is hoped that they will add to this collection from time to time.

George D. Mackey, Esq., of New York, presented forty-five engravings, mezzotints, coppers, photographs, etc., of unusually large size, collected abroad, and embracing signed Dores, Martins, etc.

William Vincent McGrath, Jr., '87, decorated many of the recitation halls with a gallery of forty-two marillo-tints mounted in highly artistic frames.

THE BEAUCHAMP HUGHES ART CABINET.

The Beauchamp Hughes Art Cabinet, with its rare collection of precious laces, pictures, ancient manuscripts, bronzes, china, and bric-brac, is much admired.

THE RIGGS MEMORIAL LIBRARY.

The liberal spirit of the late Mr. E. Francis Riggs, of Washington, has furnished the College collection of books with a fitting home, in the South Pavilion. A tablet erected by the Faculty attests the devotion with which the founder dedicated his gift to the memory of his father, the late Mr. George W. Riggs, and his brother, Mr. Thomas Lauranson, once a student of the College.

The central reading room is lighted from the sides and ceiling, and, since the introduction of electricity, is available at all hours. The alcoves are designed to afford shelf-room for 104,000 volumes, and are furnished with comfortable appliances for study and consultation.

The collection of books is estimated at more than 100,000. Among these are many rare, curious and unique works. One hundred volumes printed between the years 1472 and 1520; three manuscripts anterior to the fifteenth century, and others of later periods, together with a number of fac-similes, such as the Duke de Loubat's splendid reproductions in photochromography of Ancient Aztec MSS., interest the visitor.

In the department of Fine Arts, the taste and liberality of the Rev. James J. Chittick, of Hyde Park, Mass., are building up a notable collection of books embracing galleries of paintings, histories and treatises dealing with art and biographies of the great masters.

It will afford librarians and bibliophiles particular pleasure to find in the Riggs, illustrations of many nice points of their specialty in editions, bindings, bookplates, etc. Among the libraries incorporated in it is that of the historian, John Gilmary Shea, LL. D., which is valuable for American and Indian languages.

THE RIGGS MEMORIAL LIBRARY EXTENSION.

The accumulation of books in recent years and the prospective growth of the Library made additional space necessary. Accordingly the late Mr. E. Francis Riggs continued his generosity of the past by the creation of a stack in the large hall, sixty by forty feet, situated beneath the main Library. This is calculated to hold seventy thousand volumes. The floor of the new room was strengthened and rendered fireproof by means of reinforced concrete, and a stack of steel and glass with numerous electric lights installed. An ornamental staircase communicates with the Library above.

In this extension are placed the collection of Dr. John Gilmary Shea, rich in Americana, ecclesiastical chronicles and Indian languages, the entire division of History, and what will prove of deep interest, collections pertaining to the history of Georgetown University and the scientific and literary products of its professors and scholars. Moreover it furnishes material, conveniences and facilities to visiting authors and writers to whom a cordial welcome for consultation and research is always extended; in fact, no better extension could have been contrived as a magnified study for those who wish to delve among the historical treasures of the Library.

THE MORGAN MARYLAND COLONIAL HISTORY ENDOWMENT.

LIBRARIAN: REV. EDWARD I. DEVITT, S. J.

Through the generosity of James Ethelbert Morgan, there has been established a fund for the prosecution of research in Maryland Colonial history and the history of the District of Columbia. The ground floor of the library building is entirely devoted to this work. It contains an archive room which is as strictly fireproof and strong as engineering skill could devise and is large enough to contain the documents of centuries to come. Its present value in authentic papers is incalculable. Old Maryland families who wish to safeguard for future generations their family papers and documents, find our archive room an appropriate and safe place of deposit. Besides the archive room, is an excellent Maryland Colonial Library which is being continually enlarged from the original productive fund and by gifts from those interested in the history of Maryland and the District of Columbia. This room also contains facilities for study and examination of papers and documents.

THE HIRST LIBRARY.

The students of the senior division owe a debt of gratitude to Anthony A. Hirst, LL. D., of Philadelphia. He has had erected the bookstack of oak and iron in the hall of the south pavilion which serves them as their library. This contains about 6,000 volumes selected with the view of furnishing the student with the means of reference as well as entertainment. Combined with it is the reading room in which newspapers from the chief cities of the country, together with the leading reviews and magazines, are kept on file. Both are open to graduate and undergraduate students, subject to a fee, necessary to defray ordinary expenses.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline in force at Georgetown is paternal. It has in view the safeguarding of those hours of study so necessary to prepare for attendance at class, and the punctual and regular attendance at the various College exercises, which is required to produce that intellectual and moral training which it is Georgetown's aim to impart.

To safeguard their punctual and regular attendance at class and other College exercises hour by hour from the very beginning to the very end of the year is a more difficult matter, but one of the utmost importance. What is learned from the living voice of the teacher is acquired more thoroughly and more completely. The friction of mind with mind in the class room, the work of emulation and work in concert, the proposal of difficult points not explained by the text book and their solution, the repetition in public of the whole lesson are some of the more important agencies at work during the hour of class, which can not be well supplied out of class, and so an hour of class lost is a distinct and in some sense an irreparable loss. And it is not only a loss of mental training, it is a serious menace to the regularity of College discipline. The absence of one suggests, perhaps encourages, the absence of another, and so gradually a noticeable absenteeism arises which enervates regular attendance and discourages the teacher in his efforts to impart knowledge to his whole class. Hence it is that leave of absence from College during term time will never be granted except for the most imperative reasons, on the written request of the parent or guardian with the endorsement of the prefect of studies and the prefect of discipline and at the sole discretion of the President. Parents are earnestly requested to co-operate with us in our work of maintaining regular attendance at class from the very first hour to the very last hour of the year. Hence they are not expected to request that their sons should be exempted from class when they come to visit Washington, nor are they supposed to ask that their sons may go to their homes during term time, except for the most imperative reasons, as mentioned above. There is a special reason why parents should not request that their sons should be absent over Sunday. It is that on Sunday morning the formal religious influence of the college is exerted by means of sermons and sodalities. They are requested to see that their sons return promptly at the beginning of the term, and to insist that they remain to the very end. Should they act otherwise a painful situation is created for the President of the University. His duty to Georgetown requires him to not accede to the request that has been made, and yet this makes him seem to antagonize the parent before his son, and this tends to belittle the parent's authority in his son's eyes. The regulations which have been made for the conduct of athletic sports have only in view the purpose of safeguarding the hours of study and of the hours of class from interruption. It is thought that a student who passes through the discipline above outlined will graduate from Georgetown an educated gentleman disciplined in mind and heart for the business of life.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

Religious instruction is considered of the first importance in education, but students not of the Catholic faith are exempt from the instruction given at the College.

Christian Doctrine is one of the regular class recitations, lectures being given in each class. The matter is so divided for the different classes that in the four years of college the student will cover the whole ground of Catholic faith in rational fashion. In addition a weekly instruction of one-half hour is given all the college students together along some line of Christian Morals, so arranged as to give the student a clear understanding of the same before he graduates. A Gold Medal is awarded at the end of the year to the author of the best paper on the matter of these lectures.

Further instruction is given to such as have need of it, or are preparing for the Sacraments. For the development of piety there is a Sodality which meets weekly, and a Georgetown center of the Apostleship of Prayer; while for the promotion of practical charity there is a College Conference of St. Vincent de Paul. All Catholic students are expected to approach the Sacraments at least once a month.

THE CHAPEL OF THE SACRED HEART.

In the College Quadrangle stands the Chapel of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, measuring 109 feet in extreme length, and varying in breadth from 40 to 60 feet. This structure is the generous gift of the wife of an alumnus, Mrs. John Vinton Dahlgren (Mrs. Henry Symes Lehr), nee Elizabeth Drexel. The Chapel was consecrated on Friday, June 9, 1893. Its seating capacity is about 500. The College thus possesses a beautiful edifice, wherein the services of the Church may be performed with fitting solemnity and dignity.

SESSIONS AND HOLIDAYS.

The Academic Year is divided into two terms:

The first term in 1913-1914, will begin September 11, 1913, and will end January 31, 1914.

The Christmas recess begins on December 22nd (11.00 A. M.), and ends on January 3rd (6.00 P. M.). The Easter recess extends from Wednesday, in Holy Week, to the Wednesday after Easter.

There is no class on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons, nor on days of general religious or National observance.

The classes begin at 9 A. M. and continue until 12. They are resumed at 1 and continue until 3 P. M., with intermission between classes.

EXAMINATIONS AND PROMOTIONS.

A general examination in all classes is held in writing toward the close of each term. Supplementary oral examinations are also exacted.

Promotions ordinarily take place at the beginning of the first term. They will rarely be made at any other time.

AWARDS AND REPORTS.

The prizes, at the Annual Distribution in June, are awarded to those who, by their class exercises during the year and the excellence of their examinations, attain the required number of marks. Absentees are not allowed to make up marks for honors. Students, therefore, who remain at home beyond the period allotted for vacation or recess cannot expect to hold distinguished places in their classes, and students who withdraw before the final examinations will not be promoted.

Besides the Annual Distribution of Awards in the Undergraduate School, the Faculty and students are assembled at the beginning of every month, when the marks and standing of the students in their respective classes for the preceding month are publicly proclaimed, and testimonials awarded to those who have attained the prescribed degree of excellence.

Four reports of the standing in class, the progress and general conduct of every student are sent to his parents or guardian every year, to wit: at the end of November, after the mid-year examinations, at the end of April and after the final examinations in June.

A notification of failure will be sent at the end of each month to the parents of those students who are not doing passing work in any subject.

Students holding scholarships must maintain in all classes an average of seventy per cent.

PRIZES OPEN FOR GENERAL COMPETITION.

ACADEMIC COSTUME.

The University cap and gown are worn by the Senior Class of the College, and on the more solemn academic occasions their use is obligatory. All graduates of the University are entitled to wear the complete academic costume, consisting of gown, cap and hood. All members of the Faculty who hold a degree from another institution of learning may wear the hood proper to the corresponding degree of this University.

It is hoped that at all commencements and other gatherings of an academic character this right will be exercised by those possessed of it.

The hood indicates in every case the wearer's degree. The Bachelor's hood is ten inches shorter than the Master's, while the Doctor's hood, of the same length as the Master's, is attached to a panel of the same material as that of the hood itself. The department in which the degree was taken is pointed out by the color of the edging, white designating Arts and Sciences; blue, Philosophy; purple, Law; green, Medicine; scarlet, Theology, etc. The interior of the hood is lined with the College colors, blue and gray, in silk.

In the foregoing and all other particulars, the hood adopted by Georgetown follows the intercollegiate agreement.

GRADUATE SCHOOLS.

The first record of graduate students in residence is found in the catalogue of 1855-6. In that year there were four such students. The catalogue of this year thus describes the course that was pursued: "Students who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course may in a second year apply to Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics will embrace the fundamental principles of Civil, Political and International Right, and a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the study of Natural History."

In the year 1905-6 all scholarships in the Graduate School were withdrawn. In the year 1906-7 a rule was adopted that only graduates of colleges whose requirements for the A. B. are substantially the same as those of Georgetown would be received and that graduate students in residence should be subject to the general regulations of undergraduate resident students. Under these conditions, there have been very few suitable candidates for the Graduate School. It is obvious that courses cannot be provided and professors supplied unless an adequate number of students matriculate. Hence for the year 1913-14 the following general regulation will be in force: Graduate students desiring to matriculate in the Georgetown University Graduate School must signify their intention to the Prefect of Studies before July 1, 1913.

On August 1, 1913, should the number of those who desire to matriculate warrant it, announcement of the courses to be offered in the Graduate School for 1913-14 will be made to those who have made application to the Prefect of Studies.

The Observatory

REV. JOHN T. HEDRICK, S J., Director.

The Observatory stands on an eminence at a distance of about four hundred yards from the College. The main building is sixty feet long and thirty feet wide, and is divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a nine-inch photographic transit instrument, with collimators, by Saegmuller, of Washington. In the Western room is mounted a transit instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long and has a four-and-one-half-inch object-glass. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, surmounted by a rotary dome eighteen feet in diameter. Here is erected the twelve-inch equatorial.

In the room below the dome is the library containing the observations and other publications of nearly all the observatories in the world.

Under the library is the clock room, with four pendulum clocks and two chronometers, chronograph, and a switchboard from which the electrical connections with all the instruments are made. A special line connects the switchboard with the Western Union telegraph service.

All the instruments and rooms are furnished with electric light. The electrical apparatus of the observatory is worked by a storage battery which is charged from the same current by means of a dynamo and transformer. This new plant was set up in the basement of the observatory by Rev. Richard Martin, S. J.

A separate dome, twelve feet in diameter, on the southwest brow of the hill, shelters the old equatorial, by Trouton & Simms, which has an aperture of nearly five inches.

An extension added to the eastern side of the main building contains an instrument for the determination of the variations of latitude; the photographic zenith telescope.

The observations of the year have been directed principally toward the determination of the period of variable stars.

Acknowledgments.

The annual publications of the observatories of the world have been received as in former years. Among these the international astrographic charts form the most valuable part. The warmest thanks of the Observatory are tendered to all benefactors and donors.

The Seismological Observatory.

REV FRANCIS A. TONDORF, S. J., Director.

The Seismological Observatory, originally founded through the generosity of Mr. Patrick H. O'Donnell, A. B. '92, A. M. '93, LL. B. '94 has been further equipped through the continued kindnesses of the friends of the University. A new cave has been located beneath the quadrangle, measuring 12 ft. four in. width, 30 ft. 10 in. length, and 11 ft. height. Care has been taken to make this home of the new instruments both heat and damp proof. The present equipment consists of two astatic horizontal seismographs after Wicehert, carrying stationary masses of 80 and 200 kilos, also a vertical seismograph of the same type of 80 kilos mass. The latest additions are two Bosch-Omori pendulums of 25 kilos mass each and two conical pendulums, after Dr. Mainka, of 130 kilos mass each. A concrete building, situated on observatory hill, shelters a Bosch-Omori photographic instrument carrying a stationary mass of 200 grams. The time is automatically registered on these instruments by four contact clocks noting minutes and hours. The observatory is in telegraphic communication with other seismic stations of importance as also with the press agencies. The Director, while expressing his warmest thanks to all benefactors and especially to Messers P. H. O'Donnell, A. B. '92, Harry Brown, '11, Peter Mallon, ex-'13, John O'Brien, of Philadelphia and Henry Boyle, of Fond du Lac, Wis., would indicate the necessity of the endowment of a fund to cover the running expenses of the plant.

Organizations.

Sodality of Our Lady Immaculate.

This Sodality is composed of Catholic students, mainly of the Undergraduate School. It is the oldest Sodality of the Blessed Virgin in this country, having been organized in 1810. Its object is the cultivation of a religious spirit among its members and the practice of devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Conference of St. Vincent De Paul.

A conference of this society was organized among the students in the year 1889-'90 under the title of the Conference of St. Francis de Sales, of Georgetown College, and on the 25th of January, 1892, it was formerly aggregated to the Society as an Aspirant Conference. Its purpose is primarily not only the actual relief of the poor in the neighborhood of the College, but also the training of its members in the spirit and methods of this admirable organization.

St. John Berchmans' Society.

This Society is of long standing in the College. It has for its object the fostering of an especial devotion in assisting at the altar in all religious ceremonies. Membership is restricted to students of the Undergraduate classes.

The Dramatic Association.

DIRECTOR—LEO A. DORE, S. J.

Dramatics, both in theory and in practice, have ever figured as a factor of considerable importance in Jesuit college life. Realizing fully the educational value of the art histrionic, the pioneer members of the historic Jesuit order from the very start accorded the drama, as an adjunct to oratory and public speaking, a foremost position in their time-honored curriculum known as the "Ratio Studorium." This original stand has been carefully maintained in the traditions of the order and for over three hundred and fifty years students of Jesuit colleges have been presenting their various plays with unfailing regularity.

The rehearsals are held in Gaston Hall and the performances take place at one of the Washington theatres.

ATHLETICS.

The position of Georgetown on the question of Athletic Sports among our students is that they are a legitimate source of recreation, of healthful exercise, of generous rivalry and a manly spirit, in a word that they are a useful means for the physical and moral development of the students. The College therefore, has put within reach of students whatever will make for these purposes, and has set such restrictions as will prevent, as far as may be, the abuse of college sport to the detriment of scholarship, manliness, and gentlemanly courtesy. Our idea of intercollegiate competition in the field of sport is to bring such contests as closely as possible to the model of one gentleman playing with another for a gentleman's recreation. In pursuit of this ideal, the authorities of the University have moved steadily toward the elimination of excess, brutality, commercialism and ungenerous rivalry in an overweening desire to win.

The practical system of athletics in vogue at Georgetown is wholly under the management of the students subject to the supervision of the Faculty Director of Athletics. They have been organized for this purpose into the Georgetown University Athletic Association, incorporated according to the laws of the District of Columbia.

The functions of the Faculty Director of Athletics have been defined by the President of the University as follows:

"His duty shall be solely to prevent abuses that may arise in the student conduct or athletic affairs. It shall be his duty to make sure that none but bona fide students take part in athletic sports; that no favoritism is exercised in the selection of the various teams; that the financial officers of the associations give adequate bonds for the proper handling of the funds committed to their charge; that the Constitution of the Athletic Association is faithfully carried out and that annual financial statements of receipts and expenditures are published through the proper channels.

"The Faculty Director of Athletics will have no direct relations with the members of the various teams. In all his duties he will deal directly with the officials of the Athletic Association, for example, in regard to questions of eligibility, selections of members of the various teams, etc."

The following concrete rulings have been given by the President of the University to prevent the undue encroachment of athletics upon study:

I. ELIGIBILITY.

Faculty Rule of Eligibility.

No one is eligible as a candidate for any athletic team, who is not in good standing as a bona fide student of the University. The sole judge as to whether a man is such a bona fide student or not is the Faculty Director of Athletics. The President's concept of a bona fide student is of one who comes to the University primarily to acquire its intellectual training and engages in sport solely for sport's sake, to relax the mind and improve the body, and to fit both alike for more strenuous and prolonged mental effort. One, therefore, whose primary object in coming to Georgetown is to study, and who only engages in athletics when they are not detrimental to study, and only to relax his mind and improve his body, is a bona fide student. Hence one who has been induced to come to Georgetown by some compensation of pecuniary value, in order that he may engage in athletics, is not a bona fide student. One who engages in athletics in spite of the written disapprobation of his professor or professors is not a bona fide student. One whose athletic work unfits his mind and body for mental work is not a bona fide student.

In each and every case the Faculty Director ought to weigh all the circumstances carefully and decide whether a man is a bona fide student or not, according to his best judgment, without fear or favor, having in view only the keeping far from Georgetown even the suspicion of commercialism and professionalism.

A man before being accepted as a candidate for any team must file with the manager written evidence of his good standing in his department; this is to be presented to the Faculty Director. He in turn is to endorse or reject the statement and return it to the manager not later than forty-eight hours before any contest in which it is desired to have the man compete.

When a man has been declared eligible according to the Faculty rule, 'he may be made amenable to any other rules not in conflict with the above, which the Athletic Association may choose to formulate.'

II. Out of Town Games.

1. The schedule arranged for each of the departments known as Foot Ball, Field and Track, Rowing and Basket Ball must not involve absence from Washington for more than two days on which classes are usually held, and the contests must take place on Saturdays or on National or State Holidays.

The schedule arranged for Base Ball must not involve absence from Washington for more than four days on which classes are usually held, and the games must be played either on Saturdays or on National or State Holidays.

2. The Foot Ball, Base Ball, Basket Ball and Relay Teams, and also the Crew, shall have contests only with other University, College, or Academic teams or crews, and the track contestants only at intercollegiate or interscholastic meetings.

3. In all matters pertaining to Faculty control the various managers must deal with the Faculty Director of Athletics.

4. All regulations contained under the heading Athletics, pp. 76-82 of the General Catalogue of 1905-1906, not in conflict with the preceding regulations, are to remain in full force for 1912-1913.

III. THE TRAINING TABLE at the College has been abolished. A training table outside the College has been found inexpedient.

In addition to the Departments of sport managed by the Athletic Association, there is a Billiard Association and a Lawn Tennis Association under student control.

Since the construction of the Ryan Gymnasium a competent Physical Director has been provided by the College. He superintends the physical drill and gymnastic exercise of the students, subjects each of those who wish to make use of the gymnasium to a physical examination and prescribes for each that kind and amount of gymnastic exercise which is necessary to his health and general physical development. A fee of ten dollars is imposed upon all the college students for the use of the gymnasium; students from other departments of the University are also admitted to the use of the gymnasium on payment of the same fee. In this connection the President of the University has issued the following ruling:

"No one is to use the floor of the gymnasium or the apparatus installed thereon or the professional services of the Physical Director, who has not paid the gymnasium fee. Certified candidates for the Crew, Nine, Eleven and Track Team may use the Varsity Rubbing Room, Locker Room and Showers; candidates for the Crew, properly certified, may have use of the Rowing Room."

The Faculty Director of Athletics at the University is Rev. James M. Kilroy, S. J.

The Officers of the Athletic Association for 1912-1913 are:

John A. Langan, '13	President
Charles F. Lavelle, '13	Secretary
John C. Moriarty, '13	Treasurer
Raymond W. Loichot, '13	Manager of Football
Edmund E. Barrett, '15	Assistant Manager of Football
Edwin E. Darr, '13	Manager of Track
Hugh Carter, '14	Assistant Manager of Track.
Thos D. Harrington, '13	Manager of Baseball
Ronayne M. Waldron, '14	Assistant Manager of Baseball.
James C. Madigan, '13	Manager of Basketball.
John F. Conroy, Jr., '15	Assistant Manager of Basketball.

The Alumni Advisory board for the year 1912-1913 is composed of the following members of the Alumni:

Charles J. Roache, '95	Track
James A. O'Shea, '99	Baseball
Claude R. Zappone	Crew

The Executive Committee is made up of the Board of Officers together with a representative of the students in the Law School. The Board of Officers is likewise the Board of Directors of the Corporation.

The College.

COURSE OF STUDIES.

The courses outlined below are all prescribed courses with the exception of the topics enumerated under the heading "ELECTIVES" for Senior and Junior year, one only of which is prescribed, and the Modern Language prescribed for Freshman year, which may be, at option, either, French, German or Spanish.

Senior Year.

PHILOSOPHY.

COURSE 1.—PSYCHOLOGY. (Five hours a week for the first term.)

Lectures, repetitions and circles. Text book, Russo, Summa Philosophica. References: Jouin, S. J., Compendium Logicae et Metaphysicae,—Maher, S. J., Psychology (Stonyhurst Series).

Life in general. Sensitive Life. Outer and inner senses. The Human Soul. Its nature: simple, spiritual. Unity of the Soul. Its Origin. Immortality. Evolution. Human Intelligence. Origin of Ideas. The Will. Liberty of the Will, etc.

COURSE 2.—NATURAL THEOLOGY: (Five hours a week for one term).

Lectures, repetitions and circles. Text-book, Russo, Summa Philosophica. References: Jouin, S. J., Compendium Logicae et Metaphysicae,—Boedder, S. J., Natural Theology (Stonyhurst Series).

Proofs of the existence of God. His essence. Examination of Pantheistic systems. The divine immutability, immensity, eternity. The divine intellect and will. Moral attributes of God. His Omnipotence. Divine Providence.

COURSE 3.—ETHICS: (Five hours a week for two terms).

Text-book, Cathrein, Elementa Philosophiae Moralis.

References: Russo, De Philosophia Morali Praelectiones,—Rickaby, S. J., Moral Philosophy (Stonyhurst Series), Poland, S. J., Fundamental Ethics,—Coppens, S. J., Moral Philosophy.

(a) General Ethics. The moral agent. The moral act. Ultimate end of man. Hedonism and Utilitarianism. End of present stage of existence. Moral evil and moral good. Norm of morality. Merit and demerit. Natural Law. Its existence, properties, sanction. Kant's categorical imperative. Positive Law. Conscience. Its binding power. Rights of man.

(b) Special Ethics. Individual rights and duties. Necessity of religion. Suicide. Charity and Justice. Freedom of Conscience. Right of self-defense. Ownership. Socialism. Society in general. The family. Marriage. Emancipation of women. Parental right. Slavery. The State. Origin of the State. Hobbes, Rosseau. Constitution of the State. Church and State. The School Question. Liberty of the Press, etc.

EVIDENCES OF RELIGION: (Two hours a week for two full terms).

Text-book, Wilmer, Handbook of the Christian Religion. Lectures in review of the whole ground covered in the three preceding years.

GEOLOGY: (Three hours a week for one full term).

Text-book, Le Conte, Compend. of Geology. Lectures on Dynamical, Structural and Historical Geology.

ASTRONOMY: (Three hours a week for one full term).

Celestial Mechanics, Descriptive Astronomy, Application of the General Principles of Trigonometry, Astronomical Instruments, Observations.

ELOCUTION: (One half-hour a week for two full terms).

The course consists of speaking before the upper classes in Gaston Hall with mutual criticism as well as instruction and correction by a presiding Instructor. Public work in annual contest and in productions of Dramatic Society.

Elective Studies for Senior.

Three hours a week for two full terms must be devoted to one or more of the following subjects.

Classes will be organized for each of these subjects if the number of students is sufficient.

I. BIOLOGY: (Three hours a week for one term.)

(a) Micrometry. Sectioning. Mounting. Media and Re-agents.

(b) Structure of living beings. Morphology. Functions of living beings. Physiology. Organs, tissues, cells. Morphology of the cell. Protoplasm. "Vital force"—the soul. Cytogenesis. Differentiation of tissues. Nutrition. Reproduction. Alternation of generations. Spontaneous generation. (Facts, conclusions). The Origin of Species.

(c) Laboratory work on plants and animals.

II. JURISPRUDENCE: (Three hours a week for both terms.)

Law in General.—The Right of Private Property.—Estates in Real Property.—Real Estates in Real Property.—Personal Estates in Real Property.—Time of Enjoyment of Estates in Real Property.—Title to Estates in Real Property.—Estates in Personal Property.—Title by Gift.—Title by Contract.—Agency.—Partnership.

Second Term:

Private Wrongs.—Proceedings in an Action at Law.—Evidence.—Equitable Remedies.—Crimes.—Degrees of Crime.—Relation of Criminal Actor to Criminal Act.—Criminal Procedure.—Nature and Function of a State.—Subjects and their Relations to the State.

III. EXPERIMENTAL PHYSICS: (Three hours a week.) Laboratory work.

This course is intended for those who wish to extend their knowledge of Physics and particularly of experimental methods, and is arranged with a view to meeting the requirements of medical and technical schools. The course is based on Ames and Bliss' Laboratory Manual and comprises quantitative work in mechanics, heat, sound, light and electricity. Particular stress is laid on accuracy in observation and in the proper reduction of experimental data.

IV. ORGANIC CHEMISTRY: (Three hours a week.)

This course is arranged chiefly for those who intend to take up the study of medicine after they have finished their college course. In it the student is given an opportunity of reviewing his inorganic chemistry and of acquiring such a knowledge of elementary organic chemistry as is now required for admission by several medical schools. Characteristics of chemical changes. Gravimetric and chemical equivalents. Atomic weights and molecular weights. Solutions. Ionic theory. Chemical equilibrium. Periodic law. Photo-chemistry.

LABORATORY WORK: Experimental determination of chemical equivalents, employing both the volumetric and gravimetric methods. Determination of vapor densities according to the methods of Dumas and Victor Meyer. Determination of formulas of simple salts. Experiments in acidimetry and alkalimetry.

V. DRAMATIC LITERATURE: (Two terms a week for two terms.)

This course will consist of a practical examination, from an historical and literary viewpoint, of the Dramatic Art. To supplement the theory and history of the Drama, readings will be made from typical plays, together with analysis and critique of the various schools of dramatists. The following topics will be examined in detail:

The mimetic instinct—earliest manifestations in nations and individuals. Development of this instinct, terminating in the Drama. The Drama as a Fine Art. Brunetière's "Law of the Drama." Analysis of this principle and some of its consequences. The laws of structure and technique.

The progress of the Drama, through its differentiations to the decline and degradation of the art during later years of the Roman Empire. The Code of Theodosius and its theatrical legislations. The fall of the theatres.

The "Dark Ages" of the Drama. Relics of the Art in Europe. The renaissance of legitimate Drama in England.

The five causes.
1. The didactic efforts of the clergy.
2. Mediaeval philosophy.
3. Revival of ancient learning.
4. Influence of national feeling.
5. Influence of Continental literature.

The passion plays, the mysteries, the miracles, the moralities, and the interludes.

The artistic age of English drama. The Elizabethan Age and the Elizabethans. Application of Brunetière's "Law of the Drama." Shakespeare and his works.

A critical examination of Shakespeare's treatment of vital moral questions as compared with that of some modern dramatists, such as Ibsen, Shaw, etc. Readings from selected plays of other modern dramatists The question of the American Drama.

Freshman Year.

POETRY.

Literae Humaniores–the Humanities–are pre-eminently the scope of Freshman year, and to them, as to an end, the studies of the class are chiefly directed. The Latin, Greek and English classics are therfore prescribed in parallel courses, ample material being thus provided for illustration and comparative study. The authors selected are studied, not merely from a philological or grammatical viewpoint, but rather for their own sake as furnishing striking examples of literary excellence.

I. LATIN: (Seven hours a week.)

Authors:

I Term: Cicero "Pro Archia" is carefully read at the outset to emphasize the value of humanistic studies and their influence on man.

Horace "Ars Poetica" is next mastered for its valuable canons on Art, and on Literature in particular.

Virgil "Aeneid" Bk. 2, 6 or 9 furnishes a practical illustration of Epic Poetry.

Livy, Bk. XXI, chapters 1-20 . . . is read somewhat more rapidly than Cicero, while chapters 21-35 are read at sight.

II Term: Cicero "De Signis" Second Philippic, or "Pro Marcello" continues the work of first term and accustoms the student to the fundamentals of rhetorical analysis.

Horace. Odes. . . . Bks. I.-IV . . . furnishes classical examples of the best Lyric Poetry, besides presenting a vivid commentary on Roman life and customs.

Livy, Bk. 21, ch. 35 to end, furnishes further sight reading, and completes the history of Hannibal's passage of the Alps during the second Punic war.

Composition . . . . (both terms) . . Principles of Latin style. Written exercises twice a week, in imitation of Cicero.

Latin Prosody and Versification with special reference to Latin elegiac and Lyric metres.

II. GREEK: (Four and a half hours a week.)

The authors in this department have been selected as being typical of Grecian genius and the reading of the texts is accompanied with lectures and critiques bearing on the periods treated by the writers.

I Term: Plato . . . The Apology

Homer . . . Odyssey . . .

Herodotus . . Optional sight reading.

II Term: . . .Demosthenes. . . . Olynthiacs, with a study of the life and political activities of the orator.

Euripides . . . Hecuba, with lectures on the spirit and structure of ancient Greek Tragedy.

Grammar;—Review of Greek moods and the syntax of the dependent sentence. A few simple rules of Prosody.

The most general laws of versification for the better understanding of the hexameter verse of Homer and the iambic verse of the tragedians.

Composition:—Written exercises once a week, in imitation of Plato and Demosthenes.

III. ENGLISH: (Three hours a week.)

The work of the High School classes may be supposed to have grounded the student in the fundamentals of practical English. In Freshman it is further required that in addition to the study of composition both in prose and verse, the recognized principles of literary criticism be given for their own sake. Therefore, Freshman English falls into two natural divisions, the one theoretical and the other practical.

(a) The theoretical part embraces lectures on:

The definition of Literature; characteristic qualities of the art; position of Literature among the other Fine Arts; the four elements of Literature—Emotion, Imagination, Thought and Form; discussion of each element; the finer points of Style, including connotation, economy, suggestion, and the laws governing narration, description and exposition.

The division of Literature into Prose and Poetry; the nature and province of Prose.

The nature and province of Poetry; the emotional element in Poetry; the function of the imagination; the intellectual element, and points of form.

An examination of Epic, Lyric and Dramatic Poetry.

A definition of Poetry will be constructed after a comparative study of the classical definitions of Aristotle, Sidney, Shelley, etc.

(b) The practical part:

1. In prose, looks chiefly to the formation of a correct style; clearness, force and elegance; variety of expression, orderly and logical development of thought. Exercises in Exposition; the Chria. Prose rhythm and the movement of sentences.

In Poetry it embraces the general laws of versification, including the standard forms of verse, as the ode, the sonnet, the Spencerian stanza, etc. The French forms are also examined–the Triolet, the Rondeau, etc.

Text-book, "Introduction to English Rhetoric," Coppens.

2. Authors: Prose—Newman, Ruskin, De Quincey, Hawthorne, Arnold (Brewster's Studies in Structure and Style, Minto's "English Prose.") Poetry—Selections from Shelley, Wordsworth, Keats, Tennyson (Palgrave's Golden Treasury), Milton: Paradise Lost, I, II, with selected readings from remaining books. Shakespeare, Julius Cæsar, Mid-summer Night's Dream, As You Like It, for home reading.
3. Composition: One Composition in prose or verse to be done each week outside of class. The nature of this composition work will be in keeping with the scope of the class work as outlined in the precepts given above.
4. History of English Literature, from the death of Elizabeth to the Victorian Period. (Brooke's English Literature, cc. V-X.)

HISTORY: (Two hours a week.)

Text-book, Guggenberger's General History of the Christian Era, Vol. 1. Introduction to the History of the Era.

1. The Migration of the Nations. First Teutonic Invasions and Settlements. The Invaders of Italy. The Islam. The Franks, the Lombards and the Holy See. The Church and the State.
2. The Rise of the Empire. The Carolingians. The Northmen in Europe. The Making of Germany and the Rise of the Empire. The Exodus of the Normans. The contest about Lay-Investiture. The Greek Empire and the Schism.
3. The Crusades, the Rise of the Papacy. From the First Crusade to the Third Crusade. From the Third Crusade to the Invasion of the Mongols, The Last Crusades—from the Invasion of the Mongols to the Death of Boniface VIII.

EVIDENCES OF RELIGION: (One hour and a half a week, supplemented by a half hour lecture.)

Text-book, Wilmer's Hand-book of the Christian Religion.

First Term: The Creation. The Spiritual world. The Material world. Man and the Fall. God the Redeemer. The Person and Nature of the Redeemer. The work of the Redemption.

Second Term: Grace: Actual, Habitual, and Sanctifying. The Sacraments in general. Baptism. Confirmation. The Holy Eucharist. The sacrifice of the Mass. These courses are supplemented by a weekly half-hour lecture on the Catholic Faith.

MATHEMATICS: (Four hours a week.)

First Term: Plane Trigonometry, with application to Surveying. Text-book, Wentworth.

Second Term: Analytical Geometry. Text-book, Wentworth.

ELOCUTION: The Practice and Criticism of Public Speaking. Practical work in connection with Dramatic Society.

MODERN LANGUAGE: Advanced course in French, German or Spanish.

FRENCH: Authors:

First Term: Chateaubriand, "Le Dernier des Abencerages," or "Atala"; Moliere, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," or "L'Avare."

Second Term: Corneille, "Le Cid," or Polyeucte." Composition. Exercises based on the author read in class.

GERMAN:

Authors:

First Term: Jensen, "Die Braune Erica."

Second Term: Goethe, "Hermann und Dorothea," or Schiller, "Wilhelm Tell."

SPANISH: Selection from classical authors. Conversation. Composition.

Degrees.

The successful completion of the Undergraduate Course entitles a student to the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Requirements For Admission.

Students may enter at the opening of either session, and, on examination, will be assigned to the class for which their prior attainments have fitted them.

A certificate of honorable dismissal will be required of those who come from other institutions.

Candidates for admission to the advanced classes must pass a satisfactory examination upon all the subjects previously studied by the class which they propose to enter.

From certain preparatory schools, high schools, of established reputation, students are admitted to the Freshman class without examination, upon the principal's certificate that they have completed the required amount of work and are prepared to enter the college.

In each case, however, a catalogue giving the course of studies required in his school must accompany the principal's certificate. The Georgetown College Preparatory School Catalogue may be had on application to the Prefect of Studies.

In all other cases for admission to Freshman, a successful examination is required in the following subjects.

LATIN.—Grammar.—The entire Latin Grammar, including a knowledge of all regular syntactical constructions. Translation into Latin at sight of complex English sentences, entailing the application of rules for relative clauses, indirect discourse, and conditional sentences.

PROSODY.—All the rules as given in Casserly's Prosody or some equivalent work; application to hexameter verse; scansion of Ovid and Virgil. A simple exercise will be exacted in the rearrangement of broken verse.

Latin Composition.—Translation into Latin of easy continuous prose based upon Cæsar and Cicero. This requirement is of very especial importance, and great weight will be given to it in the examination. The use of Cicero's letters as well as his orations as models for the requirements of Latin idiom is strongly recommended.

Nepos.—Lives, to the end of the life of Alcibiades; also the life of Atticus. Cæsar.—Commentaries, two books.

Ovid.—Metamorphoses, 500 lines; Tristia, 500 lines.

Cicero.—Selected letters, five hundred lines; orations; the four against Catiline. Virgil—Aeneid, three books.

GREEK.—Grammar.—Etymology complete (including all the irregular and defective forms); the rules for accents; the rules of syntax and their application; the Homeric dialect.

Greek Composition.—Translation into Greek of simple English sentences based upon Xenophon's Anabasis.

Xenephon.—Anabasis, Book I, II and III.

Homer.—Iliad, Books I and II, or Odyssey I, II and III.

N. B.—In assigning the matter above, the purpose of the Faculty is not to insist on quantity or to recognize that the mere reading of a stated amount of assigned authors is sufficient preparation for college. In the discussion of the classic authors, both Greek and Latin, the candidate must be prepared to give a complete grammatical analysis of every word, phrase, and sentence, and to point out exceptional idioms, and must be informed on the chief points of collateral erudition connected with the text.

Students, who are prepared for entrance to Freshman Class in all the requirements except Greek, may enter the College conditioned in Greek. This condition may be removed in one or at the most two years, during part of which they will attend a Special Class established to meet this emergency. While carrying the conditon in Greek they will be registered as Special Students.

ENGLISH.—Higher Grammar.—The candidate must be prepared on the matter contained in Meiklejohn's "The English Language," or some equivalent work.

Composition.—A brief prose composition will be required evidencing some proficiency in narrative and critical writing. The test will be based upon books and authors assigned for study in the Georgetown College Preparatory School. Questions will be asked as to the subject-matter, method of treatment, structure and style of these books. Fair penmanship and accurate spelling will be considered as essential preliminary requirements.

The authors assigned are: Shelley, Selected Poems (No. 85, Maynard Series). *Wordsworth, Selected Poems (No. 90, Maynard Series). De Quincey, Flight of a Tartar Tribe. *Macaulay, Essays on Johnson and on Addison. Milton, Paradise Lost (two books), Ode to the Nativity, L'Allegro and Il Penseroso. *Shakespeare, Merchant of Venice. Tennyson, Morte d'Arthur. Lamb's Essays of Elia. Ruskin, Sesame and Lilies. Thackeray, Henry Esmond. A careful study of the works marked thus (subject-matter, form and structure) will be exacted; a general acquaintance with the other assigned books will be sufficient.

N. B.—The Uniform College Entrance Requirements in English will be accepted, as will any fair equivalent work in this department.

HISTORY.—Bible History as found in Richards, Greek (Bury), Rome (Schuckburgh), English (Lingard), United States (Montgomery), or as found in some equivalent author. Elements of Civics.

MATHEMATICS.—Algebra; Geometry, plane and solid. Wentworth's Complete Algebra, and Wentworth's Geometry, or works of equal grade.

SCIENCE.—A fair knowledge of Physical Geography.

MODERN LANGUAGES.—One modern language besides English is required, preferably French or German. The examination will embrace the elements of Grammar, including the irregular verbs; translation into English at sight of simple prose; grammatical analysis.

General Regulations.

No distinction is made in the reception of students on the ground of religious belief. Students not of the Catholic faith, if they do not wish to attend the Religious Exercises of the college, will be exempt therefrom, but are expected to conform in matter of church service to the obligations of their own belief.

No student will be allowed to remain at the college during the summer vacation.

The introduction of intoxicating liquors as well as of immoral books or papers, will render the offender liable to expulsion, as will any grave offense against morals or discipline.

There is a fixed hour for students in residence to rise, take their meals, attend chapel for daily Mass,and Benediction on Sundays and Holy Days, and to assist at night prayers. Parents who enter their sons are understood to agree that they should conform to these regulations.

Day-scholars and half-boarders, while within the College walls, are subject to the regulations of boarders.

Students of the Medical School are not received to board or lodge at the College, but must secure board and lodgings in the city. Students from the Law School may board and lodge at the College only in case of taking at the same time graduate courses at the College. Graduate students may enter the College either as boarders or day-scholars. Undergraduate students are not received as day-scholars unless they are living with their parents or guardians. Students are not allowed to lodge at the College and board outside the College.

Distribution of Rooms.

As the number of rooms at the College is limited, it has been found necessary to make the following rules about their distribution. No room will be reserved for a student unless the application for the same be accompanied by a deposit of one-tenth of the rental. Applications may be handed in at any time; yet, in order that students in residence during the year may have time to counsel with their parents or guardians about their return the following year, no assignment will be made for the coming year before July 25. The former holder of a room will have claim on that room up to July 25, after which, if not then engaged by him, it will be considered vacant. The earliest applicant will have right to any vacant room, if his application is accompanied by one-tenth of the rental, as above prescribed. The senior applicant, in case of two applying at the same time for the same room, will be given the preference. The right to a room for which a deposit has been paid expires on the evening of September 11, 1913.

Damage to College property is repaired at the expense of the student who inflicts it.

In the Sophomore year there is a charge of $10 per annum for the use of chemicals.

In the Junior year there is a charge of $10 for the use of philosophical and astronomical instruments, and $10 per annum for the use of chemicals.

The Graduation Fee is $10.00

All accounts must be paid half yearly, in advance. If a student is withdrawn before the end of a session, no deduction will be made, except in cases of illness or of dismissal, nor will any deduction be made for a shorter time than one month.

Degrees will not be conferred upon students whose debts to the College remain unpaid on June 1, 1913.

Articles of clothing will not be furnished by the College unless a deposit for that purpose be made with the Treasurer, who will give a detailed account of its outlay in his regular semi-annual statement.

No bills for clothing or other articles will be acknowledged unless the purchase has been authorized by the Treasurer of the College.

Books and stationery may be obtained at the College bookstore.

Whatever sums parents or guardians allow their sons or wards for pocket money, may be deposited with the Treasurer, who will disburse the same according to instructions received, or as circumstances may require. No advance will be made beyond the deposit.

Dues for the different student organizations, as the Athletic Association, the Debating Society, etc., must be paid by the students from their pocket money, and no student will be allowed to have such dues charged in upon the bill to be sent to parents or guardians.

Every student from outside the United States must have a guardian in the vicinity, who shall be responsible for his bills and receive him in case of dismissal. The same may be required for students from very distant States in the Union.

For Students of Medicine.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1913-1914.

The complete course of study in the Medical Department extends over four terms of eight months each.

Special attention is called to the advantages of the method of teaching adopted in this school. It enables each student to come into more intimate relation with his teachers in laboratory and hospital work, and in connection with the system of recitations adopted makes instruction more directly personal and adapted to the special needs of the individual.

The building of this department is conveniently located on H Street, Northwest, between Ninth and Tenth Streets, near several of the principal railway lines. It contains spacious and well-ventilated lecture rooms and laboratories, a convenient and well-lighted dissecting room, a library and reading room for the use of students. The laboratories are equipped with the latest and most approved instruments and appliances, including an ample number of microscopes of high power. These will greatly enhance the facilities for instruction, and will enable every student to master more readily the technical skill needed in modern important methods of medical research. The Laboratory courses may be taken independently of the lectures.

The clinical instruction is carried on in the University Hospital in connection with the general wards, Emergency Service, Outdoor Department, pathological laboratories and operating rooms. Clinics are also held at the Children's, Emergency, Columbia Hospital for Women, Episcopal Eye and Ear Hospital, the Municipal Hospital, and the Government Hospital for the Insane, containing in all over 3,000 beds.

The great libraries and museums connected with the various Government institutions at Washington afford advantages to the student that are unrivalled in America, and are equal, if not superior, to those in most European capitals. These collections are freely open to the public, and can be consulted by students upon obtaining permission, readily granted to those who are pursuing special courses of study.

LIBRARIES.

The Library of Congress	1,100,000 vols.
The Library of the Surgeon-General's Office	140,539 vols.
The Library of the National Museum	16,000 vols.
The Library of the Museum of Hygiene	10,500 vols.
The Library of the Bureau of Ethnology	5,000 vols.
The Library of the Bureau of Education	30,000 vols.
The Library of the Department of Agriculture	25,000 vols.

MUSEUMS, ETC.

The Army Medical Museum.
The Museum of Hygiene.
The United States National Museum.
The Museum of the Agricultural Department.
The Botanical Garden.
The United States National Zoological Park.

REQUISITES FOR ADMISSION.

1. Creditable certificates of good moral character, signed by two reputable persons of good standing in the State in which the applicant last resided.

2. A four-year high school education and two years of collegiate work or its equivalent, including chemistry, physics, with laboratory work, biology, and a modern language, either French or German.

3. Credentials to that effect shall be evaluated by a special Examiner appointed by a competent authority.

4. No student shall be permitted to matriculate or register beyond 10 days after advertised date of the opening of the school.

5. The school reserves the right to refuse admission to any student or to terminate the attendance of any student at any time for what may appear to the Faculty to be good and sufficient cause, such as incompetency or conduct unbecoming a gentleman.

CREDIT FOR WORK DONE IN OTHER COLLEGES.

Students from accredited Medical Colleges may be admitted under the following rules:

1. They must present evidence satisfactory to the Special Examiner that their entrance credentials were equal to the published requirements of this school.

2. They must present evidence of having passed a satisfactory examination in the branches for which they seek credit in some other reputable Medical School whose requirements equal our own.

3. The Dean shall verify the credentials from other Medical Schools, and shall not admit a student to advanced standing without communicating with the school from which said student wishes to withdraw, and receiving a certification of the applicant's standing in that school.

4. Reports on inquiry from other schools shall show failing grades as well as final make-up marks.

5. Conditions contracted in other Medical Schools requiring additional work for their removal will require a like procedure in this school.

GRADUATES IN MEDICINE.

1. A graduate from another Medical College may obtain a diploma from this school, provided he presents evidence of entrance qualifications equal to the requirements for admission to this school.

2. He must submit the required time and subject credits from the College from which he graduated, together with his diploma; he must attend all the courses of the fourth year, pass a satisfactory examination, and meet all other requirements for graduation.

SPECIAL STUDENTS.

Persons not candidates for the degree of M.D. may be admitted without examination as special students and may attend any of the courses upon giving satisfactory evidence that they are qualified to avail themselves of the instruction. Subjects completed to the satisfaction of the Chairman of the Department may be credited subsequently if the student enters upon a regular medical course within two years thereafter, and has complied with the published requirements for admission.

CURRICULUM.

1. The students shall be graded in four classes, designated as the first, second, third and fourth, the last being the senior.

2. The complete curriculum of study shall comprise four courses extending throughout four calendar years; each annual course to be not less than 32 weeks duration with 35 hours per week of instruction.

3. The course shall consist of didactic lectures, recitations, laboratory work and demonstrations, practical work in hospitals and dispensaries, with other practical manipulations and examinations.

4. No time credit shall be allowed for the possession of a Bachelor Degree, but credit may be allowed for particular subjects when an applicant passes an examination therein satisfactory to the head of the respective department. Four years' attendance at a Medical College are required of all candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

5. The branches of study pursued shall be as follows:

1st Class—Anatomy, including Histology and Embryology.
  Chemistry, Organic, Physiological and Sanitary;
    Toxicology.
  Physiology.
  Materia Medica and Medical Botany.

2nd Class—Anatomy.
Physiology.
Chemistry, Physiological and Pathological.
Bacteriology and Pathology, including Medical Zoology and Pathological Anatomy.
Pharmacology and Therapeutics.
Minor Surgery and Anesthesiology.
Applied Physiology.

3rd Class—Physical Diagnosis.
Practice of Medicine.
Surgical Pathology.
Surgery.
Gynecology.
Morbid Anatomy.
Hygiene.

4th Class—Obstetrics.
Practice of Medicine.
Tropical Medicine.
Gastro-Enteric Diseases.
Diseases of the Nervous System.
Mental Diseases.
Electro- and Hydro-Therapeutics, Roentgenography.
State Medicine and Medical Ethics.
Surgery (including Surgical Anatomy and Operative Surgery).
Morbid Anatomy.
Gynecology.
Ophthalmology.
Laryngology, Rhinology and Otology.
Genito-Urinary Surgery.
Orthopedic Surgery.
Military Surgery.
Dermatology.

I. Department of Anatomy.

PROF. FRANK BAKER, A.M., Ph.D., M.D., Chairman.

The didactic instruction is illustrated by demonstrations on the living subject, by dissections, models, and several hundred plates and lantern slides prepared especially for the course. The students are thoroughly examined orally from week to week as the course progresses in order to insure that they understand the work and are making satisfactory progress. Written examinations are held frequently. Especial attention is paid to the practical bearings of the science and its application to surgery and pathology.

Osteology.

EMORY W. REISINGER, M.D.

This course includes a careful study of every bone in the human body, the pupil being required to point out and designate the important and technical features of each upon an actual specimen. For the study of the skeleton it is very much like the study of the softer parts in the dissecting room, and is an indispensible preliminary to that work.

Practical Anatomy.

PROF. W. O. OWEN, M.D.

The dissecting room is open daily for students after October 15th, and Professor Owen and his Assistants are present. During the session special demonstrations of the brain, of the thoracic and the abdominal viscera, and also of other difficult or obscure regions of the body are given.

During each se sion every student of the First and Second Classes is required to dissect all regions of the human body, and to pass a satisfactory examination at the conclusion of each dissection.

Histology and Embryology.

ASST. PROF. ERNEST L. MORGAN, A.B., M.D.,

This course consists chiefly of laboratory work. Recitations, with explanatory talks illustrated by charts and blackboard drawings, precede the laboratory work of the day and aid in interpreting its specimens. The laboratory is large and well lighted. Each student is furnished with a microscope, locker and accessories, and is instructed in the theory and practical use of the microscope. The elementary tissues are studied in the fresh state as well as after being stained and mounted. In the study of the organs, practical instruction is given in the preparation of mounted specimens, the actual work so far as is practicable, being done by the student. The relations of histology to embryology, physiology and pathology are duly considered. Throughout the course, drawings with descriptive notes are made of the microscopic appearances.

The course in Embryology consists of lectures and practical laboratory work in which the student is taught to prepare serial sections of embryos studied. It begins with spermatogenesis and ovogenesis, and then taking up the development after fertilization proceeds to the formation of the rudiment of the embryo, and concludes with a consideration of organology.

II. Department of Physiology.

PROF. FRANCIS TONDORF, Chairman.

This course consists of lectures upon General and Special demonstrations, and practical work in the Physiological Laboratory. The students are familiarized with the use of the latest appliances, and are required to make accurate notes of all experiments and individual work performed under the supervision of the Director of the laboratory.

While a knowledge of the facts of Physiology is essential, greater stress will be laid upon the underlying, fundamental principles, and their application to the problems of Pathology, Physical Diagnosis, and practical Medicine and Surgery.

III. Department of Chemistry and Toxicology.

PROF. JOHN D. HIRD, A.M., LL.M., Chairman.

It is the aim in this department to give a practical course in chemistry and toxicology as related to the subject of medicine.

In organic chemistry the instruction is given by means of lectures and laboratory work. This course includes an examination of the more important hydrocarbons and their derivatives, supplemented by lectures upon the theoretical and practical methods of manufacture, their character and uses, especially as they are related to medicine. Under the head of organic chemistry, that department of science known as sanitary chemistry also receives attention. This includes the practical examination of the various forms of matter which affect, either directly or indirectly, the general health. It is intended in this course that such a knowledge shall be imparted to the students as may enable them to differentiate between wholesome and unwholesome articles of food and drink. The various food products, particularly milk, cheese, bread and meats, will receive careful consideration. The examination of air in rooms, the velocity, condition and quality of air currents, will be considered under the head of ventilation. The organic analysis of water and its various forms of pollution, will also receive attention.

The course in physiological and pathological chemistry includes practical laboratory work in the study of foods, their composition, assimilation, metabolism and excretion, together with the allied subjects relating thereto.

Under the head of toxicology the general subject of poisons, including their effects, modes of action, subsequent dispositions and antagonisms is considered in detail.

IV. Department of Pathology and Bacteriology.

PROF. ....

ASSOCIATE PROF. RALPH A. HAMILTON, M.D.

The course in pathology consists of lectures, demonstrations, class recitations and laboratory work, and will embrace general and special pathology, including bacteriology and clinical pathology.

The lectures and class recitations are brought in close relation with the laboratory exercises. During the first half-year general consideration of disease, including etiology and immunity, are taken up, and during the same period the laboratory work in bacteriology is made to explain and illustrate the didactic work as far as possible.

The second half-year is devoted to the study of the anatomical changes in disease, including degeneration, regeneration, inflammation, tumor formation, etc. The course in pathological histology is so arranged as to keep pace with the class work; for this purpose a complete series of typical pathological specimens will be presented for individual study.

The course in clinical pathology contemplates the examination of blood, urine, feces, gastric contents, sputum, pathological exudates, etc., with special reference to clinical medicine and surgery. The great value of laboratory methods as aids in the diagnosis of disease will be emphasized.

V. Department of Materia Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics.

PROF. J. RYAN DEVEREUX, A.B., M.D.

The course on Materia Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics will cover three years, and consists of a combination of didactic and laboratory and clinical instruction. During the first year the student is made acquainted by actual demonstrations with the physical and chemical characteristics of the drugs of the Pharmacopœia, their doses, compatibilities and incompatibilities; also weights and measures, elementary pharmacy, etc., and will be taught so much of the actions and uses of drugs as is necessary to illustrate their importance. During the second year the student is taught by lectures and practical demonstrations the physiological action of drugs and an effort is made to fix the most important elements of pharmacodynamics by laboratory exercises. During the third year the student is taught to apply his theoretical knowledge thus obtained, by instruction at the University Hospital and Dispensary.

The attention of the student is directed to the systematic study of the application of drugs to the treatment of disease, a practical knowledge of which is the ultimate aim of his course in pharmacology.

VI. Department of Medicine and Medical Specialties.

PROF. SAMUEL S. ADAMS, A.M., M.D., Chairman.

An effort will be made to give in the course of two sessions as complete a description as possible of the diseases usually considered as belonging to the province of this chair, and in such manner as to give the student a clear conception of the methods of discrimination and management of the various diseased conditions. This teaching, together with the supplementary advantages offered by bedside and dispensary instruction and the various clinics, will, it is believed, afford him an opportunity of acquiring a thorough knowledge of this subject.

Physical Diagnosis.

PROF. JOHN D. THOMAS, A.B., M.D.

In addition to the didactic lectures on the principles of physical diagnosis, there are demonstrations to the students at large clinics at the Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital, the University Hospital, and the Tuberculosis Hospital. The class is divided into sections, each member of which makes examinations under proper supervision.

Medical Specialties.

Mental and Nervous Diseases.

PROF. WILLIAM A. WHITE, M.D.

This course consists of didactic and clinical lectures. Lectures are held at the City Hospital which affords excellent opportunities for the study of chronic nervous diseases, and the acute forms of mental disorder. During the second semester clinics are given also at the Government Hospital for the Insane, which accommodates about 3,000 patients. Members of the Third and Fourth Classes are admitted to them. Students have opportunity to visit the wards of the Hospital, and each lecture is illustrated by cases, giving in great variety all the forms of insanity and diseases of the nervous system which are usually seen in the practice of the general practitioners in medicine.

Diseases of the Nervous System and Electro-Therapeutics.

PROF. D. PERCY HICKLING, M.D.

This course is largely clinical and embraces those diseases of the general nervous system which are commonly met with in practice, special attention being given to their diagnosis and treatment.

The course of Electro-Therapeutics will include a brief outline of Electro-Physics and Electro-Physiology, with practical illustrations of the use of the galvanic, faradic and static currents and X-Ray methods, with a discussion of the medical and surgical conditions in which this form of treatment may be used. The lectures are amply illustrated with batteries, electrodes, rheostats and other clerical appliances.

Hygiene and Dietetics.

PROF. GEORGE M. KOBER, M.D., LL.D.

The course on hygiene and dietetics includes lectures and recitations on sunlight, air, climate, and meteorology; water, ice, artificial carbonated waters, and soils in relation to health and disease; food, beverages, and condiments, morbific and infected food products; dietetics in health and disease; the skin, bath and clothing; exercise, rest, sleep, beds, and bedding; private and public habitations, including drainage, ventilation, warming, and lighting, with practical demonstrations of sanitary appliances at the Museum of Hygiene.

State Medicine.

PROF. W. C. WOODWARD, M.D., LL.M.

The course on State Medicine consists of lectures and of such demonstrations as may be practicable upon the relation of the medical practitioner to Government, and of the application of medical science to the purposes of the Government for the protection of public health, and for the determination of such medical problems as come before courts of law. Attendance will be obligatory upon the students in their fourth year.

VII. Department of Surgery and Surgical Specialties.

PROF. GEORGE TULLY VAUGHAN, M.D., Chairman.

The course in surgery is graded and extends over two and one-half years. Instruction is given by didactic lectures, recitations, and demonstrations at clinics, which are held at various hospitals and dispensaries, which afford material in abundance.

Students are instructed in the practical use and application of bandages, fracture dressings, and other surgical apparatus. The use of the principal surgical instruments is also demonstrated on the living subject or on the cadaver.

Members of the Fourth Class are instructed in orthopedic and genito-urinary surgery by lectures and clinical demonstrations, and are given a course in operative surgery on the cadaver, in which nearly every operation, minor and capital, classic and modern, is done by the student under the direction of the professor and his assistants.

Surgical Specialties.

Gynecology.

PROF. ISAAC S. STONE, M.D.

Modern gynecology is taught in didactic lectures, freely illustrated by plates and blackboard drawings, recitations, and also in general and section clinics in the hospitals and dispensaries, where manipulations and operative work will be carefully explained and demonstrated. Abdominal surgery receives special attention.

Advanced students are required to witness the preparations for aseptic operations, and to assist in their performance.

Ophthalmology.

PROF. WILLIAM H. WILMER, M.D.

The course begins with lectures on the anatomy of the eye, illustrated by models, charts, and specimens under the microscope, followed by an explanation of the fundamental principles of physiological optics and the proper methods of examining the eye. The lectures are supplemented by quizzes and reviews. The lectures on the diseases of the eye are entirely practical, illustrative cases being taken from Dr. Wilmer's extensive service at the Episcopal Hospital, Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital, and at the University Hospital. The class is divided into small sections in order that the clinical teaching shall be as nearly personal as possible.

An operative course is given upon pigs' eyes. Each student has the opportunity to perform the principal operations and familiarize himself with the technique. More than two thousand new cases of eye diseases are treated annually at the Episcopal Hospital alone. Every important operation on the eye is performed in the presence of each section.

Drs. Dufour, Griffith, Greene, Muncaster and Burke will give clinical demonstrations at the various hospitals with which they are connected.

Laryngology, Rhinology and Otology.

PROF. WALTER A. WELLS, M.D.

The course in laryngology and otology, chiefly clinical, is conducted with a view to familiarizing the student with the various forms of nose, throat and ear affections met with in actual practice, and instructing him in modern methods of diagnosing and treating them. After some preliminary notice of the history of these specialties, followed by a thorough demonstration by means of charts and specimens of the anatomy and physiology of these organs the subject is taught by actual observation and study of the disease by contact with the patients.

The class is divided into sections, so that each student may be personally taught by the use of the instruments, and drilled in the methods of both subjective and objective examination of the patients. In the course of the year ample opportunity is afforded of witnessing the major and minor operations which have to be performed in connection with these specialties.

Dermatology.

PROF. HENRY H. HAZEN, M.D.

Realizing that a knowledge of this important branch can be gained only by actual demonstration of the lesions, this subject is chiefly taught by clinical lectures at the Georgetown University Hospital and Dispensary, which furnishes material for the demonstration of all of the more common diseases of the skin. In addition, section clinics are also held at the Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital.

VIII. Department of Obstetrics.

PROF. HENRY D. FRY, M.D., D.Sc.

The course is graded, and consists of classified lectures comprising the whole subject, of systematic study, recitations, essays upon assigned subjects, and demonstrations upon charts and plates, and of operations performed upon the manikin. During the past session each member of the senior class attended five or more cases of midwifery, of which he was required to keep records and present written reports. Every facility is given for acquiring experience in the practical workings of this department by means of bedside instruction. Special attention is devoted to abdominal palpitation, pelvimetry, digital examination, and the methods of diagnosticating presentations and positions of the fetus.

An opportunity is given to each student to perform the various obstetric operations, such as the application of forceps, version, supplemented by an operative course on the Budin-Pinard manikin.

The importance of exercising strict supervision over the period of pregnancy will be dwelt upon, and attention given to the pathological changes which may occur during gestation, labor, and the puerperal state. The great value of antiseptic principles as applied to obstetric practice will be demonstrated.

Clinical Instruction and Advantages.

Georgetown University Hospital.

Corner of Thirty-fifth and N Streets, N. W.

The Hospital and Dispensary are located in close proximity to the College grounds and accessible by three of the principal electric car lines in the city. This institution, with a capacity of 250 beds, is in every sense a modern University hospital, wholly under the control of the School of Medicine, and affords ample and excellent facilities for illustrating by clinical teaching and ward classes the didactic instruction given in the various practical branches of the school. Owing to the favorable location of the Hospital, the Outdoor Service and Emergency Department enjoys an unusual field of activity, a matter of great importance to the students, as they receive special training in the effective management of emergency cases. Clinics and Ward Classes are conducted by the professors of this school and by members of the Hospital and Dispensary staff.

Children's Hospital.

W Street between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets, N. W.

Students may here observe the diseases, injuries, and deformities incident to infancy and childhood, together with the treatment appropriate therefor. Every facility will be given to observe and comprehend thoroughly the cases admitted to its wards. The out-patient department or dispensary is open every week day from 2.30 to 4.30 P. M. It is divided into medical and surgical services, and a service for diseases of the eye and ear. All these are free of access for medical students.

Drs. Adams and Griffith, who are on the Staff, will give clinical instruction at this hospital.

Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital.

Fifteenth Street and Ohio Avenue, N. W.

During the last year over 15,000 patients were treated here, and over 2,200 surgical operations performed, many of capital importance. Unusual opportunities are afforded for acquiring practical experience in the ordinary duties of a physician. As a large proportion of the serious cases of accident that occur in the city are first brought to this hospital because of its central location, students become rapidly trained in the effective treatment of injuries demanding prompt assistance, and of that class of cases likely to be of the most importance to the young practitioner. Students are admitted to the services. The hospital offers excellent facilities for clinical instruction, and the ambulance service and casualty wards afford special advantages for studying traumatic and operative surgery.

The Lionel Laboratory, established in connection with the hospital, affords a fine opportunity for the study of practical bacteriology, pathology and Roentgen-ray work in association with surgery and medicine. Drs. Johnson, Magruder and Adams are on the Consulting Board.

Regular clinics are given by the following Professors of this school and other members of the staff:

Surgical—Dr. Vaughan.

Medical—Dr. Thomas.

Diseases of the Eye, Ear and Skin—Drs. Wilmer, Dufour, Muncaster and Blackistone.

Physical Diagnosis and Diseases of the Chest, Throat and Nose—Drs. Thomas, Wells, Moore and Jeffries.

Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

1147 Fifteenth Street, N. W.

This Hospital affords unusual facilities for clinical teaching in the specialties for which it is especially equipped.

Ophthalmological Classes by Drs. Wilmer, Burke and Greene.

Laryngological and Otological by Drs. Wells, Miller and Walker.

Washington Asylum Hospital.

19th and C Streets, S. E.

Tuberculosis Hospital.

Corner Upshur and 14th Streets, N. W.

These Hospitals, owned and controlled by the municipality, afford an abundance of clinical material. Clinical teaching in sections is conducted at the Tuberculosis Hospital by Prof. Thomas.

The City Hospital offers an excellent opportunity for the study of acute and chronic diseases and injuries. Professors White and Hickling utilize the material in the Psychopathic wards of the Institution and Professors Devereux, Marbury, Lee, Reeves and Madigan conduct Ward Class teaching in medicine and surgery, followed by post mortem work. The students spend all of the afternoon of Fridays, the forenoon of Saturdays in the wards and clinics of the Hospital.

Columbia Hospital for Women and Lying-In Asylum.

Corner Pennsylvania Avenue and 25th Street.

This Hospital offers excellent opportunities for gynecological and obstetrical demonstrations and section work, under the supervision of Professors Stone and Sprigg.

Examinations.

1. Professors and Instructors render monthly reports to the Dean upon the attendance and progress of each student in every course, and at the close of the first semester an examination is held to test the proficiency and advancement of every student.

2. At the conclusion of the instruction in each department there is held annually a written examination on all the subjects of that department. Each written examination may be supplemented by a practical or oral examination, should the Professor or Instructor in charge of that branch deem it desirable. Before the examination, the Instructors in the subordinate branches submit to the Professors in charge the questions that they desire to be included.

3. A student who has less than 80% credit for attendance in the course is not eligible for examination, and no student shall be admitted to examinations for advancement or graduation until all indebtedness for instruction shall have been paid.

4. The standing of a student in any branch will be determined by combining the record of his recitations and examinations, both written and oral, and his laboratory and clinical work.

5. The instructor in each subordinate branch shall report within 5 days after examination is held, the standing in said branch to the professor of the principal chair to which that branch is attached, and this rating shall be used in estimating the standing in the principal branch. The examination marks shall be upon a scale of 100 as a maximum mark and each student must attain a grade of 75 in all of his studies.

6. All reports on final examinations shall be rendered by the head of the Department within 10 days after such examinations are held.

Conditions and Failures.

1. A grade between 60 and 75% in any subject constitutes a condition and three conditions constitute a failure. A grade below 60% in any subject also constitutes a failure and the student will be required to repeat the course.

2. Candidates for graduation shall be informed of their success or failure by the Dean on the day following the report to the Faculty of their rating, and all other students within 15 days after their examination.

Rules Governing Removal of Conditions and Supplemental Examinations.

1. A student who fails in a course, but with a final grade in that course not below 60%, is entitled (after payment of the supplementary examination fee) to a supplementary examination at the next supplementary examination (see 4).

This applies also to students who were absent from the regular examination.

2. A student who fails in a course with a final grade below 60% must repeat all, or part of the work, of that course before being eligible to an examination. Such repeating may be done (a) in approved summer course, (b) under an approved tutor, or (c) with the regular course given to the next class, according as the Executive Faculty may direct.

3. After repeating a course the student is eligible to enter the next examination, regular or supplementary.

4. The supplementary examinations for the first, second and third years will be given between September 20th and 30th. Students must inform themselves of the exact dates by application to the Registrar.

5. A student, entitled to enter a supplementary examination, who fails to appear at the time scheduled for the examination, must repeat the course before being eligible to examination, except as provided under 6.

6. Under very exceptional circumstances, such as serious personal illness, a special examination may be allowed by vote of the Executive Faculty. This entails a fee in excess of that for supplementary examinations.

7. A subject once failed and removed by subsequent examination shall never entitle a grade above passing.

8. A student who fails to remove a condition at a supplementary examination must repeat the course before being entitled to another examination.

9. A student who fails to remove a condition after repeating a course cannot receive further instruction, examination or credit, in that subject in this school, and is thereby automatically excluded from graduation from this school.

Promotion and Classification.

The regular promotion from one class to another will be made by the Executive Faculty after the May examinations, and the student shall be informed in writing of his standing within 15 days after such an examination. It being impossible for a student to carry on the succeeding year's work with conditions of the preceding year, every effort must be made by the student to remove the conditions in the manner already prescribed.

A student will not be permitted to enter a higher class until he has shown his fitness to carry the work of that class. In deciding the question of fitness the Faculty will be guided by the following rules:

1. By November 20th the student must have passed in all subjects of the class one year below that which he wishes to enter.

2. A student who is not promoted may be permitted to take any subject of the next higher class for which he is sufficiently prepared, provided it does not interfere with the scheduled work of any course in which he is conditioned.

3. Students shall not be permitted to graduate unless their standing is satisfactory in all of their studies. Upon failure in one but not more than two branches of the fourth year a student may, with the approval of the Executive Faculty, be allowed the privilege of a re-examination in the Fall, and if he fails again must repeat the course.

Requirements for Graduation.

The following are the requirements necessary for graduation:

1. The candidate must be of good moral character and at least twenty-one years of age; he must have studied medicine not less than four years, during which he must have attended four courses of instruction delivered in some recognized medical school, as already provided for, the last of which shall have been delivered in this institution.

2. The diplomas shall be signed by the Executive Faculty.

3. The graduation exercises shall take place within a month after the final examinations.

4. They shall be presided over by the President of the University and all details shall be arranged by a committee appointed for the purpose by the Executive Faculty.

Fees.

Matriculation fee, payable on entrance to the first year course	$ 5.00
Tuition each year	150.00
Graduation fee	10.00
Supplementary examinations, each	5.00

This includes all laboratory fees and charges for material used in practical anatomy and operative surgery. Students will, however, be required to pay all charges for injury to microscopes, apparatus and other college property.

2. For special students:

Didactic lectures for each of the Chairs	$20.00
Dissection	10.00
Didactic and laboratory course in normal histology, physiology, pathology and pathological histology and bacteriology, each	25.00
Practical chemistry, including chemicals, per course	25.00
Operative surgery on the cadaver	25.00

3. Payment of not less than one-fourth of the fees is required at the commencement of the session, the balance by January 1st, ensuing.

4. A student repeating the course for any reason will be charged full fees for that course, unless otherwise directed by the Executive Faculty.

5. Sons and wards of Professors or ex-Professors of the Medical School shall be allowed a rebate of one-half of the usual fees for tuition, other fees to be without reduction.

6. The following scholarships are established, each to cover the entire course of four years, and valid only during satisfactory conduct and progress.

One awarded by the University Alumni Association.

One paid for by the Carroll Morgan Endowment Fund.

One awarded by competitive examination to a graduate of the Washington High Schools for the Department of Science and Arts and Medicine of the value of $80.00 per annum.

The President of the University has ex officio the power to appoint to scholarships graduates of sciences and arts and others deemed worthy of such favor, the value of such scholarships being left to his discretion, but the number in no case to exceed 5 per cent of the total number of matriculates.

The expenses of a student during the school year, including tuition, books, board and lodging, laundry, and other incidentals, need not exceed $375.00, and $450.00 will be a liberal allowance.

Checks should be made payable to the School of Medicine, Georgetown University.

Requisites for Admission.

Candidates for admission must hereafter have a minimum preliminary education of not less than four years from an accredited High School or its equivalent. The preliminary examination will not be required of an applicant who can show that he has covered the work of such an examination by furnishing an official certificate to that effect issued by a reputable literary or scientific college, academy, high school, or State examining board.

Graduates in medicine are eligible for admission to the second class, and are excused from examination in the studies pertaining to the medical course of recognized institutions.

Those presenting certificates of examination for advanced standing from other reputable dental colleges of equal requirements will be admitted to the corresponding higher class without further examination.

The preliminary examinations will be held at the college building on September 25th and 26th. The regular evening session will begin September 27, 1913, and end May 31, 1914. The lectures each day will begin at 5 P. M. The Infirmary will be open from 1 to 5 P. M.

Students applying for admission later than ten days after the opening day of the session cannot be credited with a full course unless such delay is due to sickness, which must be vouched for by the certificate of a reputable practicing physician. In such case the date of admission shall not be later than twenty days from the opening day.

Methods of Instruction.

The course of instruction will consist of clinical and illustrated lectures, recitations, demonstrations, dissecting and laboratory work, and clinical instructions. The number of students taken in each class allows each member to come into close contact with the professors, and insures the most thorough individual instruction. The Dental Laboratory is fully equipped with electrical lathes, furnaces, rolling mill, vulcanizers, celluloid apparatus, lockers, etc. Here the student receives his first instruction. Every process of value known to mechanical dentistry is taught in this department.

Demonstration by the instructors begins with taking impressions of the mouth by the use of the several materials employed for that purpose. The instruction, in its progress, includes consideration of the construction of artificial dentures and obturators in all their wide variety.

THE CLINICAL DEPARTMENT OR INFIRMARY consists of large operating rooms, supplied with all the latest equipments. The chairs are so arranged as to command the best light. There is a separate room for the administration of anæsthetics for the extraction of teeth; also for taking impressions, occlusions, and doing work requiring the use of plaster or wax.

There is also a department of Oral Surgery attached to the Georgetown University Hospital, where students have the privilege of witnessing all the operations pertaining to cleft palate, hare-lip, fractured maxilla, empyema of antrum, etc.

Both infirmaries are under the immediate and continuous direction of a corps of competent demonstrators, who are ready to instruct and assist the students in their work. In these departments the student is taught the art of operative and prosthetic dentistry. The press of patients is very great, and the opportunity for practice is excellent. The student not only witnesses every kind of dental manipulation as practiced by the experienced operator, but is himself taught to accomplish all that pertains to the daily duties of a dental surgeon by actual practice.

This intimate union of theoretical and practical instruction will be insisted on during the entire session.

NO STUDENT WILL BE ALLOWED TO OPERATE IN THE INFIRMARY unless provided with the necessary instruments, a list of which may be obtained on application to the demonstrator in charge, with the exception of forceps, lathes, and vulcanizers. All expenses attending operations upon college patients are borne by the institution.

Students must continue in attendance until the close of the session in order to obtain credit for the full term.

Any student associated in any capacity in an advertising dental office will not be allowed to continue his course.

The operating rooms of the college are open for instruction the entire year, and students are obliged to attend regularly each session during the year.

Curriculum.

The instruction embraces a graded course of three years, each course followed by examinations thereon.

Punctual attendance upon the lectures and clinics is required of all students. The Faculty reserves the right to exclude from examinations, either in course or final, any student who has been habitually absent from lectures or other exercises.

The following is a schedule of the time per week devoted to each study:

FIRST YEAR.

Lectures and Recitations.		Laboratory.
Anatomy	4 hours	As Assigned
Osteology	2 hrs. for 3 mos.
Histology, General and Dental	4 hours
Materia Medica	2 hours	1 hour
Chemistry	3 hrs. for 3 mos.	3 hrs. for 3½ mos.
Physics	1 hour
Operative Technics	1 hour	12 hours
Prosthetic Technics	1 hour	12 hours
Physiology	2 hours

SECOND YEAR.

Anatomy	4 hours	As Assigned
Physiology	2 hours
Therapeutics	1 hour
Bacteriology		12 hrs. for 2 mos.
Operative Dentistry	2 hours	As Assigned
Prosthetic Dentistry	2 hours	As Assigned
Oral Surgery	1 hour
Dental Pathology	1 hour
Infirmary Practice	Throughout the year

THIRD YEAR.

General Pathology	2 hours
Oral Surgery	1 hour
Dental Pathology	1 hour
Prosthetic Dentistry	2 hours
Operative Dentistry	2 hours
Metallurgy	1 hr. for 3 mos.
Dental Medicine—Therapeutics	1 hour
Orthodontia	1 hour
Infirmary Practice	Throughout the year

Course of Study.

Oral Prosthesis.

PROF. SHIRLEY W. BOWLES, D.D.S., In Charge.
C. A. HAWLEY, D.D.S., Orthodontia.
C. A. BAKER, D.D.S., Crown and Bridge Work.
HARRY B. RILEY, D.D.S., Crown and Bridge Work.
LEO J. SOLBACH, D.D.S., Metallurgy.

The instruction in this department is designed to impart a knowledge of all that pertains to the construction and application of artificial dentures and other oral appliances.

The more important subjects considered are: The preparation and treatment of the mouth for artificial dentures, the taking of impressions, a system of perfect articulations, the method of constructing the different bases used for dentures, and the construction and application of obturators.

Esthetic or artistic dentistry is systematically taught and enforced. In this it is shown how dentistry may be employed for improving natural deformities and for restoring the contours of the face.

A special feature of the teaching in this department will be the exhaustive study of Crown and Bridge work. Students will be thoroughly grounded in the principles of a safe and conservative practice, so that they may clearly appreciate the indications for Crown and Bridge work. This will be accomplished by clinical instructions, as well as special demonstrations.

Careful attention will be paid to the chemistry of metals and all the materials used.

Metallurgy.

A thorough knowledge of metal used in dentistry is taught. Students are also instructed in the art of making and tempering instruments. The amalgam used in the school is made by the students under the supervision of the Professor of Metallurgy.

Orthodontia.

The treatment of irregularities of the dental arch requires great skill and judgment. Lectures upon this subject will be thoroughly practical, and the student will be taught the most approved and scientific methods of correcting these deformities. This course of teaching will be illustrated by practical cases.

Crown and Bridge Work.

In addition to the presentation of this subject under Oral Prosthesis, a technical and a clinical course will be given with special instruction in porcelain crown and bridge work.

Operative Dentistry.

Prof. H. J. Allen, M.D., D.D.S., In Charge.
Frank A. Casteel, D.D.S., Assistant Professor.
B. L. Taylor, D.D.S., Dental Pathology.
J. T. McClenahan, D.D.S., Dental Medicine and Therapeutics.
C. M. Gearhart, D.D.S., Oral Hygiene and Prophylaxis.

Instruction in this course presents the approved methods, appliances and materials used in filling teeth, together with the principles which form the basis of practice.

The treatment and restoration of diseased teeth and associated structures is presented from a combined mechanical and therapeutical standpoint.

These lectures are supplemented by practical instruction in the clinical operating room and laboratories by competent demonstrators and instructors.

Dental Pathology.

The histology and embryology of the teeth and surrounding parts are reviewed, and a general discussion of the diseases of the teeth and the mouth given with clinical demonstrations.

Dental Medicine and Therapeutics.

Special attention will be given to dental pharmacology and the practical application of such drugs and agents as are generally used in a dental infirmary or in actual practice.

The oral manifestations of systemic conditions will receive attention.

Oral Hygiene and Prophylaxis.

This important subject will be thoroughly presented by a series of lectures, supplemented by clinical demonstrations in the infirmary.

Operative and Prosthetic Technics.

PROF. W. N. COGAN, D.D.S., In Charge.
FRANK A. CASTEEL, D.D.S.
W. B. HOOFNAGLE, D.D.S.
LEO W. SOLBACH, D.D.S.
Operative Technics.

P. BONNARD BAIN, D.D.S.
GEO. H. BECKER, D.D.S.
G. J. SIBLEY, D.D.S.
Prosthetic Technics.

This course, while of importance to all new students, possesses especial value to such as have not had the advantage of office pupilage and laboratory work before entering college. It combines the features of manual training and exact observation, enabling the student to become familiar with the forms and structures of the teeth, and to acquire a certain dexterity in the use of instruments before operating upon the living subject.

Oral Surgery.

PROF. WALTER D. WEBB, Major and Surgeon, U. S. A., Retired.

Oral surgery is a specialty which is a distinct outgrowth from dentistry. As the work of the dentist came to include operations upon the surrounding tissues, as well as upon the teeth themselves, the adoption of surgical methods and more thorough training in the principles and practice of surgery became necessary. The addition of instruction in this branch to the dental curriculum includes thorough instruction in the most advanced methods of operative technic, surgical anæsthesia, asepsis, and antisepsis, and after-treatment of the case.

The instruction is both didactic and clinical, and students are encouraged to study and treat personally cases under the supervision of the Professor of Oral Surgery.

Anatomy.

PROF. FRANK BAKER, M.D., PH.D., In Charge.
WM. F. HEMLER, M.D., Demonstrator of Anatomy.
STUART C. JOHNSON, M.D., Demonstrator of Anatomy.
RALPH A. HAMILTON, M.D., Professor of Histology.
B. L. TAYLOR, D.D.S., Instructor in Dental Histology.
PHILIP NEWTON, M.D., Lecturer on Osteology.

General anatomy will be thoroughly taught by this chair in the most careful manner. Models, plates, and the cadaver are abundantly supplied for the proper illustration of this subject. Special attention will be given to the descriptive anatomy of the head, face, neck and oral cavity.

The demonstrator of practical anatomy will have charge of the class in the dissecting room, where dissecting material will be supplied in abundance.

HISTOLOGY.

PROF. RALPH A. HAMILTON, M.D.

This course consists chiefly of laboratory work. Recitations, with explanatory talks illustrated by charts and blackboard drawings, precede the laboratory work of the day and aid in interpreting its specimens. The laboratory is large and well lighted. Each student is furnished with a microscope, locker and accessories, and is instructed in the theory and practical use of the microscope. The elementary tissues are studied in the fresh state as well as after being stained and mounted. In the study of the organs, practical instruction is given in the preparation of mounted specimens, the actual work so far as is practicable, being done by the student. The relations of histology to embryology, physiology and pathology are duly considered. Throughout the course, drawings with descriptive notes are made of the microscopic appearances.

OSTEOLOGY.

PHILIP NEWTON, M.D.

This course includes a careful study of every bone in the human body, the pupil being required to point out and designate the important and technical features upon an actual specimen. For the study of the skeleton it is very much like the study of the softer parts in the dissecting room, and is an indispensable preliminary to that work.

Dental Histology.

The lectures on this subject include the comparative anatomy and the development of the teeth and their component tissues, with the functions of dental organs, all viewed from the standpoint of the practical dental practitioner.

Physiology.

PROF. JOSEPH S. WALL, M.D., In Charge.

One of the features of the progress and development of modern Dentistry is its closer association with the wider field of General Medicine, through recognition of the fact that the foundations of each special branch are common to all. The dental practitioner of to-day, therefore, must acquire a fuller knowledge of the whole organism, in order that he may the more intelligently deal with that part of it which is his immediate province. To this end the student will find, in this course, especial emphasis laid upon the fundamental principles of Physiology, while the practical application will be pointed out in lectures, recitations, and practical demonstrations.

Materia Medica and Therapeutics.

PROF. WILFRED M. BARTON, M.D., In Charge.
CHARLES I. GRIFFITH, PHARM.D., M.D., Associate.
JAMES T. MCCLENAHAN, D.D.S., Dental Medicine.

A complete course of materia medica and general therapeutics will be given by this chair, while special attention will be called to the nature and therapeutic uses of those drugs required in dentistry. Students will be given opportunities to become personally familiar with the physical properties of drugs, the compounding of prescriptions, and the methods of applying topical remedies.

In this course the student will be made familiar with the different agents used to accomplish anesthesia, the contraindication to their use, and practical demonstration in the infirmary of the different methods employed for the administration of the various anæsthetics.

Chemistry and Toxicology.

PROF. JOHN D. HIRD, A.M., LL.M., In Charge.

It will be the aim of the professor of this chair to give an accurate knowledge of the principles of the science, dwelling especially upon those points which are of peculiar interest to the dental student. Careful attention will be paid to the vital chemistry of anæsthetics, the special chemistry of the mouth, the stomach, and intestinal tract.

Pathology and Bacteriology.

PROF. EDWIN B. BEHREND, A.B., M.D., In Charge.
RALPH A. HAMILTON, M.D., Associate.

The study of these important subjects is obligatory. This has been made necessary on account of their close relationship to dental pathology and therapeutics. The instructions are principally practical, and embrace full laboratory teaching of the most important subjects of these studies.

Physics.

PROF. FRANCIS A. TONDORF, S.J.

A course in the elements of physics, with special reference to their application to medicine and dentistry, will be given during the first year.

Graduation.

At the close of the third year a student who has passed all examinations satisfactorily receives the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery (D.D.S.) on the following conditions:

Candidate must be of age and of good moral character.

Candidate must have passed a satisfactory examination in all the branches of the curriculum; must have attended the practical instruction in all departments, and the last course of instruction must have been at this college.

Candidate must sign an agreement with the Dean to live up to the ethics of the profession.

The examinations are conducted orally, and in writing, and are held at the middle and close of each term, thus dividing the strain upon the student.

Prior to such examinations specimens of operations upon the natural organs performed in the Dental Infirmary must be exhibited to the Professor of Operative Dentistry, and such other specimen work as he may require; also an approved specimen of dental mechanism constructed in the Dental Laboratory upon a model of practical use must be submitted to the Professor of Oral Prosthesis.

No student will be admitted to examination for advancement or graduation until all indebtedness for instruction shall have been paid.

Fees.

Matriculation (payable but once)	$ 5.00
Tuition, each year	125.00
Graduation Fee	10.00

Students will be required to make an annual deposit of $10.00 to cover loss, breakage or damage to the property of the school. This deposit, less the charges made against it, is refunded to the student upon his withdrawal.

A student repeating a course will be charged full fees for that course.

Payment of not less than one-fourth of the fees is required at the commencement of the session, the balance by January 1st ensuing. This payment must be made upon registration, and students will not be admitted for re-examination without previous registration.

The expenses of a student during the eight months, including tuition, books, board and lodging, laundry and other incidentals need not exceed $350.00, and $425.00 will be a liberal allowance.

Georgetown University School of Law.

Advantages of Studying Law in Washington.

While a more systematic, comprehensive training for the bar may be obtained in a law school than by reading in a law office, each method of education has its advantages. At Georgetown Law School the class exercises begin at 6.30 P. M., thus enabling the student to enter a law office and to become familiar with the practical work of the profession, while pursuing his studies at the School. So far as practicable, students who place themselves in timely communication with the Secretary, are located in law offices in the City, where they may gain an insight into the actual conduct of the business of the profession. The arrangement of the class exercises at the hour referred to also enables the employees of the Departments of the Government, and others whose time is occupied during the day, to avail themselves of the privileges of the School. In addition to the Law Library of the School, and the Riggs Memorial Library of the University, containing over 100,000 volumes, students have access to the Law Library of the Capitol, and to the Library of the Supreme Court of the United States. These two collections of law books are unequalled anywhere in the United States. The Senate and House of Representatives, the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the Court of Claims, the Court of Commerce, the Court of Customs Appeals, and the Interstate Commerce Commission are in session during the academic year; attorneys also appear daily before the Patent Office, the Pension Office, the General Land Office, and the several Executive Departments of the Government. The opportunities for professional study and for acquiring familiarity with practice, thus presented, are not found elsewhere. Especially is this true in the case of the Supreme Court of the United States, before which the student may hear the arguments of the foremost representatives of the American Bar. Washington offers advantages for the study of patent law and practice which are, of course, unequalled, by reason of the fact that the Patent Office is located in the City.

Historical Sketch.

Georgetown Law School was established in October, 1870, and is one of the oldest law schools in the District of Columbia. From 1870 to 1897 the course of studies prescribed for the degree of Bachelor of Laws covered two years; this was extended to three years in 1897. In 1878 a Postgraduate course, leading to the degree of Master of Laws, was established; special students were admitted beginning with 1878. In 1910 a course in Patent Law was added to the Postgraduate course, and, since that time, the degree of Master of Patent Law has been conferred. On November 30, 1891, the main portion of the present law school building was completed and occupied; in January, 1911, an addition to the original building was erected, which doubled the capacity of the school buildings. At this time a further addition to the law school buildings is in course of erection; this new building will be equal in size to the present buildings, and will contain a large auditorium, additional lecture halls, recitation rooms, and club rooms for student organizations.

System of Instruction.

The system of instruction followed is, in general, the text-book method. However, the advantage derived from the study of approved cases is fully appreciated and major subjects in the course are treated by the text-book method in the first year of study, and by the case book method in the year following. Where a text-book only is employed, leading cases are assigned for study in connection with the text. The student is required to read the daily assignment for each course in advance of the lecture. The lecturer then goes over the ground covered by the text, explaining what is obscure or difficult, and giving practical illustrations of the application of the principles treated. A recitation, in charge of an instructor in law, follows, in which the same matter is again considered; questions based upon the text are put to each student, and he is required to apply principles to concrete cases. The interval between the lecture and the recitation is sufficiently long to enable the student to give additional time and preparation to the subject-matter. There are thus several opportunities to become familiar with each lesson, first, by study in advance of the lecture; second, by the explanation of the lecturer; third, by rereading in preparation for the recitation; and, fourth, in the recitation itself. In the courses treated by the case-book method, selected cases are assigned in advance, and the student is expected to brief the statement of facts and the law of each case in preparing himself upon the lesson assigned. The professor takes up each case in turn in the recitation, requiring the student to give a statement of the facts and of the proposition of law involved; questions are then put upon the particular case, and upon similar statements of fact, with a view to developing a full knowledge of the principle.

The lecture classes at Georgetown Law School are comparatively large, owing to the growth of the School, but, as will appear from the Programme of Instruction, page 171, every class is subdivided, for the purpose of recitations, into smaller sections, each in charge of an Instructor in Law. In this way the student is called upon to recite frequently. The work of these Instructors in Law is pursued under the immediate direction of the Lecturer, as a result of which the instruction in the School on each branch of the law taught, is uniform and consistent. Lecturers and Instructors will be glad to assist students by further individual explanation at any time after the regular class hours.

Entrance Requirements.

Undergraduate Course. As heretofore, the minimum requirement of candidates for admission is a high school education, or its equivalent. At the time admission is sought, graduates of Colleges and High Schools must produce certificates, under the hand and seal of the proper officer of the institution, certifying as to their graduation; evidence of work at Colleges and High Schools must be produced in the same form. These certificates will be kept on file in the School. If evidence of graduation from a College or High School can not be presented, an entrance examination will be required. This examination will cover, in general, the principal subjects taught in a High School, particularly English and American History, Mathematics, Civil Government, Political Economy, English Rhetoric and Composition. A thorough preliminary education as a preparation for the study of law is of the utmost importance, and the entrance examinations are conducted in the interest of prospective students, in order to determine whether their education is such as to fit them for that study. Satisfactory evidence is required by the Faculty of the good moral character of each candidate for admission to the School.

Postgraduate Course. This course is open to graduates of law schools in which the course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws covers three years, and to those members of the bar of jurisdictions in which three years of study are required before admission, who have spent one year in practice after having been admitted. Certificates of graduation or of membership in the bar must be presented at the time admission is sought.

Patent Law Course. This course is open to students of the Senior Class and of the Postgraduate Class, to members of the Bar and to graduates of approved law schools.

Supplementary Courses.

Arrangements are being made so that courses in History, English and American, Economics, Oratory, English Rhetoric and Composition, English Literature, and Logic may be pursued at the Academic Department in Georgetown University, by students desiring such instruction as preliminary to graduation in Law.

The Academic Year.

The academic year 1912-1913 opened on Wednesday, October 2, 1912, at 6.30 p. m., in the Georgetown University Law Building, 506 E Street N. W., in the City of Washington. The year closes on Commencement Day, Monday, June 9, 1913. The academic year 1913-1914 opens on Wednesday, October 1, 1913. The Christmas recess will extend from Saturday, December 21, 1912, to Wednesday, January 1, 1913, inclusive. The Easter recess will extend from Thursday, March 20, 1913, to Sunday, March 23, 1913, inclusive.

Undergraduate Course.

Programme of Instruction.

The course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws at Georgetown Law School covers three school years, and is intended to give the student a thorough training in the fundamental principles of American jurisprudence.

An outline of this course of instruction follows:

First Year.

Criminal Law and Procedure, Professor WRIGHT. First Term; 3 hours a week.

The elements of the common law felonies and misdemeanors and the principal statutory offenses are treated in this course. Special attention is given to the theory of the law of crimes. Supplementing the general course, the subject of criminal procedure is also discussed. Text-book: Clark on Criminal Law.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. John E. Laskey, Mr. C. C. Miller, Mr. Vernon E. West, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Personal Property, Professor EASBY-SMITH. First Term; 3 hours a week.

This course includes an extended consideration of the nature and classes of personal property, the modes of alienating it, and the rights and obligations incident to its ownership. Text-book: Darlington on Personal Property.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. Jos. D. Sullivan, Mr. Charles S. Hillyer, Mr. Conrad Reid, and Mr. Clinton James.

Elementary Law, Professor DOUGLAS. First Term; 1 hour a week.

This course consists in a general survey of the system of American jurisprudence; it is intended to serve as an introduction to the study of law, and to give the student a clear understanding of the relative importance and position of each branch of the law taught later in the course. Text-book: Robinson on Elementary Law.

Contracts, Professor GOULD. Second Term; 3 hours a week.

The fundamental principles of the law of contracts are discussed in detail in this course, and their application illustrated by references to the leading cases on the subject, both English and American. Consideration is also given to the subject of quasi-contracts. Text-book: Hammon on Contracts.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations in this subject are Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Edmund Brady, Mr. Charles J. Murphy, and Mr. Charles S. Hillyer.

Real Property, Professor BAKER. Second Term; 3 hours a week.

A full treatment of the general principles of the law of real property is given in this course, particular attention being paid to the historical side of the subject, and including tenure and seisin, equitable ownership, future estates and interests, rights and obligations incident to ownership, the transfer of rights in land. Text-book: Minor and Wurtz on Real Property.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations in this subject are Mr. William Henry White, Mr. Joseph D. Sullivan, Mr. Conrad Reid, and Mr. Vernon E. West.

Domestic Relations, Professor WRIGHT. Third Term; 2 hours a week.

The law governing the relationships of master and servant, guardian and ward, parent and child, and husband and wife, is considered in this course, particularly the rights of the husband or wife in the property of the other during coverture and in the case of intestacy. Text-book: Tiffany on Domestic Relations.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Charles S. Hillyer, Mr. Paul E. Lesh, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Torts, Professor DOUGLAS. Third Term; 3 hours a week.

The course of lectures on this subject, besides comprising an exposition of the general principles underlying the law of Torts, includes a discussion of the subjects of false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, slander and libel, injuries to family relations, including death by wrongful act, trespass, nuisance, negligence and other kindred subjects. Leading cases illustrative of the various subjects embraced under the general title of Torts will be used by the Professor, and it will be necessary for the student to use both the text-book and the volume of illustrative cases. Text-books: Cooley, Elements of Torts; Chase's Cases on Torts (2d edition).

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. Jos. D. Sullivan, Mr. Conrad Reid, Mr. C. C. Miller, and Mr. Vernon E. West.

Second Year.

Real Property, Professor JOHN J. HAMILTON and Professor HOEHLING. First Term; 4½ hours a week.

Elaborating the course on real property in the first year, in this course it is sought to give the student a thorough acquaintance with the modern law of real property by the case-book method of instruction; part of the period of one hour and a half is devoted to a lecture, and part to a discussion of approved cases, illustrating the more important principles. Text-book: Teideman's Cases on Real Property.

Insurance, Professor O'DONOGHUE. First Term; 2 hours a week.

The essentials of a valid contract of insurance, the leading doctrines regarding the more important principles of the general subject, mistake, misrepresentation and fraud are treated in this course. Text-book: Elliott on Insurance.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Edmund Brady, and Mr. Paul E. Lesh.

Agency, Professor WILSON. First Term; 1 hour a week.

The principles of the law of agency, with references to leading cases, are considered in this course. Text-book: Huffcut on Agency.

Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Edmund Brady, and Mr. Paul E. Lesh conduct the recitations on this subject.

Common Law Pleading, Professor CLABAUGH. Second Term; 3 hours a week.

Special attention is given to the historical side of this subject; the fundamental principles of the common law with respect to actions, the purpose and effect of different pleas and the regular steps in an action at law, from its commencement to judgment, are fully considered. Text-book: Perry on Pleading.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. William Henry White, Mr. George E. Sullivan, and Mr. Clinton James.

Negotiable Instruments, Professor DOUGLAS. Second Term; 2 hours a week.

The lectures on this subject include a detailed discussion of the various kinds of negotiable contracts, their essential ingredients, the parties to them, the law of transfer by endorsement, the rights of holder for value, and actions and defenses. Text-book: Daniel and Douglas on Negotiable Instruments.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. John E. Laskey, Mr. Paul E. Lesh, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Partnership, Professor HOGAN. Second Term; 1 hour a week.

The growth of the law of partnership, and its general principles are carefully studied in this course, with references to leading cases on the subject. Text-book: Mechem, Elements of Partnership.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. John E. Laskey, Mr. Paul E. Lesh, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Equity, Professor GOULD. Third Term; 2 hours a week.

A very thorough and careful consideration of the fundamental principles of equity jurisdiction, its growth and development as a separate system of jurisprudence, including a discussion of equitable remedies. Text-book: Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. William Henry White and Mr. George E. Sullivan, and Mr. Clinton James.

Bankruptcy, Professor JOHN J. HAMILTON. Third Term; 1 hour a week.

A thoroughly practical course on the subject of bankruptcy, based upon an explanation of the Bankruptcy Act, including a consideration of the more important cases.

Evidence, Professor HOEHLING. Third Term; 3 hours a week.

The more important topics in this course include a discussion of the place of evidence in the general system of law, a full analysis of the principal rules of evidence and consideration, particularly, of the competency of witnesses, at common law and by statute, with special reference to the respective functions of the jury and the court. The text of the author is brought down to date by references to leading State and Federal decisions. Text-book: Greenleaf on Evidence (XV. Ed.)

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. John E. Laskey, Mr. Edmund Brady, and Mr. Clinton James.

Third Year.

Equity, Professor GOULD. First Term; 3 hours a week.

A continuation of the course on equity jurisprudence begun in the preceding year, special attention being given to leading cases illustrating the maxims and principles of equity. Text-books: Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence; Shepard's Selected Cases.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. William Henry White and Mr. Ralph D. Quinter.

Equity Pleading and Practice, Common Law Practice, Professor CLABAUGH. First Term; 3 hours a week.

The principles of equity pleading, including the nature and effect of the various pleas, are treated at length in this course; the student is instructed in the practical conduct of a case at law, according to common law practice. Text-book: Fletcher on Equity Pleading.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. Howard Boyd and Mr. George E. Sullivan.

Common Law Pleading, Professor WILSON and Professor O'DONOGHUE. Second Term; 4½ hours a week.

The case-book method of study is employed in this course, with a view to developing a clear understanding of the application of the principles of common law pleading, taught in the second-year class. Text-book: Ames' Cases on Pleading.

Corporations, Professor WRIGHT. Second Term; 3 hours a week.

The law of private corporations is fully treated in this course; their creation, management, powers and dissolution are considered, including the relations and liabilities of stockholders, members and third parties. Municipal corporations and their powers are also considered. Text-books: Clark on Corporations; Shepard's Cases on Corporations.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. Howard Boyd and Mr. Jesse C. Adkins.

Constitutional Law, Professor SHEPARD. Third Term; 2 hours a week.

A careful study of the principles of constitutional law, including a consideration of constitutional history, with references to leading decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States. Text-book: Cooley's Principles of Constitutional Law.

The Instructors in Law assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject are Mr. Howard Boyd and Mr. Jesse C. Adkins.

Wills, Professor HOGAN. Third Term; 1 hour a week.

This course treats of the testamentary disposition of property, real and personal, the essentials of a valid will, and, in general, probate practice and the administration of estates. Text-book: Rood on Wills.

Evidence, Professor BAKER and Professor HOGAN. Third Term; 4½ hours a week.

This course consists in a careful study and analysis of selected cases, illustrating the leading principles of the law of evidence; it is intended to develop a thorough knowledge of this subject, which is essential in the trial of cases. Text-book: Thayer's Cases on Evidence.

Course in Practice.

Special attention is paid to practice court work, with a view to duplicating, as nearly as possible, the conditions surrounding the actual conduct of cases in court.

In order that the student may be in a position to derive the utmost advantage from the practice court, a preliminary course of instruction and practical exercises, extending through one school term of three months, has been established. In this course, the drafting of pleadings, contracts and other legal instruments is taken up in a thoroughly practical manner, and the student is taught how to look up the law and to prepare opinions for clients and briefs for submission to the court. The preparation of cases for trial, and trial procedure, including the impanelling and challenging of jurors, the examination of witnesses, presentation of the law of the case to the court and of the facts to the jury, raising of objections in the course of the trial and their preservation for review on appeal, and the procedure incident to the removal of cases from the trial to the appellate court are considered. The students are also required to prepare legal instruments and pleadings of various sorts, and to criticise, under the supervision of the professor in charge of the course, the papers prepared and submitted by one another.

The practice court system of instruction includes courts of first instance and an appellate court, all of which are presided over by experienced trial lawyers. The courts of first instance hold two sessions weekly, and their work is divided into general and special terms. At special term, motions, demurrers, and all proceedings of an interlocutory or preliminary nature which, in actual practice, ordinarily precede the trial or final hearing upon the merits, are heard and disposed of, while at general term such proceedings are had as are incident to and connected with the trial and final hearing. The practice conforms, in general, to that of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. Cases may be removed to the Court of Appeals from the trial court by writ of error or appeal, conformably to the practice of the United States Supreme Court.

The clerk of the practice court is the clerk of the equity side of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

The Postgraduate School.

The Postgraduate course affords the student an opportunity to round out the legal education received in the Undergraduate course, by a fuller investigation of the fundamental principles of law, the study of comparative jurisprudence, and the continuation, at the same time, of the practical training of the profession. The system of instruction in this course differs from that followed in the Undergraduate course in the method of examination and in the general plan of study. Each lecturer conducts the recitations upon his own subject; at the conclusion of a course of lectures, certain topics are assigned by the lecturer and the student is required to submit, within a specified time, a thesis upon these topics, thus allowing ample time for thorough study of each question under consideration. There is also a course consisting in practical exercises in General Practice, Pleading and Evidence, and a course in Federal Procedure and Practice.

Programme of Instruction.

History and Development of Law and Comparative Jurisprudence, History of English Law, Professor CONRAD.

In these courses a series of lectures is delivered on the history of the development of law, from ancient to modern times, particular attention being given to the growth of the English Common Law, as compared with the Roman or Civil Law, and other systems of jurisprudence.

International Law and Foreign Relations of the United States, History of Constitutional Government, Professor TAYLOR.

In the first of these courses, the fundamental principles of International Law are carefully considered, with special reference to their historical development. By the same method, the principles of constitutional government are developed in such a way as to outline the origin and growth of the English constitutional system in the old land and its reproduction in the new. In a word, the entire process is outlined through which, first, typical English States in America first came into existence; second, through which such States were finally united in the Federal Republic of the United States.

Legal Ethics, Professor HAMILTON.

Consideration is given in this course to the character, equipment, habits and conduct necessary for professional achievement and standing, which should be possessed, cultivated and applied by the lawyer in his relations to the courts, to the profession, to clients and to the public; practical suggestions are also given, which will be helpful to the student entering upon the practice of his profession.

General Practice, Pleading and Evidence, Professor BAKER.

In this course the student will be required to draft not only the different pleadings, both in law and equity, and all motions incident to practice in both courts, but contracts, deeds, leases, and other papers, which come within the practice of the general practitioner. Questions arising on the pleadings prepared by the students will be argued by them, and questions of practice and evidence will be put to the class, and, after proper preparation, every student will be expected to argue on the side assigned to him. Students are also called upon to argue questions ex tempore after they have been fully discussed by the students assigned, and after full discussion a number of students are assigned as a court to decide the case. Each student assigned to a case must present a written brief, and all decisions rendered by the students, as a court, must be in writing.

History and Institutes of Roman Law, Professor SMITH.

The purpose of this course is to indicate in what respects the development of the Roman law resembled and in what respects it differed from that of the English law; to emphasize those doctrines of the Roman law which are of modern interest; and to compare the Roman and the English solutions of similar legal problems. In these respects the lectures supplement the ordinary treatises. Students are advised, before attending the course, to read Ledlie's translation of Sohm's Institutes, or Moyle's Institutes.

Federal Practice and Procedure, Professor BROWNE.

This course deals, in particular, with the Judicial Code (act of March 3, 1911; 36 Stat., 1087; Chap. 231, Public No. 475; "An act to Codify, Revise and Amend the laws relating to the Judiciary") and, in general, with the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts and practice before them.

Railroad Law, Professor YERKES.

The various regulative acts of Congress on the subject of carriers are considered, in general, in this course; the fundamental principles regarding the duties and liabilities of carriers of passengers and of freight are treated at length.

Conflict of Laws, Professor MINOR.

The course begins with a discussion of domicil, and of the proper use of foreign laws in questions involving the status of capacity, marriage, divorce and the fiduciary relations. Next follows the application of foreign laws to the transfers of property, real and personal, in the various forms in which these points present themselves. This is succeeded by an exposition of the law governing foreign contracts in respect to their validity, obligation, interpretation and discharge; of the law governing foreign torts and crimes; and of the law controlling the remedy. The text used is that of the lecturer, Minor on Conflict of Laws.

Natural Law and Canon Law, Professor CONWAY.

The general principles of natural law and of canon law are fully treated in this course; the growth and development of the canon law, as contrasted with that of the common law of England, and the effect of the canon law upon the common law are also considered.

Medical Jurisprudence, Professor WOODWARD.

The lecturer in this course is himself a physician, whose work as Health Officer of the District of Columbia brings him in contact with the trial of cases in court; he also holds the degree of Bachelor of Laws, and Master of Laws from Georgetown Law School. In this course consideration is had of those principles with which the lawyer should be familiar in order to handle properly cases involving questions of medical science.

Course in Patent Law.

PROFESSOR McGILL.

This course has been established for the benefit of those students who may desire to specialize in patent law practice; it is open to members of the Third Year Class and of the Postgraduate Class, to members of the Bar, and to graduates of approved law schools. The course consists in a systematic study of the principles of patent law, including a thorough training in Federal practice and procedure with reference to patent causes. Recitations are conducted by the lecturer from time to time; students are also required, as part of the course, to conduct patent causes, to prepare pleadings, and argue before the lecturer, who sits as a practice court of patent law for this purpose. Special attention is given to the subject of injunctions. The course extends throughout the entire year, and consists of two sessions each week. Inasmuch as the course gives the student a thorough training in practice, members of the Third Year Class who pursue it will not be required to take the regular practice court work required in the Third Year Class.

Special Lectures.

Arrangements are now being made for a special course of six lectures, to be delivered to the entire student body of the Law School, by men of national prominence in judicial and professional life.

Examinations and Ratings.

Regular and punctual attendance of all students at every class exercise is required. Recitations are conducted upon each subject in the course, in conjunction with the lectures; in addition, each branch of the law treated is made the basis of a written examination at the conclusion of the lectures thereon. An average of at least 70 per cent on the written examinations and on the recitations must be attained at the end of each term of the school year, in order that the student may continue with the class, or advance to the next class, as the case may be. Students who fail to obtain a grade of at least 70 per cent in the written examination on more than two subjects in any one school year, will not be permitted to advance with their classes. Students in the Senior Class who fail to obtain a grade of at least 70 per cent in the written examination on two subjects assigned for that Class, will not be entitled to a re-examination and will not be permitted to receive their degree. Candidates for a degree in the Third Year Class must have been in regular attendance for at least one year, and must pass a satisfactory examination on the entire course of study for the Third Year Class.

The Faculty must be satisfied at all times of the serious purpose of every student at the School, and if it be found that any student is not giving proper time and attention to his studies, his name will be promptly dropped from the rolls.

Advanced Standing.

Candidates for advanced standing, that is, those desiring to complete the course in less time than the regular period of three school years, must, at the time admission is sought, submit certificates of previous study at an approved law school, or under the direction of a reputable practitioner. Such certificates must show that the candidate has either passed successfully the required examination upon or has acquired a thorough knowledge of the subjects in the course which have already been covered by the class he desires to enter, up to the time of his registration; otherwise, an examination upon these subjects will be required. An examination will always be required of candidates whose study has been pursued solely under the direction of a practitioner; in no case will a candidate for advanced standing, who has studied only under a practitioner, be admitted to a higher class than the Second Year Class.

Prizes.

The following prizes are offered in the several classes in the Undergraduate and Postgraduate Courses:

First Year Class.

A prize of $50 to the member of the First Year Class maintaining the best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Fay S. Holbrook, of New York, June 4, 1912); a prize of $25 to the member of the First Year Class maintaining the next best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Frank J. Keelty, of Indiana, June 4, 1912).

Second Year Class.

A prize of $50 to the member of the Second Year Class maintaining the best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Ben. A. Matthews, of Georgia, June 4, 1912); a prize of $25 to the member of the Second Year Class maintaining the next best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Horace H. Hagan, of Oklahoma, June 4, 1912).

Third Year Class.

A prize of $75 to the member of the Third Year Class maintaining the best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Wm. E. Leahy, of Massachusetts, June 4, 1912); a prize of $40 to the member of the Third Year Class maintaining the next best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Charles B. Elwell, of Massachusetts, June 4, 1912).

Prizes for Essays.

A prize of $40 is offered to the author of the best essay, upon a legal subject to be assigned by the Faculty, among the members of the Third Year Class; (awarded to David Wiener, of Pennsylvania, June 4, 1912).

A prize of $40 is offered to the author of the best essay, upon any legal subject, to be assigned by the Faculty, among the members of the Postgraduate class (awarded to Robert N. Tracewell, of Indiana, June 4, 1912).

A prize of $25 is also offered, by a friend of the Law School, to the member of the First Year Class submitting the best essay on a legal subject to be assigned by the Faculty, a prize of $15 for the next best essay, and a prize of $10 for the third in order of merit.

Students of the Law School are also entitled to contest for prizes open, in general, to all students of the University.

A prize, donated by the T. and J. W. Johnson & Co., of Philadelphia, of a set of "Smith's Leading Cases," to the author of the best essay upon any legal subject, among the members of the Third and Fourth Year Classes (awarded to Joseph F. Abbott, of Tennessee, June 4, 1912).

A prize, donated by the Edward Thompson Company, of Northport, Long Island, N. Y., of a set of the Encyclopedia of Pleading and Practice, or a set of the First Edition Encyclopedia of Law, or a set of the Second Edition Encyclopedia of Law (as the winner may elect), to the member of the Third Year Class who shall write the best thesis on some legal subject, assigned by the Faculty (awarded to Thomas F. Sullivan, of Massachusetts, June 4, 1912). This prize will not be offered hereafter.

A prize, donated by the American Law Book Company, of New York, consisting of the first thirteen volumes of the "Cyclopedia of Law and Procedure," to the member of the Postgraduate Class who shall write the best graduation thesis, on a legal subject, to be assigned by the Faculty (awarded to Thomas J. Fitzgerald, of New York, June 4, 1912).

The winning prize essays for each school year are suitably bound, the author's name appearing, and are kept in the Library.

Public Speaking.

Realizing the benefit derived from public speaking and extemporaneous debate, the Faculty awards a series of prizes to be contested for by members of the debating societies of the school. There are four preliminary debates during each school year; the best debater in each of these contests is awarded a prize of $25. The four winning debaters chosen in this way participate in a final debate; the prize for the winner of this debate is $50. No student who has engaged in one preliminary debate will be eligible for another preliminary debate. The debating societies are under the general supervision of a member of the Academic Faculty and a member of the Law Faculty, for the purpose of assisting the students in deriving the utmost benefit from the exercises in public speaking.

The debating prizes for the school year 1911-1912 were won by Horace H. Hagan, Oklahoma; Thomas Jamieson, Nebraska; Scott Sanders, Washington, D. C., and John A. Willo, Massachusetts.

Fees and Expenses.

The tuition in the Undergraduate course is $100 a year. With regard to tuition, the academic year is divided into two equal terms, beginning, respectively, on the first Wednesday in October and February; one-half of the tuition is due and payable on the day following the opening of each term. For the accommodation of students, the Secretary is authorized to receive monthly instalments of tuition, but these must be strictly in advance.

The tuition in the Postgraduate course is $100 a year, payable semi-annually, or in monthly instalments in advance, as in the case of the tuition in the Undergraduate course.

The tuition for Special Students is $50 a year, payable semi-annually, or in monthly instalments, as in the Undergraduate and Postgraduate courses.

The tuition for the Patent Law Course alone is $40; there is no extra charge for this course in the case of members of the Third Year and Postgraduate Classes.

A registration fee of $2 is charged each student in the Law School upon enrolment. The fund thus created is set aside for the expenses of the Law Library of the School, and is administered for that purpose as a trust fund on behalf of the students.

The graduation fee, which includes all expenses incident to graduation, is $10.

Students who desire to take one course in the Postgraduate School may do so upon payment of $30.

No deduction can be made for absence from lectures or recitations. Upon enrolment, the payment of the registration fee and tuition for at least one month in advance will be required.

There are no dormitories connected with the Law School. The cost of board and lodging varies ordinarily from $25 to $40 per month, according to the location and appointments selected. As stated, the school is in session for eight months, from October to June. The cost of text-books for each school year is about $30.

Special Students.

Persons who desire to avail themselves of the lectures delivered at the School, but who do not desire to become candidates for a degree, may be enrolled as Special Students, upon the payment of $50 a year, in addition to the regular registration fee. Special students are not required to attend recitations or to take the written examinations; they are not eligible for a degree. Any one desiring to attend the lectures delivered in any one course in the Postgraduate School may do so upon the payment of $30 therefor.

Law Library.

A well selected Law Library, comprising the latest editions of standard text-books, particularly those in use in the School, reports of the Federal courts, and the leading State reports, together with the Reporter System, has been established for the accommodation of students, and is in charge of a competent librarian, with several assistants. In the library will also be found the latest editions of the leading law periodicals and reviews. The library is open on the regular school days from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. As stated, the fund created by payment of the registration fee is set apart for reinvestment in the library.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS.

There are several flourishing student organizations in the School, formed for the purpose of promoting the study of law among their members and of acquiring experience in debate. The membership of the Junior Debating Society is made up from the First and Second Year Classes, and that of the Senior Debating Society from the Senior and Postgraduate Classes. Weekly debates are held by each society, and there are also frequent intersociety debates for prizes offered by the Faculty. The Morris Law Club and the Carroll Law Club are made up of students from the undergraduate classes; members of the Faculty and other prominent members of the Bar of the District of Columbia deliver talks before these clubs.

The Delta Chi, the Phi Alpha Delta, the Sigma Nu Phi, and the Theta Lambda Phi Fraternities have chapters at the School.

The Permanent Secretary of the Class of 1912 is Mr. John R. Dillon, address No. 8 I Street N. E., Washington, D. C.

GENERAL STATEMENT.

Georgetown University consists of the College, the School of Medicine, the School of Law and the School of Dental Surgery. The College, however, comprises in itself three distinct departments, viz: The Graduate School, the Undergraduate School, and the Observatories. Each School or Department is under the direction of its own Dean, and each Faculty has the power of legislating on its own affairs, but this power can be exercised only in subordination to the President and Directors of the University, and subject to their approval.

HISTORY.

The foundation of Georgetown College was projected as early as the year 1785, when the Rev. John Carroll, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore, formed the plan and proposed it to his associates.

On November 13, 1786, the Corporation of Roman Catholic Clergymen, in the Chapter held at Whitemarsh, Md., adopted a series of "Resolves Concerning the Institution of a School," in which it ordered that a School should be erected at Georgetown, Md., and directed the sale of a piece of land belonging to the corporation, in order that the proceeds might be applied to the erection of the first building. Rev. Messrs. John Carroll, James Pellenz, Robert Molyneux, John Ashton, and Leonard Neale were appointed Directors.

Shortly afterwards an appeal was issued, entitled "Proposals to Establish an Academy at Georgetown, Potowmack River, Maryland." In this circular it was stated that "Agreeably to the liberal Principle of our Constitution, the Seminary will be open to students of Every Religious Profession." In 1788 the erection of the first building was undertaken; yet 1789 is commonly considered the year of the foundation of the College, as the deed of the original piece of ground was dated January 23rd in that year. Students were not received before 1791. Upon the reorganization of the Society of Jesus in Maryland in 1805, the Georgetown College, as it had already begun to be called, was transferred to the fathers of that Society, under whose control and direction the University still remains.

An act of Congress, dated March 1, 1815, reads as follows:

"AN ACT

"CONCERNING THE COLLEGE OF GEORGETOWN IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it shall and may be lawful for such persons as now are, or from time to time may be, the President and Directors of the College of Georgetown, within the District of Columbia, to admit any of the students belonging to said College, or other persons meriting academical honors, to any degree in the faculties, arts, sciences, and liberal professions, to which persons are usually admitted in other Colleges or Universities of the United States; and to issue in an appropriate form the diplomas or certificates which may be requisite to testify to the admission to such degree.

"LANGDON CHEEVES,
"Speaker of the House of Representatives.
"JOHN GAILLARD,

"Approved March 1, 1815.

"JAMES MADISON."

Two years later the power of granting degrees, thus acquired, was first exercised.

On March 30, 1833, the Holy See empowered Georgetown College to confer, in its name, degrees in Philosophy and Theology.

The next step in the development of the College was the erection and equipment of a complete Astronomical Observatory in 1842; and in the following year the formal incorporation of the institution was effected by Congress in the following act:

"AN ACT

"To Incorporate Georgetown College, in the District of Columbia:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there be erected in Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, a college for the instruction of youth in the liberal arts and sciences, the name, style, and title of which shall be, 'The President and Directors of Georgetown College.'

"Sec. 2. And be it enacted, That James Ryder, Thomas Lilly, Samuel Barber, James Curley, and Anthony Rey, be, and they are hereby declared to be, a body politic and corporate with perpetual succession in deed or in law to all intents and purposes whatsoever, by name, style and title of 'The President and Directors of Georgetown College,' by which name and title they and their successors shall be competent, at law and in equity, to take to themselves and their successors, for the use of said College, any estate whatsoever, in any messuage, lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, chattels, moneys, and other effects, by gifts, bequests, devise, grant, donations, bargain, sale, conveyance, assurance, or will; and the same to grant, bargain, sell, transfer, assign, convey, assure, devise, declare to use and farm let, and to place out on interest for the use of said College, in such manner as to them, or a majority of them, shall be deemed most beneficial to said institution; and to receive the same, their rents, issues and profits, income and interest, and to apply the same for the proper use and benefit of the said College; and by the same name to sue and be sued, to implead, be impleaded in any courts of law and equity in all manner of suits, actions, and proceedings whatsoever, and generally by and in the same name to do and transact all and every business touching or concerning the premises, Provided, That the same do not exceed the value of $50,000 net annual income, over and above and exclusive of the receipts for the education and support of the students of said College.

"Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the said corporation shall adopt a common seal, under and by which all deeds, diplomas and acts of said College or corporation shall pass and be authenticated, and the same seal, at their pleasure to break and alter, or devise a new one.

"Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That no misnomer of the said corporation shall defeat or annul any donation, gift, grant, devise or bequest to or from the said corporation.

"Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the said corporation shall not employ its fund or income, or any part thereof, in banking operations, or for any purpose or object other than those expressed in the first section of this Act; and that nothing in this Act contained shall be so construed as to prevent Congress from altering, amending, or repealing the same.

"J. W. JONES,
"Speaker of the House of Representatives.
"WILLIE P. MANGUM,
"President pro tempore of the Senate.

"Approved June 10, 1844.

"JOHN TYLER.

"I certify that the above is a true copy from the original act in this department.

"Department of State, November 22, 1844.

"J. C. CALHOUN, Secretary."

The School of Medicine was opened in 1851, and the School of Law in 1870. The Graduate School was in existence as early as 1856, in which year it comprised four resident graduates. The University Hospital was opened in 1898 and the training school for nurses in 1903. In 1901 the first session of the Dental School was held. In 1909 the Seismic Station was erected.

LOCATION AND EXTRINSIC ADVANTAGES.

In its location at the Capital of the nation, Georgetown University enjoys advantages which can hardly be overestimated and which must necessarily increase with the growth of the country. Not only is the city, free as it is from noise, dirt and distracting surroundings of a great commercial center, most favorable to the tranquil and earnest pursuit of study, but it has an unparalleled educational equipment in the great scientific collections and libraries of the Government. By the authority of Congress all such facilities for research and illustration in the Governmental collections are made accessible to the scientific investigators and students of institutions of higher learning in the District of Columbia.

This provision applies to the Library of Congress, the National Museum, the Patent Office, the Bureau of Education, the Bureau of Ethnology, the Army Medical Museum, the Department of Agriculture, the Fish Commission, the Botanical Gardens, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Geological Survey, the Naval Observatory, several hospitals and other departments supplied with special libraries, laboratories and equipment for research. The administration of these bureaus brings together a large corps of scientific workers, and has already made Washington the great scientific as well as political center of the country. One consequence of these conditions is that the scientific societies are numerous and flourishing. Even the presence of the National Government, with its executive, legislative and judicial machinery, is a most powerful agent of education; to be familiar as a matter of daily observation with the workings of the House of Representatives, the Senate, the Supreme Court and the Administration is a privilege and a training which cannot be found elsewhere.

Of all these extrinsic facilities, the various Faculties of Georgetown University make full use, and among her instructors are found not a few of the eminent scholars and scientific men employed in the technical service of the Government.

Her students meet with a cordial reception and careful assistance in their work in the various libraries, museums and scientific bureaus.

To the advantages enumerated above is added the atmosphere of study and research engendered by the presence of the many universities of which Washington is rapidly becoming the seat.

NEEDS OF THE UNIVERSITY.

The ordinary source of income for the University is the fees of the students. During her history she has received donations greater or less in amount, but with all these her present equipment of buildings and educational apparatus has been acquired only by incurring a considerable debt. Even this much could not have been effected, had not the President and Directors, as well as the other Fathers, the Scholastics, and Lay Brothers of the Society of Jesus, given their services to the University without compensation. Under the present administration every effort is being made to diminish this debt. It is hoped that it may be steadily decreased until it is extinguished, so that after that the students' fees may be used entirely to meet the running expenses of the University, and that thus our financial affairs may be put upon a better financial basis.

The more pressing needs of the University are the following:

1. New and more commodious buildings for the Medical and Dental Schools in the immediate vicinity of the College.
2. The extinction of the debt of the Medical School, and the foundation of professional chairs.
3. The extinction of the debt of the Georgetown University Hospital.
4. The foundation of a practical School of Technology to consist at the beginning of at least a School of Civil Engineering, a School of Mechanical Engineering, and a School of Electrical Engineering. This would involve the purchase of ground for the School in the immediate neighborhood of the College, the erection of buildings, the foundation of professorships, and the provision of technological apparatus. Although it is generally known that such a School is not in existence at Georgetown, applications for such instruction are received every year.

5. The erection of a new dormitory building for students of the Law, Medical and Dental Departments.

6. The completion of the Observatory Equipment, and the foundation of a working fund for the Observatory Staff.

7. The foundation of a salary fund for the Physical Director of the Ryan Gymnasium.

8. Funds for the long contemplated and desired removal of the Preparatory School to a place separated from the College.

9. Funds for the completion of the Faculty Building, including a new infirmary for the Faculty and Students. The Faculty now occupy a large part of the present infirmary. On the completion of the Faculty Building with a new infirmary, the present infirmary would be entirely free for the occupation of the students and would be well suited for housing the students of the Junior Section of the Preparatory School until such time as it can be removed to another place.

10. Funds to erect a central heating plant for the College. There are now four independent heat centers. Marked economy would result from such a central heating plant.

All bequests should be made to the "President and Directors of Georgetown College in the District of Columbia."

Acknowledgments.

The President and Directors hereby express their grateful acknowledgments to the following friends and benefactors of the University, and to all others from whom donations and favors were received during the year:

The College.

Georgetown College constitutes one of the four greater divisions of Georgetown University, viz: The College, the Medical Schools, the Law School and the Dental School. The College, however, comprises within itself three distinct departments, the Graduate School, the Undergraduate School and the Astronomical Observatory.

SITE AND SURROUNDINGS.

Georgetown College is situated on Georgetown Heights, twenty minutes ride from the White House, overlooking the city of Washington and the Potomac River, and commanding one of the noblest views in the world. The site is healthful, and the climate mild.

The College buildings are nine in number: 1. The Infirmary. 2. The Faculty Building. 3. The Ryan Hall. 4. The Maguire Building. 5. The Healy Building. 6. The North Building. 7. The Ryan Gymnasium. 8. The Dahlgren Chapel. 9. The Astronomical Observatory. 10. The Seismic Observatory. They present an aggregate frontage of about twelve hundred feet. They are surrounded by grounds comprising seventy-eight acres, a large part of which is occupied by the "Walks," the woodland scenery of which has made them famous.

ACCOMMODATIONS.

There is a large number of private rooms at the disposal of the students, distributed among the following buildings: The Healy Building, Old North Building, Ida M. Ryan Hall, Maguire Building and Mulledy Building. The rooms are all simply furnished, and supplied with heat and light.

None but graduates are allowed to board outside of the collegiate premises, unless with immediate relatives.

In the Healy Building the first, second and third floors are devoted to class-rooms. The College Parlors, the Coleman Museum, the Philodemic Hall and the Gaston Hall are located in the North Pavilion; the Archive Room, the Hirst Reading Room, and the Riggs Library are in the South Pavilion. The fourth and fifth floors are taken up by the students' rooms, of which there are fifty-two, facing east and west.

In the Old North Building the first floor contains the Senior Lecture Room and students' living rooms. The second and third floors are occupied by students' rooms.

The Ida M. Ryan Hall, the splendid gift of Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan, contains the Students' Dining Room and living rooms for students. There are suites of rooms, facing the Potomac, which consist of a study room and two bed rooms opening into a private bath. On each floor there are single rooms, facing east and west, and double rooms facing the Potomac, and facing north and opening on the college quadrangle. The rooms are furnished with desk, chairs, wardrobe, chiffonier, washstand, bed and bedding.

Heat, light and service are supplied for all the students' rooms. The charges for rental of these rooms are given under heading of "Fees and Expenses" on another page.

GENERAL CONSPECTUS OF STUDIES.

The course of studies at Georgetown is carefully and logically graded throughout. The aim of the course is to give the student a complete general and liberal education, which will train and develop all the powers of the mind, and will cultivate no one faculty to an exaggerated degree at the expense of the others. It is intended, too, to impart the broadest possible culture, together with accuracy in scholarship. To attain this end, during the Undergraduate period the course is arranged to train the student in the Arts of Poetry, Literary Criticism and Oratorical Rhetoric, using the Greek and Latin Classics as the basis of instruction together with such of the English Classics as lend themselves to comparative work, the Art of Logic and the Sciences of Rational and Natural Philosophy, to-wit, Metaphysics and Ethics, Mathematics, Mechanics, Physics and Chemistry, giving at the same time the accessory information contained in Geology, the History of Christendom and the History of English Literature; and finally adding the accomplishment of one other Modern Language. Hereby it is hoped to develop the faculties of accurate observation and exact expression, logical reasoning and aesthetic taste, of conservative theorizing and imaginative invention, of a sure grasp of the meaning of language, of a power of expression that is creative, convincing and a motive to human action, a familiarity with the canons of classic utterance from the models of antiquity such as will help the students to measure up their own speech and composition to the best of critical taste. All this is supplemented by the foundations of such information and finish as become a youth of nascent culture and Christian manhood.

The exacting and comprehensive nature of this course may fitly form a subject for comment. It is believed that its requirements are seldom equalled. As an indication of the labor demanded for the successful completion of the course, it may be stated that the amount of time spent in class by all the students varies from twenty to twenty-five hours weekly. To prepare for these classes and recitations, obligatory study for about twenty-three hours per week is exacted. Moreover, students who aim at a high standing, spend much time in study in addition to that which is of obligation.

It is presumed that a man of fair capacity who has conscientiously followed this curriculum under capable professors will be possessed of trained and cultivated faculties, and will have a considerable amount of positive knowledge in every department of learning. He will thus be in touch and intelligent sympathy with progress in every field of intellectual activity, and be saved as far as possible from narrowness and superficiality. Such an education serves, it is believed, as the best foundation for special training in any branch which the student, with his mind now mature and disciplined, may decide to take up.

It has been the experience of a century or more at Georgetown that a careful training in the classic languages of Latin and Greek have resulted in the development of the mental faculties of the student. It has yet to be demonstrated that there has been found an adequate substitute of equal educational power. Nay, it has been openly confessed that the omission of the classical languages as a substantial part of a college curriculum has resulted disastrously for liberal education.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION.

One of the most essential necessities for success in educational work is the possession of natural, thorough and effective methods of teaching. It is necessary, too, that these methods should be uniform in spirit throughout the school, employed equally by all teachers under whom the student may come. In this respect Georgetown enjoys peculiar advantages. Her teaching is guided by the principles laid down in the famous Ratio Studiorum. This body of rules and suggestions has been elaborated by centuries of experience, and has been judged worthy of attentive study and hearty approbation by the greatest scholars. It is a noteworthy fact that many of the recently devised methods of teaching, such as the Natural, the Inductive and similar plans, are in reality merely repetitions of the devices recommended long ago in the Ratio Studiorum.

A little careful reflection will justify the traditional training in the liberal arts of grammar, poetics and rhetoric, the sciences of mathematics, mechanics, physics and chemistry, with systematic rational philosophy, as the proper means to accomplish the above development of a student's mental faculties to fullness of adolescent power.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICS.

The Department of Physics occupies the ground and first floors of the Maguire Building. A corridor runs through the center of the first floor dividing it into equal parts. Facing the quadrangle on the north is a spacious lecture room, the rooms on the south side being devoted to work shops. On the ground floor are the cabinet and a well-arranged laboratory for the use of the students.

DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY.

The Chemistry Department is situated on the ground floor of the Healy Building and consists of lecture rooms and laboratories. The lecture rooms are well equipped with all the necessary instruments to demonstrate by experiment the principles given in the lectures. In the laboratories each student is assigned a desk for his individual work; each desk is fitted with drawer and locker and independent drainage and water and gas supply, while all necessary chemicals and apparatus are at hand.

BIOLOGY.

The nucleus of a biological collection exists in the College, consisting of a collection of birds, fishes, shells and plants, together with biological charts and skeletons. At present biology is not a course required by the Bachelor's Degree, but in order to meet the requirements of most of the Medical Schools of the country, a special laboratory has been fitted out offering accommodations for twenty students. The course comprises lectures, recitations and laboratory exercises.

THE COLEMAN MUSEUM.

As early as the year 1840 the collections in Natural History under the care of Fathers James Curley and T. Meredith Jenkins, had become sufficiently extensive to warrant the setting apart of a special room for their preservation and exhibition. Here they remained until 1889, when prior to the Centenary Celebration, they were transferred to their present quarters, in the north pavilion of the main building. To this hall, by decree of the Faculty, was given the name of James V. Coleman, '69, in acknowledgment of his distinguished benefactions to the College. It is a large, well-lighted room, fitted with cases of cherry wood.

The various collections have been rearranged and displayed and a complete catalogue of the Museum prepared.

Particular attention has been given to the mineral collection, which embraces specimens illustrating the entire field of Mineralogy. Besides the exhibition series, numbering about three thousand specimens, there is a working collection carefully determined and arranged in drawers for the convenience of the classes. A feature of this department is the collection of minerals found in the District of Columbia by the late Mr. John W. Langdale, and presented by him to the Museum. The collection contains many species not previously known to exist in this locality. Mr. Langdale also donated several hundred specimens to the general collection, and always placed at the disposal of the Curator his rare skill as a mineralogist.

In Geology and Paleontology, likewise, there are excellent collections, the rocks and fossils, arranged stratigraphically occupying an entire double row of cases. Notable among the latter is the unusual number of specimens of the remains of vertebrates, many collected in Alaska. A special building is needed for the proper display of the articles in the museum, which is now overcrowded.

THE ART AND HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS.

The College possesses a valuable collection of works of art, and a number of Maryland Colonial relics. It has long been the wish of the Faculty to increase these collections and give them the prominence they deserve.

Among the paintings are several works of merit by ancient and modern masters, two mosaic pictures of great beauty and value, several busts in marble or bronze, an admirable portrait of the Founder of the College, Archbishop John Carroll, painted by Gilbert Stuart, and presented by Judge P. Ord. A full length portrait of Mrs. Henry S. Lehr, painted by Muller Ury, adorns the first parlor.

In the room of the Philodemic Society, which has been newly decorated and furnished, is a series of portraits and photographs of distinguished alumni. It is hoped that they will add to this collection from time to time.

George D. Mackey, Esq., of New York, presented forty-five engravings, mezzotints, coppers, photographs, etc., of unusually large size, collected abroad, and embracing signed Dorés, Martins, etc.

William Vincent McGrath, Jr., '87, decorated many of the recitation halls with a gallery of forty-two murillo-tints mounted in highly artistic frames.

THE BEAUCHAMP HUGHES ART CABINET.

The Beauchamp Hughes Art Cabinet, with its rare collection of precious laces, pictures, ancient manuscripts, bronzes, china, and bric-a-brac, is much admired.

THE RIGGS MEMORIAL LIBRARY.

The liberal spirit of the late Mr. E. Francis Riggs, of Washington, has furnished the College collection of books with a fitting home, in the South Pavilion. A tablet erected by the Faculty attests the devotion with which the founder dedicated his gift to the memory of his father, the late Mr. George W. Riggs, and his brother, Mr. Thomas Lauranson, once a student of the college.

The central reading room is lighted from the sides and ceiling, and, since the introduction of electricity, is available at all hours. The alcoves are designed to afford shelf-room for 104,000 volumes, and are furnished with comfortable appliances for study and consultation.

The collection of books is estimtaed at more than 100,000. Among these are many rare, curious and unique works. One hundred volumes printed between the years 1472 and 1520; three manuscripts anterior to the fifteenth century, and others of later periods, together with a number of fac-similes, such as the Duke de Loubat's splendid reproductions in photochromography of Ancient Aztec MSS., interest the visitor.

In the department of Fine Arts, the taste and liberality of the Rev. James J. Chittick, of Hyde Park, Mass., are building up a notable collection of books embracing galleries of paintings, histories and treatises dealing with art and biographies of the great masters.

It will afford librarians and bibliophiles particular pleasure to find in the Riggs illustrations of many nice points of their specialty in editions, bindings, bookplates, etc. Among the libraries incorporated in it is that of the historian, John Gilmary Shea, LL.D., which is valuable for American and Indian languages.

THE RIGGS MEMORIAL LIBRARY EXTENSION.

The accumulation of books in recent years and the prospective growth of the Library made additional space necessary. Accordingly the late Mr. E. Francis Riggs continued his generosity of the past by the creation of a stack in the large hall, sixty by forty feet, situated beneath the main Library. This is calculated to hold seventy thousand volumes. The floor of the new room was strengthened and rendered fireproof by means of reinforced concrete, and a stack of steel and glass with numerous electric lights installed. An ornamental staircase communicates with the Library above.

In this extension are placed the collection of Dr. John Gilmary Shea, rich in Americana, ecclesiastical chronicles and Indian languages, the entire division of History, and what will prove of deep interest, collections pertaining to the history of Georgetown University and the scientific and literary products of its professors and scholars. Moreover it furnishes material, conveniences and facilities to visiting authors and writers to whom a cordial welcome for consultation and research is always extended; in fact, no better extension could have been contrived as a magnified study for those who wish to delve among the historical treasures of the Library.

THE MORGAN MARYLAND COLONIAL HISTORY ENDOWMENT.

LIBRARIAN: REV. EDWARD I. DEVITT, S. J.

Through the generosity of James Ethelbert Morgan, there has been established a fund for the prosecution of research in Maryland Colonial history and the history of the District of Columbia. The ground floor of the library building is entirely devoted to this work. It contains an archive room which is as strictly fireproof and strong as engineering skill could devise and is large enough to contain the documents of centuries to come. Its present value in authentic papers is incalculable. Old Maryland families who wish to safeguard for future generations their family papers and documents, find our archive room an appropriate and safe place of deposit. Beside the archive room, is an excellent Maryland Colonial Library which is being continually enlarged from the original productive fund and by gifts from those interested in the history of Maryland and the District of Columbia. This room also contains facilities for study and examination of papers and documents.

THE HIRST LIBRARY.

The students of the senior division owe a debt of gratitude to Anthony A. Hirst, LL. D., of Philadelphia. He has had erected the bookstack of oak and iron in the hall of the south pavilion which serves them as their library. This contains about 6,000 volumes selected with the view of furnishing the student with the means of reference as well as entertainment. Combined with it is the reading room in which newspapers from the chief cities of the country, together with the leading reviews and magazines, are kept on file. Both are open to graduate and undergraduate students, subject to a fee, necessary to defray ordinary expenses.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline in force at Georgetown is paternal. It has in view the safeguarding of those hours of study so necessary to prepare for attendance at class, and the punctual and regular attendance at the various College exercises, which is required to produce that intellectual and moral training which it is Georgetown's aim to impart.

To safeguard their punctual and regular attendance at class and other College exercises hour by hour from the very beginning to the very end of the year is a more difficult matter, but one of the utmost importance. What is learned from the living voice of the teacher is acquired more thoroughly and more completely. The friction of mind with mind in the class room, the work of emulation and work in concert, the proposal of difficult points not explained by the text book and their solution, the repetition in public of the whole lesson are some of the more important agencies at work during the hour of class, which cannot be well supplied out of class, and so an hour of class lost is a distinct and in some sense an irreparable loss. And it is not only a loss of mental training, it is a serious menace to the regularity of College discipline. The absence of one suggests, perhaps encourages, the absence of another, and so gradually a noticeable absenteeism arises which enervates regular attendance and discourages the teacher in his efforts to impart knowledge to his whole class. Hence it is that leave of absence from College during term time will never be granted except for the most imperative reasons, on the written request of the parent or guardian with the endorsement of the prefect of studies and the prefect of discipline and at the sole discretion of the President. Parents are earnestly requested to co-operate with us in our work of maintaining regular attendance at class from the very first hour to the very last hour of the year. Hence they are not expected to request that their sons should be exempted from class when they come to visit Washington, nor are they supposed to ask that their sons may go to their homes during term time, except for the most imperative reasons, as mentioned above. There is a special reason why parents should not request that their sons should be absent over Sunday. It is that on Sunday morning the formal religious influence of the college is exerted by means of sermons and sodalities. They are requested to see that their sons return promptly at the beginning of the term, and to insist that they remain to the very end. Should they act otherwise a painful situation is created for the President of the University. His duty to Georgetown requires him not to accede to the request that has been made, and yet this makes him seem to antagonize the parent before his son, and this tends to belittle the parent's authority in his son's eyes. The regulations which have been made for the conduct of athletic sports have only in view the purpose of safeguarding the hours of study and of the hours of class from interruption. It is thought that a student who passes through the discipline above outlined will graduate from Georgetown an educated gentleman disciplined in mind and heart for the business of life.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

Religious instruction is considered of the first importance in education, but students not of the Catholic faith are exempt from the instruction given at the College.

Christian Doctrine is one of the regular class recitations, lectures being given in each class. The matter is so divided for the different classes that in the four years of college the student will cover the whole ground of Catholic faith in rational fashion. In addition a weekly instruction of one-half hour is given all the college students together along some line of Christian Morals, so arranged as to give the student a clear understanding of the same before he graduates. A Gold Medal is awarded at the end of the year to the author of the best paper on the matter of these lectures.

Further instruction is given to such as have need of it, or are preparing for the Sacraments. For the development of piety there is a Sodality which meets weekly, and a Georgetown center of the Apostleship of Prayer; while for the promotion of practical charity there is a College Conference of St. Vincent de Paul. All Catholic students are expected to approach the Sacraments at least once a month.

THE CHAPEL OF THE SACRED HEART.

In the College Quadrangle stands the Chapel of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, measuring 109 feet in extreme length, and varying in breadth from 40 to 60 feet. This structure is the generous gift of the wife of an alumnus, Mrs. John Vinton Dahlgren (Mrs. Henry Symes Lehr), nee Elizabeth Drexel. The Chapel was consecrated on Friday, June 9, 1893. Its seating capacity is about 500. The College thus possesses a beautiful edifice, wherein the services of the Church may be performed with fitting solemnity and dignity.

SESSIONS AND HOLIDAYS.

The Academic Year is divided into two terms:

The first term in 1914-1915, will begin September 16, 1914, and will end January 31, 1915.

The Christmas recess begins on December 22nd (11.00 A. M.), and ends on January 3rd (6.00 P. M.). The Easter recess extends from Wednesday, in Holy Week, to the Wednesday after Easter.

There is no class on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons, nor on days of general religious or National observance.

The classes begin at 9 A. M. and continue until 12. They are resumed at 1 and continue until 3 P. M., with intermission between classes.

EXAMINATIONS AND PROMOTIONS.

A general examination in all classes is held in writing toward the close of each term. Supplementary oral examinations are also exacted.

Promotions ordinarily take place at the beginning of the first term. They will rarely be made at any other time.

AWARDS AND REPORTS.

The prizes, at the Annual Distribution in June, are awarded to those who, by their class exercises during the year and the excellence of their examinations, attain the required number of marks. Absentees are not allowed to make up marks for honors. Students, therefore, who remain at home beyond the period allotted for vacation or recess cannot expect to hold distinguished places in their classes, and students who withdraw before the final examinations will not be promoted.

Besides the Annual Distribution of Awards in the Undergraduate School, the Faculty and students are assembled at the beginning of every month, when the marks and standing of the students in their respective classes for the preceding month are publicly proclaimed, and testimonials awarded to those who have attained the prescribed degree of excellence.

Four reports of the standing in class, the progress and general conduct of every student are sent to his parents or guardian every year, to wit: at the end of November, after the mid-year examinations, at the end of April and after the final examinations in June.

A notification of failure will be sent at the end of each month to the parents of those students who are not doing passing work in any subject.

Students holding scholarships must maintain in all classes an average of seventy per cent.

PRIZES OPEN FOR GENERAL COMPETITION.

ACADEMIC COSTUME.

The University cap and gown are worn by the Senior Class of the College, and on the more solemn academic occasions their use is obligatory. All graduates of the University are entitled to wear the complete academic costume, consisting of gown, cap and hood. All members of the Faculty who hold a degree from another institution of learning may wear the hood proper to the corresponding degree of this University.

It is hoped that at all commencements and other gatherings of an academic character this right will be exercised by those possessed of it.

The hood indicates in every case the wearer's degree. The Bachelor's hood is ten inches shorter than the Master's, while the Doctor's hood, of the same length as the Master's, is attached to a panel of the same material as that of the hood itself. The department in which the degree was taken is pointed out by the color of the edging, white designating Arts and Sciences; blue, Philosophy; purple, Law; green, Medicine; scarlet, Theology, etc. The interior of the hood is lined with the College colors, blue and gray, in silk.

In the foregoing and all other particulars, the hood adopted by Georgetown follows the intercollegiate agreement.

GRADUATE SCHOOLS.

The first record of graduate students in residence is found in the catalogue of 1855-6. In that year there were four such students. The catalogue of this year thus describes the course that was pursued: "Students who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course may in a second year apply to Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics will embrace the fundamental principles of Civil, Political and International Right, and a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the study of Natural History."

In the year 1905-6 all scholarships in the Graduate School were withdrawn. In the year 1906-7 a rule was adopted that only graduates of colleges whose requirements for the A. B. are substantially the same as those of Georgetown would be received and that graduate students in residence should be subject to the general regulations of undergraduate resident students. Under these conditions, there have been very few suitable candidates for the Graduate School. It is obvious that courses cannot be provided and professors supplied unless an adequate number of students matriculate. Hence for the year 1914-15 the following general regulation will be in force: Graduate students desiring to matriculate in the Georgetown University Graduate School must signify their intention to the Prefect of Studies before July 1, 1914.

Ou August 1, 1914, should the number of those who desire to matriculate warrant it, announcement of the courses to be offered in the Graduate School for 1914-15 will be made to those who have made application to the Prefect of Studies.

The Observatory.

REV. JOHN T. HEDRICK, S. J., Director.

The Observatory stands on an eminence at a distance of about four hundred yards from the College. The main building is sixty feet long and thirty feet wide, and is divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a nine-inch photographic transit instrument, with collimators, by Saegmuller, of Washington. In the Western room is mounted a transit instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long and has a four-and-one-half-inch object-glass. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, surmounted by a rotary dome eighteen feet in diameter. Here is erected the twelve-inch equatorial.

In the room below the dome is the library containing the observations and other publications of nearly all the observatories in the world.

Under the library is the clock room, with four pendulum clocks and two chronometers, chronograph, and a switchboard from which the electrical connections with all the instruments are made. A special line connects the switchboard with the Western Union telegraph service.

All the instruments and rooms are furnished with electric light. The electrical apparatus of the observatory is worked by a storage battery which is charged from the same current by means of a dynamo and transformer. This new plant was set up in the basement of the observatory by Rev. Richard J. Martin, S. J.

A separate dome, twelve feet in diameter, on the southwest brow of the hill, shelters the old equatorial, by Trouton & Simms, which has an aperture of nearly five inches.

An extension added to the eastern side of the main building contains an instrument for the determination of the variations of latitude; the photographic zenith telescope.

The observations of the year have been directed principally toward the determination of the period of variable stars.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

The annual publications of the observatories of the world have been received as in former years. Among these the international astrographic charts form the most valuable part.

The warmest thanks of the Observatory are tendered to all benefactors and donors.

The Seismological Observatory.

REV. FRANCIS A. TONDORF, S. J., Director.

CHARLES J. RAMAGE, S. J., Assistant.

The Seismological Observatory, originally founded through the generosity of Mr. Patrick H. O'Donnell, A.B. '92, A.M. '93, LL.B. '94, has been further equipped through the continued kindness of the friends of the University. A new cave has been located beneath the quadrangle, measuring 12 feet 4 inches width, 30 feet 10 inches length, and 11 feet height. Care has been taken to make this home of the new instruments both heat and damp proof. The present equipment consists of an astatic horizontal seismograph after Wiechert, carrying a stationary mass of 200 kilos, also a vertical seismograph of the same type of 80 kilos mass. The latest additions are two Bosch-Omori pendulums of 25 kilos mass each and two conical pendulums, after Dr. Mainka, of 130 kilos mass each. A concrete building, situated on observatory hill, at an altitude of 159 feet above sea level, shelters a Bosch-Omori photographic instrument with pendula of 200 grams each. The time is automatically registered on these instruments by four contact clocks, noting minutes and hours. These clocks are corrected by wireless signals received from the United States Radiographic Station, Arlington, Va. An 80 kilos horizontal seismograph of the Wiechert type has been loaned by this observatory to the Crocker Land Expedition to the North Polar Regions with a view to ascertaining the seismicity of the Far North.

The observatory is in telegraphic communication with other seismic stations of importance as also with the press agencies. The Director, while expressing his warmest thanks to all benefactors and especially to Messrs. P. H. O'Donnell, A. B. '92, Harry Brown, '11, Peter Mallon, ex-'13, John O'Brien, of Philadelphia and Henry Boyle, of Fond du Lac, Wis., would indicate the necessity of the endowment of a fund to cover the running expenses of the plant.

Organizations.

Sodality of Our Lady Immaculate.

This Sodality is composed of Catholic students, mainly of the Undergraduate School. It is the oldest Sodality of the Blessed Virgin in this country, having been organized before 1795. Its object is the cultivation of a religious spirit among its members and the practice of devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Conference of St. Vincent De Paul.

A conference of this society was organized among the students in the year 1889-'90 under the title of the Conference of St. Francis de Sales, of Georgetown College, and on the 25th of January, 1892, it was formerly aggregated to the Society as an Aspirant Conference. Its purpose is primarily not only the actual relief of the poor in the neighborhood of the College, but also the training of its members in the spirit and methods of this admirable organization.

Rev. John B. Creeden, S. J.	Spiritual Director
William H. Prendergast, '14	President
Bernard S. Brady, '14	Vice-President
Howard F. Eldridge, '14	Recording Secretary
William C. Martens, '14	Treasurer

St. John Berchmans' Society.

This Society is of long standing in the College. It has for its object the fostering of an especial devotion in assisting at the altar in all religious ceremonies. Membership is restricted to students of the Undergraduate classes.

The Dramatic Association.

Dramatics, both in theory and in practice, have ever figured as a factor of considerable importance in Jesuit college life. Realizing fully the educational value of the art histrionic, the pioneer members of the historic Jesuit order from the very start accorded the drama, as an adjunct to oratory and public speaking, a foremost position in their time-honored curriculum known as the "Ratio Studiorum." This original stand has been carefully maintained in the traditions of the order and for over three hundred and fifty years students of Jesuit colleges have been presenting their various plays with unfailing regularity.

The rehearsals are held in Gaston Hall and the performances take place at one of the Washington theatres.

ATHLETICS.

The position of Georgetown on the question of Athletic Sports among our students is that they are a legitimate source of recreation, of healthful exercise, of generous rivalry and a manly spirit, in a word that they are a useful means for the physical and moral development of the students. The College therefore, has put within reach of students whatever will make for these purposes, and has set such restrictions as will prevent, as far as may be, the abuse of college sport to the detriment of scholarship, manliness, and gentlemanly courtesy. Our idea of intercollegiate competition in the field of sport is to bring such contests as closely as possible to the model of one gentleman playing with another for a gentleman's recreation. In pursuit of this ideal, the authorities of the University have moved steadily toward the elimination of excess, brutality, commercialism and ungenerous rivalry in an overweening desire to win.

The practical system of athletics in vogue at Georgetown is wholly under the management of the students subject to the supervision of the Faculty Director of Athletics. They have been organized for this purpose into the Georgetown University Athletic Association, incorporated according to the laws of the District of Columbia.

The functions of the Faculty Director of Athletics have been defined by the President of the University as follows:

"His duty shall be solely to prevent abuses that may arise in the student conduct of athletic affairs. It shall be his duty to make sure that none but bona fide students take part in athletic sports; that no favoritism is exercised in the selection of the various teams; that the financial officers of the associations give adequate bonds for the proper handling of the funds committed to their charge; that the Constitution of the Athletic Association is faithfully carried out and that annual financial statements of receipts and expenditures are published through the proper channels.

"The Faculty Director of Athletics will have no direct relations with the members of the various teams. In all his duties he will deal directly with the officials of the Athletic Association, for example, in regard to questions of eligibility, selections of members of the various teams, etc."

The following concrete rulings have been given by the President of the University to prevent the undue encroachment of athletics upon study:

I. ELIGIBILITY.

Faculty Rule of Eligibility.

No one is eligible as a candidate for any athletic team, who is not in good standing as a bona fide student of the University. The sole judge as to whether a man is such a bona fide student or not is the Faculty Director of Athletics. The President's concept of a bona fide student is of one who comes to the University primarily to acquire its intellectual training and engages in sport solely for sport's sake, to relax the mind and improve the body, and to fit both alike for more strenuous and prolonged mental effort. One, therefore, whose primary object in coming to Georgetown is to study, and who only engages in athletics when they are not detrimental to study, and only to relax his mind and improve his body, is a bona fide student. Hence one who has been induced to come to Georgetown by some compensation of pecuniary value, in order that he may engage in athletics, is not a bona fide student. One who engages in athletics in spite of the written disapprobation of his professor or professors is not a bona fide student. One whose athletic work unfits his mind and body for mental work is not a bona fide student.

In each and every case the Faculty Director ought to weigh all the circumstances carefully and decide whether a man is a bona fide student or not, according to his best judgment, without fear or favor, having in view only the keeping far from Georgetown even the suspicion of commercialism and professionalism.

A man before being accepted as a candidate for any team must file with the manager written evidence of his good standing in his department; this is to be presented to the Faculty Director. He in turn is to endorse or reject the statement and return it to the manager not later than forty-eight hours before any contest in which it is desired to have the man compete.

When a man has been declared eligible according to the Faculty rule, 'he may be made amenable to any other rules not in conflict with the above, which the Athletic Association may choose to formulate.'

II. OUT OF TOWN GAMES.

1. The schedule arranged for each of the departments known as Foot Ball, Field and Track, Rowing and Basket Ball must not involve absence from Washington for more than two days on which classes are usually held, and the contests must take place on Saturdays or on National or State Holidays.

The schedule arranged for Base Ball must not involve absence from Washington for more than four days on which classes are usually held, and the games must be played either on Saturdays or on National or State Holidays.

2. The Foot Ball, Base Ball, Basket Ball and Relay Teams, and also the Crew, shall have contests only with other University, College, or Academic teams or crews, and the track contestants only at intercollegiate or interscholastic meetings.

3. In all matters pertaining to Faculty control the various managers must deal with the Faculty Director of Athletics.

4. All regulations contained under the heading Athletics, pp. 76-82 of the General Catalogue of 1905-1906, not in conflict with the preceding regulations, are to remain in full force for 1913-1914.

III. THE TRAINING TABLE at the College has been abolished. A training table outside the College has been found inexpedient.

In addition to the Departments of sport managed by the Athletic Association, there is a Billiard Association and a Lawn Tennis Association under student control.

Since the construction of the Ryan Gymnasium a competent Physical Director has been provided by the College. He superintends the physical drill and gymnastic exercise of the students, subjects each of those who wish to make use of the gymnasium to a physical examination and prescribes for each that kind and amount of gymnastic exercise which is necessary to his health and general physical development. A fee of ten dollars is imposed upon all the college students for the use of the gymnasium; students from other departments of the University are also admitted to the use of the gymnasium on payment of the same fee. In this connection the President of the University has issued the following ruling:

"No one is to use the floor of the gymnasium or the apparatus installed thereon or the professional services of the Physical Director, who has not paid the gymnasium fee. Certified candidates for the Crew, Nine, Eleven and Track Team may use the Varsity Rubbing Room, Locker Room and Showers; candidates for the Crew, properly certified, may have use of the Rowing Room."

The Faculty Director of Athletics at the University is Mr. Francis X. Anglim, Ph.D.

The Officers of the Athletic Association for 1913-1914 are:

Charles J. McLoughlin, '14	President
Charles Duffy, '14	Secretary
Delphin V. Rodriguez, '14	Treasurer
Edmund E. Barrett, '15	Manager of Football
Edmund J. O'Boyle, '15	Assistant Manager of Football

COURSE OF STUDIES.

The courses outlined below are all prescribed courses with the exception of the topics enumerated under the heading "ELECTIVES" for Senior and Junior year, one only of which is prescribed, and the Modern Language prescribed for Freshman year, which may be, at option, either French, German or Spanish.

Senior Year.

PHILOSOPHY.

COURSE 1.—PSYCHOLOGY: (Five hours a week for the first term.)

Lectures, repetitions and circles. Text-book, Russo, Summa Philosophica. References: Jouin, S. J., Compendium Logicae et Metaphysicae,—Maher, S. J., Psychology (Stonyhurst Series).

Life in general. Sensitive Life. Outer and inner senses. The Human Soul. Its nature: simple, spiritual. Unity of the Soul. Its Origin. Immortality. Evolution. Human Intelligence. Origin of Ideas. The Will. Liberty of the Will, etc.

COURSE 2.—NATURAL THEOLOGY: (Five hours a week for one term).

Lectures, repetitions and circles. Text-book, Russo, Summa Philosophica. References: Jouin, S. J., Compendium Logicae et Metaphysicae,—Boedder, S. J., Natural Theology (Stonyhurst Series).

Proofs of the existence of God. His essence. Examination of Pantheistic systems. The divine immutability, immensity, eternity. The divine intellect and will. Moral attributes of God. His Omnipotence. Divine Providence.

COURSE 3.—ETHICS: (Five hours a week for two terms).

Text-book, Cathrein, Elementa Philosophiae Moralis.

References: Russo, De Philosophia Morali Praelectiones,—Rickaby, S. J., Moral Philosophy (Stonyhurst Series), Poland, S. J., Fundamental Ethics,—Coppens, S. J., Moral Philosophy.

(a) General Ethics. The moral agent. The moral act. Ultimate end of man. Hedonism and Utilitarianism. End of present stage of existence. Moral evil and moral good. Norm of morality. Merit and demerit. Natural Law. Its existence, properties, sanction. Kant's categorical imperative. Positive Law. Conscience. Its binding power. Rights of man.

(b) Special Ethics. Individual rights and duties. Necessity of religion. Suicide. Charity and Justice. Freedom of Conscience. Righ of self-defense. Ownership. Socialism. Society in general. The family. Marriage. Emancipation of women. Parental right. Slavery. The State. Origin of the State. Hobbes, Rosseau. Constitution of the State. Church and State. The School Question. Liberty of the Press, etc.

HISTORY OF PHILOSOPHY: (Two hours a week).

Greek and Graeco-Roman Philosophy. Rise and growth of Scholastic System. Transition period to modern thought. Locke and Materialism. Kant and Idealism. The Evolution Schools.

EVIDENCES OF RELIGION: (Two hours a week for two full terms).

Text-book, Wilmer, Handbook of the Christian Religion. Lectures in review of the whole ground covered in the three preceding years.

GEOLOGY: (Three hours a week for one full term).

Text-book, Le Conte, Compend. of Geology. Lectures on Dynamical, Structural and Historical Geology.

ASTRONOMY: (Three hours a week for one full term).

Celestial Mechanics, Descriptive Astronomy, Application of the General Principles of Trigonometry, Astronomical Instruments, Observations.

ELOCUTION: (One-half hour a week for two full terms). The course consists of speaking before the upper classes in Gaston Hall with mutual criticism as well as instruction and correction by a presiding Instructor. Public work in annual contest and in productions of Dramatic Society.

Elective Studies for Senior.

Three hours a week for two full terms must be devoted to one or more of the following subjects.

Classes will be organized for each of these subjects if the number of students is sufficient.

I. BIOLOGY: (Three hours a week for one term).

(a) Micrometry. Sectioning. Mounting. Media and Re-agents.

(b) Structure of living beings. Morphology. Functions of living beings. Physiology. Organs, tissues, cells. Morphology of the cell. Protoplasm. "Vital force"—the soul. Cytogenesis. Differentiation of tissues. Nutrition. Reproduction. Alteration of generations. Spontaneous generation. (Facts, conclusions.) The Origin of Species.

(c) Laboratory work on plants and animals.

II. JURISPRUDENCE: (Three hours a week for both terms).

Law in General.—The Right of Private Property.—Estates in Real Property.—Real Estates in Real Property.—Personal Estates in Real Property.—Time of Enjoyment of Estates in Real Property.—Title to Estates in Real Property.—Estates in Personal Property.—Title by Gift.—Title by Contract.—Agency.—Partnership.

Second Term:

Private Wrongs.—Proceedings in an Action at Law.—Evidence.—Equitable Remedies.—Crimes.—Degrees of Crime.—Relation of Criminal Actor to Criminal Act.—Criminal Procedure.—Nature and Function of a State.—Subjects and their Relations to the State.

III. EXPERIMENTAL PHYSICS: (Three hours a week.) Laboratory work.

This course is intended for those who wish to extend their knowledge of Physics and particularly of experimental methods, and is arranged with a view to meeting the requirements of medical and technical schools. The course is based on Ames and Bliss' Laboratory Manual and comprises quantitative work in mechanics, heat, sound, light and electricity. Particular stress is laid on accuracy in observation and in the proper reduction of experimental data.

IV. ORGANIC CHEMISTRY: (Three hours a week.)

This course, while of general interest, is arranged chiefly to meet the requirements of those who intend to take up the study of medicine after they have finished their college course. In it the student may acquire that knowledge of elementary organic chemistry which is required by medical schools at the present time. The course, which treats first of the analysis and purification of organic compounds, embraces the paraffins, together with their halogen derivatives, alcohol, ethers, aldehydes and ketones, acids, esters and the amines. Special attention is given to the study of the carbohydrates and proteids, the aromatic hydrocarbons and their halogen and nitro derivatives, the aniline dyes, and the phenols. The alkaloids, because of their great importance to students of medicine, will be dwelt on more at length. The laboratory practice consists in the preparation and qualitative analysis of typical organic compounds, selected to illustrate important technical operations, together with a practical application of the methods of determining boiling points, melting points and specific gravity. Particular attention is paid to the scientific principles involved in the operations.

V. DRAMATIC LITERATURE: (Two hours a week for two terms.)

This course will consist of a practical examination, from an historical and literary viewpoint, of the Dramatic Art. To supplement the theory and history of the Drama, readings will be made from typical plays, together with analysis and critique of the various schools of dramatists. The following topics will be examined in detail:

The mimetic instinct—earliest manifestations in nations and individuals. Development of this instinct, terminating in the Drama. The Drama as a Fine Art. Brunetière's "Law of the Drama." Analysis of this principle and some of its consequences. The laws of structure and technique.

The progress of the Drama, through its differentiations to the decline and degradation of the art during later years of the Roman Empire. The Code of Theodosius and its theatrical legislations. The fall of the theatres.

The "Dark Ages" of the Drama. Relics of the Art in Europe. The renaissance of legitimate Drama in England.

The five causes. 1. The didactic efforts of the clergy.
2. Mediaeval philosophy.
3. Revival of ancient learning.
4. Influence of national feeling.
5. Influence of Continental literature.

The passion plays, the mysteries, the miracles, the moralities, and the interludes.

The artistic age of English drama. The Elizabethan Age and the Elizabethans. Application of Brunetière's "Law of the Drama." Shakespeare and his works.

A critical examination of Shakespeare's treatment of vital moral questions as compared with that of some modern dramatists, such as Ibsen, Shaw, etc. Readings from selected plays of other modern dramatists. The question of the American Drama.

Junior Year.

PHILOSOPHY.

COURSE 1.—DIALECTICS: Six hours a week for one-half term.)

Text-book, Russo, S. J., Summa Philosophica. References; Jouin, S. J., Compendium Logicae et Metaphysicae,—Poland, S. J., The Laws of Thought,—Clarke, S. J., Logic (Stonyhurst Series), Coppens, S. J., Logic.

Definition and division of Philosophy. Formal Logic. Intellectual Perception. Ideas. Terms. Definition. Division. Judgment. Propositions. Opposition of Propositions. Reasoning. The Syllogism. Argumentative Fallacies.

COURSE 2.—FIRST PRINCIPLES OF KNOWLEDGE: (Eight and one-half hours a week for one-half term.)

Applied Logic. Text-book, Russo, S. J., Summa Philosophica. References: Jouin, S. J., Compendium Logicae et Metaphysicae, Rickaby, S. J., First Principles of Knowledge (Stonyhurst Series).

Logical truth. Certainty. Scepticism. Fundamental Truths. Source of certainty. Consciousness. The external senses. Ideas. Universal Ideas. Testimony. Deduction. Induction. Objective evidence, etc.

COURSE 3.—GENERAL METAPHYSICS: (Eight and one-half hours a week for one-half term.)

Ontology. Text-book, Russo, S. J., Summa Philosophica. References: Jouin, S. J., Compendium

Practice and criticism of public speaking. Work in connection with Dramatic Society.

Freshman Year.

POETRY.

Literae Humaniores--the Humanities--are pre-eminently the scope of Freshman year, and to them, as to an end, the studies of the class are chiefly directed. The Latin, Greek and English classics are therefore prescribed in parallel courses, ample material being thus provided for illustration and comparative study. The authors selected are studied, not merely from a philological or grammatical viewpoint, but rather for their own sake as furnishing striking examples of literary excellence.

I. LATIN: (Seven hours a week.)

Authors:

I Term: Cicero "Pro Archia" is carefully read at the outset to emphasize the value of humanistic studies and their influence on man.

Horace "Ars Poetica" is next mastered for its valuable canons on Art, and on Literature in particular.

Virgil "Aeneid" Bk. 2, 6 or 9 furnishes a practical illustration of Epic Poetry.

Livy, Bk. XXI, chapters 1-20 . . . is read somewhat more rapidly than Cicero, while chapters 21-35 are read at sight.

II Term: Cicero "De Signis" Second Philippic, or "Pro Marcello" continues the work of first term and accustoms the student to the fundamentals of rhetorical analysis.

Horace.. Odes. . . Bks. I.-IV . . furnishes classical examples of the best Lyric Poetry, besides presenting a vivid commentary on Roman life and customs.

Livy, Bk. 21, ch. 35 to end, furnishes further sight reading, and completes the history of Hannibal's passage of the Alps during the second Punic war.

Composition . . . (both terms) . . Principles of Latin style. Written exercises twice a week, in imitation of Cicero.

Latin Prosody and Versification with special reference to Latin elegiac and Lyric metres.

II GREEK: (Four and a half hours a week.)

The authors in this department have been selected as being typical of Grecian genius and the reading of the texts is accompanied with lectures and critiques bearing on the periods treated by writers.

I Term: Plato . . . The Apology
Homer . . . Odyssey . .
Herodotus . . Optional sight reading.

II Term: . . Demosthenes. . . Olynthiacs, with a study of the life and political activities of the orator.

Euripides. . .. ... Hecuba, with lectures on the spirit and structure of ancient Greek Tragedy.

Grammar:—Review of Greek moods and the syntax of the dependent sentence. A few simple rules of Prosody.

The most general laws of versification for the better understanding of the hexameter verse of Homer and the iambic verse of the tragedians.

Composition:—Written exercises once a week, in imitation of Plato and Demosthenes.

III. ENGLISH: (Three hours a week.)

The work of the High School classes may be supposed to have grounded the student in the fundamentals of practical English. In Freshman it is further required that in addition to the study of composition both in prose and verse, the recognized principles of literary criticism be given for their own sake. Therefore, Freshman English falls into two natural divisions, the one theoretical and the other practical.

(a) The theoretical part embraces lectures on:

The definition of Literature; characteristic qualities of the art; position of Literature among the other Fine Arts; the four elements of Literature—Emotion, Imagination, Thought and Form; discussion of each element; the finer points of Style, including connotation, economy, suggestion, and the laws governing narration, description and exposition.

The division of Literature into Prose and Poetry; the nature and province of Prose.

The nature and province of Poetry; the emotional element in Poetry; the function of the imagination; the intellectual element, and points of form.

An examination of Epic, Lyric and Dramatic Poetry.

A definition of Poetry will be constructed after a comparative study of the classical definitions of Aristotle, Sidney, Shelley, etc.

(b) The practical part:

1. In prose, looks chiefly to the formation of a correct style; clearness, force and elegance; variety of expression, orderly and logical development of thought. Exercises in Exposition; the Chria. Prose rhythm and the movement of sentences.

In Poetry it embraces the general laws of versification, including the standard forms of verse, as the ode, the sonnet, the Spencerian stanza, etc. The French forms are also examined—the Triolet, the Rondeau, etc.

Text-book, "Introduction to English Rhetoric," Coppens, S. J. A Study of Poetry, Connell, S. J.

2. Authors: Prose—Newman, Ruskin, De Quincey, Hawthorne, Arnold (Brewster's Studies in Structure and Style, Minto's "English Prose.") Poetry—Selections from Shelley, Wordsworth, Keats, Tennyson (Palgrave's Golden Treasury), Milton: Paradise Lost, I, II, with selected readings from remaining books. Shakespeare, Julius Cæsar, Mid-summer Night's Dream, As You Like It, for home reading.

3. Composition: One Composition in prose or verse to be done each week outside of class. The nature of this composition work will be in keeping with the scope of the class work as outlined in the precepts given above.

4. History of English Literature, from the death of Elizabeth to the Victorian Period. (Brooke's English Literature, cc. V-X.)

HISTORY: (Two hours a week.)

Text-book, Guggenberger's General History of the Christian Era, Vol. 1. Introduction to the History of the Era.

1. The Migration of the Nations. First Teutonic Invasions and Settlements. The Invaders of Italy. The Islam. The Franks, the Lombards and the Holy See. The Church and the State.
2. The Rise of the Empire. The Carolingians. The Northmen in Europe. The Making of Germany and the Rise of the Empire. The Exodus of the Normans. The contest about Lay-Investiture. The Greek Empire and the Schism.
3. The Crusades, the Rise of the Papacy. From the First Crusade to the Third Crusade. From the Third Crusade to the Invasion of the Mongols, The Last Crusades—from the Invasion of the Mongols to the Death of Boniface VIII.

EVIDENCES OF RELIGION: (One hour and a half a week, supplemented by a half hour lecture.)

Text-book, Wilmer's Hand-book of the Christian Religion.

First Term: The Creation. The Spiritual world. The Material world. Man and the Fall. God the Redeemer. The Person and Nature of the Redeemer. The work of the Redemption.

Second Term: Grace: Actual, Habitual, and Sanctifying. The Sacraments in general. Baptism. Confirmation. The Holy Eucharist. The sacrifice of the Mass. These courses are supplemented by a weekly half-hour lecture on the Catholic Faith.

MATHEMATICS: (Four hours a week.)

First Term: Plane Trigonometry, with application to Surveying. Text-book, Wentworth.

Second Term: Analytical Geometry. Text-book, Wentworth.

ELOCUTION: The Practice and Criticism of Public Speaking. Practical work in connection with Dramatic Society.

MODERN LANGUAGE: Advanced course in French, German or Spanish.

FRENCH: Authors:

First Term: Chateaubriand, "Le Dernier des Abencerages," or "Atala"; Moliere, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," or "L'Avare."

Second Term: Corneille, "Le Cid," or Polyeucte." Composition. Exercises based on the author read in class.

GERMAN:

Authors:

First Term: Jensen, "Die Braune Erica."

Second Term: Goethe, "Hermann und Dorothea," or Schiller, "Wilhelm Tell."

SPANISH: Selection from classical authors. Conversation. Composition.

SIX YEAR COURSE.

Leading to Degrees B.S. in Medicine and M.D.

by which a student may obtain the degrees of Bachelor of Science in Medicine and Doctor of Medicine was opened in September, 1913. The aim of this course is to give the student a thorough training in those branches which are required for entrance to Medical Schools and at the same time give as much training as possible in studies which impart culture.

The following conditions are imposed upon those who are candidates for this combination course:

1. REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION:

A certificate of honorable dismissal will be required of those who come from other institutions.

Candidates for admission to the advanced classes must pass a satisfactory examination upon all the subjects previously studied by the class which they propose to enter.

From certain preparatory schools and high schools of established reputation, students are admitted to the Freshman class without examination, upon the principal's certificate that they have completed the required amount of work and are prepared to enter the college.

In each case, however, a catalogue giving the course of studies required in his school must accompany the principal's certificate. The Georgetown College Preparatory Catalogue may be had on application to the Prefect of Studies.

In all other cases for admission to Freshman, a successful examination is required. (See catalogue, page 91.)

N. B.—Greek will not be required for admission to this course. Students who are deficient in Latin will be allowed to enter conditioned in that subject.

2. During the first two years they shall be ranked as Freshman and Sophomores and shall attend the regular College lectures and recitations in all subjects except those preliminary subjects required by the College of Medicine.

3. During the third and fourth years they shall take the work of the first and second years of the College of Medicine.

4. At the end of the fourth year they shall be recommended to the Faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Medicine and at the end of the sixth year they shall be recommended by the Faculty of the College of Medicine for the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

5. During the Freshman and Sophomore year candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Medicine shall observe the same regulations and enjoy the same privileges as the other students of the College of Arts and Sciences.

6. Students will be received into the Georgetown Medical School from institutions of approved standing, provided they have fulfilled preliminary requirements. In this case the candidate must make arrangements with the institution where his preliminary work was done for the Bachelor's degree.

Schedule of Studies.

FRESHMAN YEAR.

Chemistry (Inorganic)	5 hours
Biology	5 hours
Mathematics	4 hours
Mechanics	2 hours
Evidences of Religion	2 hours
Elocution	½ hour

Chemistry (Organic)	3 hours
Evidences of Religion	2 hours
Physics (Lecture Course)	5 hours
Physics (Laboratory)	3 hours
English	3 hours
German, French, or Spanish	3 hours

N. B.—During the first year students who are deficient in Latin will be required to do special work in that subject.

JUNIOR YEAR,

First Year Medical.

SENIOR YEAR,

Second Year Medical.

Degrees.

The successful completion of the Undergraduate Course entitles a student to the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Requirements For Admission.

Students may enter at the opening of either session, and, on examination, will be assigned to the class for which their prior attainments have fitted them.

A certificate of honorable dismissal will be required of those who come from other institutions.

Candidates for admission to the advanced classes must pass a satisfactory examination upon all the subjects previously studied by the class which they propose to enter.

From certain preparatory schools, high schools, of established reputation, students are admitted to the Freshman class without examination, upon the principal's certificate that they have completed the required amount of work and are prepared to enter the college.

In each case, however, a catalogue giving the course of studies required in his school must accompany the principal's certificate. The Georgetown College Preparatory School Catalogue may be had on application to the Prefect of Studies.

In all other cases for admission to Freshman, a successful examination is required in the following subjects.

LATIN.—Grammar.—The entire Latin Grammar, including a knowledge of all regular syntactical constructions. Translation into Latin at sight of complex English sentences, entailing the application of rules for relative clauses, indirect discourse, and conditional sentences.

PROSODY.—All the rules as given in Casserly's Prosody or some equivalent work; application to hexameter verse; scansion of Ovid and Virgil. A simple exercise will be exacted in the rearrangement of broken verse.

Latin Composition.—Translation into Latin of easy continuous prose based upon Cæsar and Cicero. This requirement is of very especial importance, and great weight will be given to it in the examination. The use of Cicero's letters as well as his orations as models for the requirements of Latin idiom is strongly recommended.

Nepos.—Lives, to the end of the life of Alcibiades; also the life of Atticus. Cæsar.—Commentaries, two books.

Ovid.—Metamorphoses, 500 lines; Tristia, 500 lines.

Cicero.—Selected letters, five hundred lines; orations; the four against Catiline. Virgil—Aeneid, three books.

GREEK.—Grammar.—Etymology complete (including all the irregular and defective forms); the rules for accents; the rules of syntax and their application; the Homeric dialect.

Greek Composition.—Translation into Greek of simple English sentences based upon Xenophon's Anabasis.

Xenephon.—Anabasis, Book I, II and III.

Homer.—Iliad, Books I and II, or Odyssey I, II and III.

N. B.—In assigning the matter above, the purpose of the Faculty is not to insist on quantity or to recognize that the mere reading of a stated amount of assigned authors is sufficient preparation for college. In the discussion of the classic authors, both Greek and Latin, the candidate must be prepared to give a complete grammatical analysis of every word, phrase, and sentence, and to point out exceptional idioms, and must be informed on the chief points of collateral erudition connected with the text.

Students who are prepared for entrance to Freshman Class in all the requirements except Greek, may enter the College conditioned in Greek. This condition may be removed in one or at the most two years, during part of which they will attend a Special Class established to meet this emergency. While carrying the condition in Greek they will be registered as Special Students.

English.—Higher Grammar.—The candidate must be prepared on the matter contained in Meiklejohn's "The English Language," or some equivalent work.

Composition.—A brief prose composition will be required evidencing some proficiency in narrative and critical writing. The test will be based upon books and authors assigned for study in the Georgetown College Preparatory School. Questions will be asked as to the subject-matter, method of treatment, structure and style of these books. Fair penmanship and accurate spelling will be considered as essential preliminary requirements.

The authors assigned are: Shelley, Selected Poems (No. 85, Maynard Series). *Wordsworth, Selected Poems (No. 90, Maynard Series). De Quincey, Poems (No. 90, Maynard Series). De Quincey, Flight of a Tartar Tribe. *Macaulay, Essays on Johnson and on Addison. Milton, Paradise Lost (two books), Ode to the Nativity, L'Allegro and Il Penseroso. *Shakespeare, Merchant of Venice. Tennyson, Morte d'Arthur. Lamb's Essays of Elia. Ruskin, Sesame and Lilies. Thackeray, Henry Esmond. A careful study of the works marked thus (subject-matter, form and structure) will be exacted; a general acquaintance with the other assigned books will be sufficient.

N. B.—The Uniform College Entrance Requirements in English will be accepted, as will any fair equivalent work in this department.

HISTORY.—Bible History as found in Richards, Greek (Bury), Roman (Schuckburgh), English (Lingard), United States (Montgomery), or as found in some equivalent author. Elements of Civics.

MATHEMATICS.—Algebra; Geometry, plane and solid. Wentworth's Complete Algebra, and Wentworth's Geometry, or works of equal grade.

SCIENCE.—A fair knowledge of Physical Geography.

MODERN LANGUAGES.—One modern language besides English is required, preferably French or German. The examination will embrace the elements of Grammar, including the irregular verbs; translation into English at sight of simple prose; grammatical analysis.

General Regulations.

No distinction is made in the reception of students on the ground of religious belief. Students not of the Catholic faith, if they do not wish to attend the Religious Exercises of the college, will be exempt therefrom, but are expected to conform in matter of church service to the obligations of their own belief.

No student will be allowed to remain at the college during the summer vacation.

The introduction of intoxicating liquors as well as of immoral books or papers, will render the offender liable to expulsion, as will any grave offense against morals or discipline.

There is a fixed hour for students in residence to rise, take their meals, attend chapel for daily Mass, and Benediction on Sundays and Holy Days, and to assist at night prayers. Parents who enter their sons are understood to agree that they should conform to these regulations.

Day-scholars and half-boarders, while within the College walls, are subject to the regulations of boarders.

Students of the Medical School are not received to board or lodge at the College, but must secure board and lodgings in the city. Students from the Law School may board and lodge at the College only in case of taking at the same time graduate courses at the College. Graduate students may enter the College either as boarders or day-scholars. Undergraduate students are not received as day-scholars unless they are living with their parents or guardians. Students are not allowed to lodge at the College and board outside the College.

Regulations For Distribution of Rooms.

No room will be reserved for a student unless the application for the same be accompanied by a deposit of one-tenth of the rental. Applications may be handed in at any time; yet, in order that students in residence during the year may have time to consult with their parents or guardians about their return the following year, no assignment will be made for the coming year before July 1. The former holder of a room will have claim on that room up to July 1, after which, if not then engaged by him, it will be considered vacant. The earliest applicant will have right to any vacant room, if his application is accompanied by one-tenth of the rental, as above prescribed. The senior applicant, in case of two applying at the same time for the same room, will be given the preference. The right to a room for which a deposit has been paid expires if not occupied the evening before the opening of schools.

Damage to College property is repaired at the expense of the student who inflicts it.

In case a student who has made a deposit decides not to enter school he should send notification before September 1. Deposits will not be returned after that date.

In the Sophomore year there is a charge of $10 per annum for the use of chemicals.

In the Junior year there is a charge of $10 for the use of philosophical and astronomical instruments, and $10 per annum for the use of chemicals.

The Graduation Fee is $10.00

All accounts must be paid half yearly, in advance. If a student is withdrawn before the end of a session, no deduction will be made, except in cases of illness or of dismissal, nor will any deduction be made for a shorter time than one month.

Degrees will not be conferred upon students whose debts to the College remain unpaid on June 1, 1914.

Articles of clothing will not be furnished by the College unless a deposit for that purpose be made with the Treasurer, who will give a detailed account of its outlay in his regular semi-annual statement.

No bills for clothing or other articles will be acknowledged unless the purchase has been authorized by the Treasurer of the College.

Books and stationery may be obtained at the College bookstore.

Whatever sums parents or guardians allow their sons or wards for pocket money, may be deposited with the Treasurer, who will disburse the same according to instructions received, or as circumstances may require. No advance will be made beyond the deposit.

Dues for the different student organizations, as the Athletic Association, the Debating Society, etc., must be paid by the students from their pocket money, and no student will be allowed to have such dues charged in upon the bill to be sent to parents or guardians.

Every student from outside the United States must have a guardian in the vicinity, who shall be responsible for his bills and receive him in case of dismissal. The same may be required for students from very distant States in the Union.

For Students of Medicine.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1913-1914.

The complete course of study in the Medical Department extends over four terms of eight months each.

Special attention is called to the advantages of the method of teaching adopted in this school. It enables each student to come into more intimate relation with his teachers in laboratory and hospital work, and in connection with the system of recitations adopted makes instruction more directly personal and adapted to the special needs of the individual.

The Laboratory building of this department is conveniently located on H Street, Northwest, between Ninth and Tenth Streets, near several of the principal railway lines. It contains spacious and well-ventilated lecture rooms and laboratories, a convenient and well-lighted dissecting room, a library and reading room for the use of students. The laboratories are equipped with the latest and most approved instruments and appliances, including an ample number of microscopes of high power. These will greatly enhance the facilities for instruction, and will enable every student to master more readily the technical skill needed in modern important methods of medical research. The Laboratory courses may be taken independently of the lectures.

The clinical instruction is carried on in the University Hospital in connection with the general wards, Emergency Service, Outdoor Department, clinical, pathological laboratories and operating rooms. Clinics are also held at the Children's, Emergency, Columbia Hospital for Women, Episcopal Eye and Ear Hospital, the Municipal Hospital, and the Government Hospital for the Insane, containing in all over 3,000 beds.

Libraries.

The great libraries and museums connected with the various Government institutions at Washington afford advantages to the student that are unrivalled in America, and are equal, if not superior, to those in most European capitals. These collections are freely open to the public, and can be consulted by students upon obtaining permission, readily granted to those who are pursuing special courses of study.

The Library of Congress	1,100,000 vols.
The Library of the Surgeon-General's Office	140,539 vols.
The Library of the National Museum	16,000 vols.
The Library of the Museum of Hygiene	10,500 vols.
The Library of the Bureau of Ethnology	5,000 vols.
The Library of the Bureau of Education	30,000 vols.
The Library of the Department of Agriculture	25,000 vols.

Museums.

The Army Medical Museum.
The Museum of Hygiene.
The United States National Museum.
The Museum of the Agricultural Department.
The Botanical Garden.
The United States National Zoological Park.

Requisites For Admission.

1. Creditable certificates of good moral character, signed by two reputable persons of good standing in the State in which the applicant last resided.

2. A four-year high school education and two years of collegiate work or its equivalent, including chemistry, physics, with laboratory work, biology, and a modern language, either French or German.

3. Credentials to that effect shall be evaluated by a special Examiner appointed by a competent authority.

4. No student shall be permitted to matriculate or register beyond ten days after advertised date of the opening of the school.

5. The school reserves the right to refuse admission to any student or to terminate the attendance of any student at any time for what may appear to the Faculty to be good and sufficient cause, such as incompetency or conduct unbecoming a gentleman.

SIX YEAR COLLEGIATE AND MEDICAL COURSE LEADING TO DEGREES B.S. AND M.D.

Entrance requirements will be the same as those for entrance to the College of Arts and Sciences (see General Catalogue, pages 91-94). An equivalent will be taken for Greek.

During the first two years candidates shall take the courses in College of Liberal Arts, which courses shall include the preliminary subjects required by the College of Medicine and the special courses in Liberal Arts.

First Year.—Latin, English, Biology, Chemistry, History, French or German, Trigonometry.

Second Year.—Organic Chemistry, Qualitative Analysis, Physics, Laboratory Physics, Psychology, Ethics, French or German.

During the third and fourth years of the baccalaureate course, candidates for this combined course shall take the work of the first and second years of the course in Medicine in the College of Medicine.

On fulfilling all of the requirements they shall, at the end of the fourth year of the combined course, be recommended by the faculty of the College of Liberal Arts for the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Medicine.

For more detailed information address Office of the Dean, Room 19, North Building, Georgetown College.

Credit For Work Done in Other Colleges.

Students from accredited Medical Colleges may be admitted under the following rules:

1. They must present evidence satisfactory to the Special Examiner that their entrance credentials are equal to the published requirements of this school.

2. They must present evidence of having passed a satisfactory examination in the branches for which they seek credit in some other reputable Medical School whose requirements equal our own.

3. The Dean shall verify the credentials from other Medical Schools, and shall not admit a student to advanced standing without communicating with the school from which said student wishes to withdraw, and receiving a certification of the applicant's standing in that school.

4. Reports on inquiry from other schools shall show failing grades as well as final make-up marks.

5. Conditions contracted in other Medical Schools requiring additional work for their removal will require a like procedure in this school.

Graduates in Medicine.

1. A graduate from another Medical College may obtain a diploma from this school, provided he presents evidence of entrance qualifications equal to the requirements for admission to this school.

2. He must submit the required time and subject credits from the College from which he graduated, together with his diploma; he must attend all the courses of the fourth year, pass a satisfactory examination, and meet all other requirements for graduation.

Special Students.

Persons not candidates for the degree of M.D. may be admitted without examination as special students and may attend any of the courses upon giving satisfactory evidence that they are qualified to avail themselves of the instruction. Subjects completed to the satisfaction of the chairman of the department may be credited subsequently if the student enters upon a regular medical course within two years thereafter, and has complied with the published requirements for admission.

Curriculum.

1. The students shall be graded in four classes, designated as the first, second, third and fourth, the last being the senior.

2. The complete curriculum of study shall comprise four courses extending throughout four calendar years; each annual course to be not less than 32 weeks' duration with 35 hours per week of instruction.

3. The course shall consist of didactic lectures, recitations, laboratory work and demonstrations, practical work in hospitals and dispensaries, with other practical manipulations and examinations.

4. No time credit shall be allowed for the possession of a Bachelor Degree, but credit may be allowed for particular subjects when an applicant passes an examination therein satisfactory to the head of the respective department. Four years' attendance at a Medical College are required of all candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

5. The branches of study pursued and the arrangement of the course according to years are shown in the table, page ?

In addition to the hours devoted to Home study during the session, the Faculty recommends that at least five hours a day be devoted to review work during the vacation months.

I. DEPARTMENT OF ANATOMY.

PROFESSOR FRANK BAKER, A.M., M.D., Ph.D.
Chairman.
W. O. OWEN, M.D.,
Professor of Practical Anatomy.
EMORY D. REISINGER, M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Anatomy.
PHILIP NEWTON, M. D.,
Assistant Professor of Anatomy.
ERNEST L. MORGAN, B.S., M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Anatomy.
(Histology and Embryology).
WILLIAM F. HEMLER, M.D.,
Instructor in Anatomy.
L. GLUSHAK, M.D.,
Instructor in Surgical Anatomy.

General Anatomy.

FIRST YEAR.

Osteology.

This course consists of daily recitations and demonstrations on the articulated and disarticulated skeleton. Each student is furnished with the necessary bones for home study. October to January, three hours per week, ten weeks—30 hours. (Dr. Reisinger.)

Arthology.

This course consists of daily recitations with demonstrations on the living subject, models and charts, January and February, three hours per week, five weeks—15 hours. (Dr. Reisinger.)

Myology.

In this course a systematic study is made of the skeletal muscles. The daily recitations are illustrated by demonstrations on the living subject, models, and charts. Three hours per week, February to April, ten weeks—30 hours. (Dr. Reisinger.)

Angiology.

Daily recitations on the heart, arteries, veins and lymphatics, illustrated by models and charts. Three hours per week, April and May, five weeks—15 hours. (Dr. Reisinger.)

Dissection.

All dissecting is done under constant supervision. First year students begin dissecting in the second term. Nine hours per week, February to May, twelve weeks—108 hours. (Dr. Owen, Dr. Newton.) Total hours, first year, 198.

SECOND YEAR.

Neurology.

This course consists of lectures, recitations and frequent written examinations on the central and peripheral nervous systems. Instruction is illustrated by demonstrations on dissected specimens, models, and charts. October to December, three hours per week, ten weeks—30 hours. (Dr. Baker.)

Splanchnology.

This course consists of lectures and recitations on visceral anatomy. Instruction is illustrated by specially prepared lantern slides, plates, and demonstrations on dissected specimens and models. January to March, three hours per week, ten weeks—30 hours. (Dr. Baker.)

Topographical and Applied Anatomy.

In this course the student is required to learn anatomical relations and topography. Special stress is laid on the practical application of anatomy to the diagnosis and treatment of disease. This course consists of oral and written recitations, informal lectures, demonstrations on the living subject, on specially prepared dissections, and on models and charts. March to May, three hours per week, ten weeks—30 hours. (Dr. Baker.)

Dissection.

Second year students dissect during both terms, beginning October 1st. One-third of the body is dissected in the first year, and the remaining two-thirds during the second year, thus giving ample time for accurate work and careful investigation. All work is done under supervision, with frequent quizzes. At the end of each dissection a satisfactory examination must be passed by each student. October to May, twelve hours per week, twenty-four weeks—288 hours. (Dr. Owen, Dr. Newton.) Total hours, second year, 378.

FOURTH YEAR.

Surgical Anatomy.

This course includes a review on topographical and applied anatomy, with special stress on the application of anatomy to surgery. October to June—40 hours. (Dr. Glushak.) Total hours of anatomy 616.

Histology.

This course consists chiefly of laboratory work. The first hour twice a week being devoted to recitations, with explanatory talks illustrated by charts and blackboard drawings. This subject includes the study of the history and structure of the cell, the elementary tissues in both fresh and prepared specimens and the organs in prepared specimens. Each student is required to make a complete set of histological tissues and to make drawings with descriptive notes of the microscopical appearances of each specimen. Thirty recitations, 135 hours laboratory work from October to February 20. Total 165 hours. (Assistant Professor Morgan.)

Embryology.

The first hour each day 2-3 is devoted to lecture and recitations, the remaining hours 3-5 to the study and preparation of specimens. The student is taught to prepare serial sections of the embryos studied. The course begins with spermatogenesis and ovogenesis and thus taking up the development after fertilization proceeds to the formation of the rudiment of the embryo and concludes with a consideration of organology. Thirty lectures and recitations. Sixty hours laboratory work. Total 90 hours—February 2nd to May 15th. (Assistant Professor Morgan.)

II. DEPARTMENT OF PHYSIOLOGY.

Professor Francis Tondorf, S.J., Chairman.
Henry R. Schreiber, M.D., Assistant Professor.
Joseph J. McCarthy, A.B., M.D., Assistant Professor.

Three hundred hours are assigned to the course in physiology, one hundred and forty being devoted to lectures and recitations and one hundred and sixty hours to laboratory exercises. These hours are evenly distributed over the first two years of the curriculum.

FIRST YEAR.

Lectures and Recitations.—The general physiology of the cell; the physiology of metabolism; the physiology of respiration; the physiology of muscle and nerve. The lectures and quizzes are based mainly on the observations of the students in experimentation of the laboratory.

Laboratory Course.—Experiments on subjects of a general character, arranged to parallel, as far as possible, the didactic work of this year.

SECOND YEAR.

Lectures and Recitations.—The physiology of the blood and circulation; the physiology of the ductless glands; the physiology of the nervous system.

Laboratory Work.—Experiments in the physiology of the central nervous system and the special senses. The student is also made familiar with the handling of the various instruments of precision, such as the spectroscope, perimeter, opthalmoscope, opthalmometer, haemoglobinometer, haemocytometer, etc.

III. DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY AND TOXICOLOGY.

PROF. JOHN D. HIRD, A.M., LL.M., Chairman.
L. W. FETZER, M.D., Ph.D.,
Associate Professor of Pathological Chemistry.

It is the aim in this department to give a practical course in chemistry and toxicology as related to the subject of medicine.

As a foundation for this course students on entering the school of medicine will have completed elementary and inorganic chemistry.

Organic Chemistry.

This course includes an examination of the more important hydrocarbons and their derivatives, supplemented by lectures upon the theoretical and practical methods of manufacture, their character and uses, especially as they are related to medicine.

Particular attention is given to the carbon, nitrogen and energy cycles in nature; carbohydrates and amino acids, proteins, toxins, purin and nuclein bodies; urea, uric acid, creatinin, etc.

In the laboratory students will be taught practical methods of analysis, both gravimetric and volumetric, together with the synthetical preparation of some of the more important organic compounds.

Sanitary Chemistry.

Under the head of organic chemistry, sanitary chemistry also receives attention. This includes the practical examination of the various forms of matter which affect, either directly or indirectly, the general health. It is intended in this course that such a knowledge shall be imparted to the students as may enable them to differentiate between wholesome and unwholesome articles of food and drink. The various food products, particularly milk, cheese, bread and meats, will receive careful consideration. The examination of air in rooms, the velocity, condition and quality of air currents, will be considered under the head of ventilation. The organic analysis of water and its various forms of pollution, also receive attention. (50 lectures and 112 hours of laboratory work.)

Toxicology.

This course consists of lectures and recitations on the general subject of poisons, their effects, modes of action, subsequent disposition and antagonism together with laboratory work on their separation, identification and reactions. (24 lectures and recitations and 48 hours of laboratory work.)

Physiological and Pathological Chemistry.

This course includes lectures, recitations and laboratory work with special reference to the various chemical processes which take place in the bodies of plants and animals, and which are more or less associated with the phenomena of life.

The chemistry of foods, their composition, assimilation, metabolism and excretion are studied in detail.

This includes fats, carbohydrates and proteins, enzymes and catalysis, salivary, gastric, pancreatic and intestinal digestion; secretions and excretions, the animal cell; the chemistry of the blood and other animal fluids; the chemistry of the tissues and the general physiological and pathological conditions as evidenced by analysis of the urine, and of the gastric and intestinal contents.

This course will include also the more exact methods for the determination of creatinin and ammonia in urine; the kjeldahl determination of nitrogen and the general subject of cryoscopy in its relation to fluids.

Forty-six lectures and recitations and 140 hours of laboratory work. Total hours in chemistry 420.

IV. DEPARTMENT OF PATHOLOGY AND BACTERIOLOGY.

RALPH A. HAMILTON, M.D., Chairman.
WALTER D. WEBB, M.D.,
Professor of Surgical Pathology.
ARTHUR W. MACNAMEE, M.D.,
Associate of Pathology.
JAMES A. FLYNN, M.D.,
Associate of Pathology.
CHARLES A. PFENDER, M.D.,
Associate of Pathology.

The course in pathology extends over two years. The instruction consists of lectures, demonstrations, conferences and laboratory work, and embraces general and special pathology, including bacteriology and clinical pathology.

General Pathology.

SECOND YEAR.

The lectures and class recitations are brought in close relation with the laboratory work. During the first half year general considerations of disease, including etiology and immunity are taken up. The second half year is devoted to the study of anatomic changes in disease, including degeneration, regeneration, inflammation, tumor formation, etc. Three hours a week for twenty weeks—60 hours.

Pathological Histology.

This course is arranged to illustrate the didactic work as far as possible, and consists in daily demonstrations, short laboratory talks, supplemented by the use of projection apparatus, microscopic work, examination of gross specimens from post-mortems, etc., and the microscopic study of typical pathological specimens from the college collection. The student is familiarized with the essentials of laboratory technique, and is required to stain, mount and diagnose a complete series of pathologic tissues—210 hours.

Special Pathology.

THIRD AND FOURTH YEAR.

This course consists in demonstrations in the technique of post-mortem examinations and the study of organs and tissues removed at autopsy. Class in sections 15 hours.

Clinical Pathology.

The course in clinical pathology for third year students, contemplates the examination of blood, urine, feces, gastric contents, sputum, pathological exudates, etc., with special reference to clinical medicine and surgery. The great value of laboratory methods as aids in the diagnosis of disease will be emphasized. Two hours a week, thirty weeks—60 hours. Total hours in pathology 345. Post-mortem work will be given at the hospital in connection with the clinical work of senior students.

Bacteriology.

SECOND YEAR.

This subject is taught by lectures and practical laboratory work. The students are familiarized with the preparation of media, the cultivation, isolation and identification of bacteria and general laboratory technique as applied to clinical medicine. The important pathogenic micro-organisms are studied culturally, and the principles of serum diagnosis, and vaccine therapy are demonstrated. Nine hours a week, seventeen weeks—150 hours.

V. DEPARTMENT OF MATERIA MEDICA, PHARMACOLOGY AND THERAPEUTICS.

Prof. Ryan Devereux, B.S., A.M., M.D., Chairman.
William Salant, M.D.,
Professor of Experimental Pharmacology.
John F. Anderson, M.D.,
Professor of Sero and Organo-Therapy.
Lyman F. Kebler, M.D.,
Associate Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacology.

CHARLES I. GRIFFITH, Ph.D., M.D.,
Associate Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacology.
JOHN A. FOOTE, M.D.,
Associate in Materia Medica and Lecturer on Anaesthesiology.

This course consists of laboratory, class and bedside instruction. It is the object of this department to so train the student that he will be a practical, logical and scientific therapeutist.

Materia Medica.

FIRST YEAR.

During this course the student is made familiar with the physical characteristics of drugs, learns the source (botanical or chemical), the preparations, compatibilities, incompatibilities, doses and toxicology of the official remedies. He is also taught to compound the more important preparations. Forty lectures and recitations and 55 hours of laboratory work. Total 95 hours. (Dr. Griffith.)

Pharmacology.

SECOND YEAR.

In the second year Pharmaco-dynamics are taught. The best available text book is secured. Definite lessons are assigned upon which the students are questioned; explanations are freely given. Following this course, demonstrations of the physiological action of all the important drugs are given and students are expected to repeat by laboratory exercises the most important elements of pharmaco-dynamics. Forty hours recitations—80 hours laboratory work. Total 125 hours. (Professors Devereux and Salant.)

Therapeutics.

THIRD YEAR.

In this course conferences are held in which problems are proposed: A pathological condition being given, the student is expected to apply his knowledge of Pharmaco-dynamics in an attempt to alter or remove the diseased processes by suitable remedies and therapeutic measures—70 hours. (Professor Devereux.)

FOURTH YEAR.

In connection with bed-side instruction at the University and the City Hospitals the Senior Year is devoted to practical work and the use of therapeutic agents other than drugs, including massage, electro and hydro-therapy and sero and organo-therapy—60 hours. (Professor Devereux.)

The lectures on sero and organo-therapy will be given by Professor Anderson and a few special lectures on pure and fraudulent remedies are delivered by Professor Kebler.

VI. DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND MEDICAL SPECIALTIES.

PROF. SAMUEL S. ADAMS, Chairman.
EDWIN B. BEHREND, A.B., M.D.,
Associate Professor of Medicine.
WILFRED M. BARTON, M.D.,
Associate Professor of Medicine.
THOMAS S. LEE, M.D.,
Clinical Professor of Medicine.
CHARLES C. MARBURY, M.D.,
Clinical Professor of Medicine.
S. LOGAN OWENS, M.D.,
Instructor in Medicine.
JAMES A. GANNON, M.D.,
Instructor in Medicine.
JOHN J. MADIGAN, M.D.,
Instructor in Clinical Medicine.
JAMES M. MOSER, M.D.,
Instructor in Clinical Medicine.
HARRY A. ONG, M.D.,
Instructor in Clinical Medicine.
RICHARD M. SUTTON, M.D.,
Instructor in Clinical Medicine.
CLARENCE M. DOLLMAN, M.D.,

Instructor in Clinical Medicine.
JOHN F. ANDERSON, M.D.,
Professor of Experimental Medicine.
E. R. STITT, M.D.,
Professor of Tropical Medicine.
WILLIAM GERRY MORGAN, M.D.,
Professor of Gastro-Enterology.
WILLIAM E. CLARK, M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Gastro-Enterology.
A. C. STANLEY, M.D.,
Instructor in Gastro-Enterology.
J. RUSSELL VERBRYCKE, M.D.,
Instructor in Gastro-Enterology.
GEORGE M. KOBER, M.D., LL.D.,
Professor of Hygiene and Dietetics.
LOREN B. T. JOHNSON, M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Hygiene and Dietetics.
WILLIAM C. WOODWARD, M.D., LL.M.,
Professor of State Medicine.
REV. ALOYSIUS BROSNAN, S.J.,
Lecturer on General and Medical Ethics.

The work in the Department of Medicine is carried on in the Lecture Rooms, the wards, dispensary and laboratories, chiefly at the University Hospital, supplemented by general clinics and ward class instruction in the City Hospital and the wards for contagious diseases. Every effort is made to give the student a clear conception of the methods of discrimination and management of the various diseased conditions usually considered as belonging to the provinces of internal medicine.

Physical Diagnosis.

JOHN D. THOMAS, A.B., M.D.,
Professor of Physical Diagnosis.
WILLIAM C. MOORE, M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Physical Diagnosis.
ROY D. ADAMS, M.D.,

Instructor in Physical Diagnosis.

JOSEPH A. JEFFRIES, M.D.,
Instructor in Physical Diagnosis.

This course begins in the second year when in connection with applied physiology the student is made familiar with inspection, palpatation, percussion and auscultation of the physiological subject. It gives him a foundation of the methods employed in physical exploration of the body and acquaints him with normal conditions, so that he can distinguish abnormal conditions when they are brought before him. The course is entirely practical; each student is required to repeatedly inspect, palpate, percuss and auscultate normal subjects, and demonstrate his ability with all the necessary instruments of precision, such as the stethoscope, sphygmograph, sphygmomanometer, etc. Class in sections (20 hours for each section.)

During the junior year in addition to didactic lectures and recitations there are Section Clinics at the University and Municipal Hospitals and Dispensaries, where each student makes examinations under proper supervision—35 hours lectures and recitations, 80 hours clinical work. Total, 135 hours.

Medicine.

THIRD YEAR.

The infectious diseases. (Professor Behrend). The results of recent researches in infectious diseases with special reference to measles, scarlet fever, mountain fever, typhus and anterior poliomyelitis. (Prof. Anderson.)

Diseases of the Respiratory System. (Prof. Thomas.)

Diseases of the Circulatory System and of the Kidneys. (Prof. Lee.)

Diseases due to physical agents. The intoxications. (Dr. Owen.)

Diseases of metabolism. (Prof. Fetzer.)

Clinical conferences, ward class instruction and Dispensary Clinics by Professors Adams, Behrend, Lee, Marbury, Owens, Ong, Gannon, Johnson, Madigan and Sutton—90 lectures and recitations, 180 hours clinical work. Total 270 hours.

FOURTH YEAR.

Diseases of the Blood. (Dr. Ong.)
Diseases of the Digestive System. (Prof. Morgan.)
Diseases of the Ductless Glands. (Dr. Ong.)

Tropical Medicine.

In this course special attention is given to those diseases which are as important for the Practitioner in the Southern States as for the Medical man residing in tropical countries.

With this in view such diseases as bacillary and amoebic dysenteries, hookworm diseases, malaria, yellow fever, dengue and pellagra are considered in detail. Cholera and Plague on account of their epidemiological importance are likewise taken up in a thorough manner. An effort is made to give the student a comprehensive idea of the special features of diagnosis and treatment of such diseases as beri-beri, malta fever, trypanosomiasis, spruce, kala-azar, leprosy and various tropical skin affections. The lectures are illustrated by lantern slides and supplemented by weekly quizzes. (Professor E. R. Stitt.)

In addition to the foregoing lectures to Senior students there will be clinical conferences, ward class instruction and Dispensary clinics by Professors Adams, Behrend, Barton, Devereux, Marbury, Ong, Owens, Gannon, Johnson, Madigan and Sutton.

Sixty lectures and recitations, 212 hours clinical work. Total in fourth year, 272 hours.

Medical Specialties.

Pediatrics.

SAMUEL S. ADAMS, A.M., M.D.,
Professor.

JOSEPH T. WALL, M.D.,
Associate Professor.

JAMES A. GANNON, M.D.,
Instructor.

JAMES M. MOSER, M.D.,
Instructor.

The course of study in diseases of infancy and childhood extends over a period of two years, and consists mainly of clinical teaching by demonstration of bed-side cases, section work in the out-patient department, and by weekly class conferences with demonstrations by senior students who have had an opportunity to study previously the individual cases presented.

The material at the University and the Children's Hospital affords the means for demonstration of all of the common types of diseases of early life, and the students are enabled in their two years of study to acquire an intimate knowledge of those pathological conditions which form so large a part of their actual work in internal medicine after entering practice.

Third Year—20 lectures and recitations; 60 hours of clinical work.

Fourth Year—15 lectures and recitations; 60 hours of clinical work. Total, 155 hours.

Psychiatry and Neurology.

WM. A. WHITE, M.D.,
Professor of Psychiatry and Neurology.

D. PERCY HICKLING, M.D.,
Clinical Professor of Psychiatry and Neurology and Professor of Electro-Therapeutics.

JOHN J. MADIGAN, M.D.,
Instructor.

This course consists of didactic lectures and recitations, clinical lectures and ward class instruction at the City Hospital, which affords excellent opportunities for the study of chronic nervous diseases, and the acute forms of mental disorder. During the second semester clinics are also given at the Government Hospital for the Insane, which accommodates about 3,000 patients. Students have opportunity to visit the wards of the Hospital, and each lecture is illustrated by cases, giving in great variety all the forms of insanity and diseases of the nervous system which are usually seen in the practice of the general practitioners in medicine.

Professor Hickling also gives instruction at the University Hospital in diseases of the general nervous system which are commonly met with in practice, special attention being given to their diagnosis and treatment.

Third Year.—30 lectures and recitations; 30 hours clinical work.

Fourth Year.—20 lectures and recitations; 35 hours clinical work. Total, 115 hours.

Electro-Therapeutics.

PROFESSOR HICKLING.

This course is given in the fourth year and includes a brief outline of Electro-Physics and Electro-Physiology, with practical illustrations of the use of the galvanic, faradic and static currents and X-Ray methods, and a discussion of the medical and surgical conditions in which this form of treatment may be used. The lectures are amply illustrated with electrical appliances and practical work—30 hours.

Hygiene and Dietetics.

PROFESSOR GEORGE M. KOBER, M.D., LL.D.,
LOREN B. T. JOHNSON, M.D.,
Assistant Professor.

The course on hygiene and dietetics includes lectures and recitations on sunlight, air, climate, and meteorology; water, ice, artificial carbonated waters, and soils in relation to health and disease; food, beverages, and condiments, morbific and infected food products; dietetics in health and disease; the skin, bath and clothing; exercise, rest, sleep, beds, and bedding; private and public habitations, including drainage, ventilation, warming, and lighting, the hygiene of communities and of occupations, with practical demonstrations of sanitary appliances at the Museum of Hygiene. Inspections are also made of the Filtration Plant and the City Sewerage Disposal System —60 hours.

State Medicine.

PROF. W. C. WOODWARD, M.D., LL.M.

The course on State Medicine consists of lectures and such demonstrations as may be practicable upon the relation of the medical practitioner to Government, and of the application of medical science to the purpose of the Government for the protection of public health, and for the determination of such medical problems as come before courts of law. Attendance will be obligatory upon the students in their fourth year—30 hours.

VII. DEPARTMENT OF SURGERY AND SURGICAL SPECIALTIES.

GEORGE TULLY VAUGHAN, M.D., Chairman.
WALTER D. WEBB, M.D.,
Professor of Surgical Pathology and Military Surgery.
ERNEST P. MAGRUDER, A.B., A.M., M.D.,
Clinical Professor of Surgery.
WILLIAM C. GWYNN, M.D.,
Clinical Professor of Surgery.
WILLIAM P. REEVES, M.D.,
Clinical Professor of Surgery.
JOHN CONSTAS, M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Operative Surgery.
L. GLUSHAK, M.D.,
Instructor in Operative Surgery.
CHARLES I. GRIFFITH, Phar.D., M.D.,
Instructor in Surgery.
JOHN A. O'DONOGHUE, A.M., M.D.,
Director of Outdoor Service and Lecturer on Roentgenography.
P. EDWARD LARKIN, M.D.,
Instructor in Surgery.

General Surgery.

The course in surgery extends over two and one-half years. Instruction is given by didactic lectures, recitation, and demonstrations at clinics, which are held at various hospitals and dispensaries, which afford material in abundance.

SECOND YEAR.

Minor Surgery.

Students are instructed in the practical use and application of bandages, fracture dressings, and other surgical apparatus. The use of the principal surgical instruments is also demonstrated on the living subject or on the cadaver.

THIRD YEAR.

Surgical Pathology.

This course embraces a study of surgical pathology and diagnosis according to modern practical methods. Instruction is given during the session by demonstrations, lectures, recitations and laboratory work. The unaided eye appearances of the various neoplasms, malignant and benign and the gross pathologic picture of the infective processes of tissues are studied from fresh specimens and the museum collection. The histories and microscopic sections accompanying these specimens are also studied in this work—30 hours. (Professor Webb.)

Principles of Surgery.

Lectures and recitations on this subject are given twice a week, including fractures and dislocations—60 hours. (Professor Magruder.)

Clinical Conferences—Ward Class Instruction and Dispensary Clinics—47 hours. (Professors Gwynn, Magruder, Reeves and Dispensary Staff.)

FOURTH YEAR.

Regional and Systemic Surgery.

This includes surgery of the blood vessels, of the head and spine, of the respiratory and digestive tracts—90 lectures and recitations. (Professor Vaughan.)

General Clinics—Clinical conferences, Ward Class Instruction and Dispensary Clinics—148 hours. (Professors Vaughan, Magruder, Gwynn, Reeves and Doctors Griffith and Glushak.)

Operative Surgery on the Cadaver.

This course consists in having the students of the fourth year perform ligation of arteries, the most important amputations and resection of joints and the common operations of general practice. (Assistant Professor Constas.)

Surgical Specialties.

Genito-Urinary Surgery.

PROFESSOR LOUIS C. LEHR, A.B., M.D.,
Associates—DRS. CONSTAS AND BLACKISTONE.

This course consists of sixteen lectures and recitations and 30 hours of practical work in the hospital and dispensary clinics. Opportunity will be afforded those desiring special instruction in cystoscopy and the use of the urethroscope—45 hours.

Orthopedic Surgery.

PROFESSOR JOHN B. DUNLOP, B.S., M.D.,

This course consists of 15 lectures and recitations and 30 hours of practical work in the Children's Hospital and the University Hospital and Dispensary—45 hours.

Gynecology.

ISAAC S. STONE, M.D.,
Professor of Gynecology.
J. THOMAS KELLY, JR., M.D.,
Associate Professor.
S. LOGAN OWENS, M.D.,
Instructor.
LOUIS M. BABENDREIER, M.D.,
Instructor.
SCOTT D. BRECKINRIDGE, M.D.,
Instructor.

Gynecology will be taught in didactic and practical lessons in the lecture room and in the University Hospital and various hospitals where clinical material is under the control of the Faculty.

THIRD YEAR.

Anatomy and physiology of the female pelvic organs. The development of these organs, their diseases, malformations and displacements will be carefully studied. Thirty hours' lectures and recitations and 30 hours clinical work—60 hours.

FOURTH YEAR.

Lectures will be given upon all subjects not embraced in the course provided for the third year. The diseases of the generative tract, including the degenerative or malignant conditions of the pelvic organs will receive attention. Especial attention will be given to ward work and clinical studies, history taking, etc. Thirty hours lectures and recitations and 35 hours clinical work. Total 65 hours.

Ophthalmology.

William H. Wilmer, M.D.,
Professor of Ophthalmology.
C. R. Dufour, Ph.D., M.D.,
Clinical Professor of Ophthalmology.
Louis S. Green, M.D.,
Associate Professor of Ophthalmology.
S. B. Muncaster, M.D.,
Associate Professor of Ophthalmology.
John W. Burke, M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Ophthalmology.

This course begins with lectures on the anatomy of the eye, illustrated by models, charts, and specimens under the microscope, followed by an explanation of the fundamental principles of physiological optics and the proper methods of examining the eye. The lectures are supplemented by quizzes and reviews. The lectures on the diseases of the eye are entirely practical, illustrative cases being taken from Dr. Wilmer's extensive service at the Episcopal Eye Hospital, Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital, and at the University Hospital. The class is divided into small sections in order that the clinical teaching shall be as nearly personal as possible.

An operative course is given upon pigs' eyes. Each student has the opportunity to perform the principal operations and familiarize himself with the technique. More than two thousand new cases of eye diseases are treated annually at the Episcopal Hospital alone. Every important operation on the eye is performed in the presence of each section.

Fifteen lectures and recitations—48 hours clinical work.

Oto-Laryngology.

PROF. WALTER A. WELLS, M.D.
MAURICE E. MILLER, M.D.,
Assistant Professor.
REGINALD R. WALKER, M.D.,
Assistant Professor.

The course in laryngology and otology, chiefly clinical, is conducted with a view to familiarizing the student with the various forms of nose, throat and ear affections met with in actual practice, and instructing him in modern methods of diagnosing and treating them. After some preliminary notice of the history of these specialties, followed by a thorough demonstration by means of charts and specimens of the anatomy and physiology of these organs the subject is taught by actual observation and study of the disease by contact with the patients.

The class is divided into sections, so that each student may be personally taught by the use of the instruments, and drilled in the methods of both subjective and objective examination of the patients. In the course of the year ample opportunity is afforded of witnessing the major and minor operations which have to be performed in connection with these specialties. Fifteen lectures and recitations and 45 hours of clinical work.

Dermatology and Syphilology.

PROF. HENRY H. HAZEN, A.B., M.D.
JAMES C. BLACKISTON, M.D.,
Assistant Professor.

Realizing that a knowledge of this important branch can be gained only by actual demonstration of the lesions, this subject is chiefly taught by clinical lectures at the Georgetown University Hospital and Dispensary, which furnishes material for the demonstration of all of the more common diseases of the skin. Fifteen lectures and recitations and 30 hours of clinical work.

VIII. DEPARTMENT OF OBSTETRICS.

Prof. Henry D. Fry, M.D., Sc.D., Chairman.
Head of Department.
William M. Sprigg, M.D.,
Associate Professor of Obstetrics.
Thomas F. Lowe, A.B., M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Obstetrics.
Prentiss Wilson, M.D.,
Assistant Professor of Obstetrics.
F. W. Hornbrook, M.D.,
Instructor in Antepartum Cases.
Leon A. Martel, M.D.,
Instructor in Obstetrics (Outdoor).
William J. Stanton, M.D.,
Instructor in Obstetrics (Outdoor).

The course is graded and consists of classified lectures and recitations illustrated by charts and plates, essays upon assigned subjects, demonstrations and of operations performed upon the manikin.

THIRD YEAR.

The external and internal anatomy of the female generative organs. The normal female pelvis—its planes, axes and internal and external diameters. The physiology of menstruation and conception.

Embryology—The anatomy and physiology of the foetus. The diameters of the foetal head and attitude of the foetus.

The changes in the maternal system as the result of pregnancy. The symptoms and diagnosis of pregnancy. The hygiene and medical supervision of pregnancy.

The physiology of normal labor. The mechanism of occipito-anterior positions. The conduct of normal labor.

The normal puerperium—its physiology and clinical course. The care of the mother and infant. Sixty hours of lectures and recitations; 35 hours practical work. Total, 95 hours.

FOURTH YEAR.

The pathology of pregnancy. The physiology and pathology of labor and the puerperium. The pelvic deformities. Obstetric operations. Sixty hours lectures and recitations; 40 hours practical work.

An opportunity is given to each student to perform the various obstetric operations, such as the application of forceps, version, etc., supplemented by an operative course on the Budin-Pinard manikin.

Every effort is made to instruct the senior students by clinical teaching. The wards of the University Hospital afford material for antepartum and post-partum instruction. Members of the teaching staff have opportunities also in other institutions to teach pelvimetry—ausculation and abdominal palpation and the diagnosis of presentations and positions.

Sections of five senior students alternate weekly in residing in the Maternity Hospital of the University. They witness all confinements of the ward patients, personally attend the cases of normal labor and accompany the Assistant Obstetrician on duty when he makes daily rounds in the wards.

In the out-door maternity service Senior Students are appointed to deliver and look after these patients under the supervision of an instructor, and render case histories of all patients thus attended.

Clinical Instruction and Advantages.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL.

Corner of Thirty-fifth and N Streets, N. W.

The Hospital and Dispensary are located in close proximity to the College grounds and accessible by three of the principal electric car lines in the city. This institution, with a capacity of 250 beds, is in every sense a modern University hospital, wholly under the control of the School of Medicine, and affords ample and excellent facilities for illustrating by clinical teaching and ward classes the didactic instruction given in the various practical branches of the school. During the past year a Maternity Service for 70 patients has been erected and also a department for mental and nervous diseases, with a complete equipment for hydro- and electro-therapeutics. Owing to the favorable location of the Hospital, the Outdoor Service and Emergency Department enjoys an unusual field of activity, a matter of great importance to the students, as they receive special training in the effective management of emergency cases. Clinics and Ward Classes are conducted by the following professors of this school and by members of the Hospital and Dispensary staff:

Children's Hospital.

W Street between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets, N. W.

Students may here observe the diseases, injuries, and deformities incident to infancy and childhood, together with the treatment appropriate therefor. Every facility will be given to observe and comprehend thoroughly the cases admitted to its wards. The out-patient department or dispensary is open every week day from 2.30 to 4.30 P. M. It is divided into medical and surgical services, and a service for diseases of the eye and ear. All these are free of access for medical students.

Drs. Adams, Wall and Dunlop, who are on the Staff, will give clinical instruction at this hospital.

Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital.

Fifteenth Street and Ohio Avenue, N. W.

During the last year over 15,000 patients were treated here, and over 2,200 surgical operations performed, many of capital importance. Unusual opportunities are afforded for acquiring practical experience in the ordinary duties of a physician. As a large proportion of the serious cases of accident that occur in the city are first brought to this hospital because of its central location, students become rapidly trained in the effective treatment of injuries demanding prompt assistance, and of that class of cases likely to be of the most importance to the young practitioner. Students are admitted to the services. The hospital offers excellent facilities for clinical instruction, and the ambulance service and casualty wards afford special advantages for studying traumatic and operative surgery.

The Lionel Laboratory, established in connection with the hospital, affords a fine opportunity for the study of practical bacteriology, pathology and Roentgen-ray work in association with surgery and medicine. Drs. Johnson, Magruder and Adams are on the Consulting Board.

Regular clinics are given by the following Professors of this school and other members of the Staff:

Surgical—Dr. Vaughan.

Medical—Dr. Thomas.

Diseases of the Eye, Ear and Skin—Drs. Wilmer, Dufour Muncaster and Blackistone.

Physical Diagnosis and Diseases of the Chest, Throat and Nose—Drs. Thomas, Wells, Moore and Jeffries.

Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

1147 Fifteenth Street, N. W.

This Hospital affords unusual facilities for clinical teaching in the specialties for which it is especially equipped.

Ophthalmological Classes by Drs. Wilmer, Burke and Greene.

Laryngological and Otological by Drs. Wells, Miller and Walker.

Washington Asylum Hospital.

19th and C Streets, S. E.

Tuberculosis Hospital.

Corner Upshur and 14th Streets, N. W.

These Hospitals, owned and controlled by the municipality, afford an abundance of clinical material. Clinical teaching in sections is conducted at the Tuberculosis Hospital by Prof. Thomas.

The City Hospital offers an excellent opportunity for the study of acute and chronic diseases and injuries. Professors White and Hickling utilize the material in the Psychopathic wards of the Institution and Professors Devereux, Marbury, Lee, Reeves and Madigan conduct Ward Class teaching in medicine and surgery, followed by post mortem work. The students spend all of the afternoon of Fridays and the forenoon of Saturdays in the wards and clinics of the Hospital.

Columbia Hospital for Women and Lying-In Asylum.

Corner Pennsylvania Avenue and 25th Street.

This Hospital offers excellent opportunities for gynecological and obstetrical demonstrations and section work, under the supervision of Professors Stone and Sprigg.

Examinations.

1. Professors and Instructors render monthly reports to the Dean upon the attendance and progress of each student in every course, and at the close of the first semester an examination is held to test the proficiency and advancement of every student.

2. At the conclusion of the instruction in each department there is held annually a written examination on all the subjects of that department. Each written examination may be supplemented by a practical or oral examination, should the Professor or Instructor in charge of that branch deem it desirable. Before the examination, the Instructors in the subordinate branches submit to the Professors in charge the questions that they desire to be included.

3. A student who has less than 80% credit for attendance in the course is not eligible for examination, and no student shall be admitted to examination for advancement or graduation until all indebtedness for instruction shall have been paid.

4. The standing of a student in any branch will be determined by combining the record of his recitations and examinations, both written and oral, and his laboratory and clinical work.

5. The instructor in each subordinate branch shall report within five days after examination is held the standing in said branch to the professor of the principal chair to which that branch is attached, and this rating shall be used in estimating the standing in the principal branch. The examination marks shall be upon a scale of 100 as a maximum mark and each student must attain a grade of 75 in all of his studies.

6. All reports on final examinations shall be rendered by the head of the Department within 10 days after such examinations are held.

Conditions and Failures.

1. A grade between 60 and 75% in any subject constitutes a condition and three conditions constitute a failure. A grade below 60% in any subject also constitutes a failure and the student will be required to repeat the course.

2. Candidates for graduation shall be informed of their success or failure by the Dean on the day following the report to the Faculty of their rating, and all other students within 15 days after their examination.

Rules Governing Removal of Conditions and Supplemental Examinations.

1. A student who fails in a course, but with a final grade in that course not below 60%, is entitled (after payment of the supplementary examination fee) to a supplementary examination at the next supplementary examination (see 4). This applies also to students who were absent from the regular examination.

2. A student who fails in a course with a final grade below 60% must repeat all, or part of the work, of that course before being eligible to an examination. Such repeating may be done (a) in an approved summer course, (b) under an approved tutor, or (c) with the regular course given to the next class, according as the Executive Faculty may direct.

3. After repeating a course the student is eligible to enter the next examination, regular or supplementary.

4. The supplementary examinations for the first, second and third years will be given between September 20th and 30th. Students must inform themselves of the exact dates by application to the Registrar.

5. A student, entitled to enter a supplementary examination, who fails to appear at the time scheduled for the examination, must repeat the course before being eligible to examination, except as provided under 6.

6. Under very exceptional circumstances, such as serious personal illness, a special examination may be allowed by vote of the Executive Faculty. This entails a fee in excess of that for supplementary examinations.

7. A subject once failed and removed by subsequent examination shall never entitle a grade above passing.

8. A student who fails to remove a condition at a supplementary examination must repeat the course before being entitled to another examination.

9. A student who fails to remove a condition after repeating a course cannot receive further instruction, examination or credit, in that subject in this school, and is thereby automatically excluded from graduation from this school.

Promotion and Classification.

The regular promotion from one class to another will be made by the Executive Faculty after the May examinations, and the student shall be informed in writing of his standing within 15 days after such an examination. It being impossible for a student to carry on the succeeding year's work with conditions of the preceding year, every effort must be made by the student to remove the conditions in the manner already prescribed.

A student will not be permitted to enter a higher class until he has shown his fitness to carry on the work of that class. In deciding the question of fitness the Faculty will be guided by the following rules:

1. By November 20th the student must have passed in all subjects of the class one year below that which he wishes to enter.

2. A student who is not promoted may be permitted to take any subject of the next higher class for which he is sufficiently prepared, provided it does not interfere with the scheduled work on any course in which he is conditioned.

3. Students shall not be permitted to graduate unless their standing is satisfactory in all of their studies. Upon failure in one but not more than two branches of the fourth year a student may, with the approval of the Executive Faculty, be allowed the privilege of a re-examination in the Fall, and if he fails again must repeat the course.

Requirements for Graduation.

The following are the requirements necessary for graduation:

1. The candidate must be of good moral character and at least twenty-one years of age; he must have studied medicine not less than four years, during which he must have attended four courses of instruction delivered in some recognized medical school, as already provided for, the last of which shall have been delivered in this institution.

2. The diplomas shall be signed by the Executive Faculty.

3. The graduation exercises shall take place within a month after the final examinations.

4. They shall be presided over by the President of the University and all details shall be arranged by a committee appointed for the purpose by the Executive Faculty.

Fees.

Matriculation fee	$ 5.00
Tuition each year	150.00
Graduation fee	10.00
Breakage deposit	10.00
Supplementary examinations, each	5.00

This includes all laboratory fees and charges for material used in practical anatomy and operative surgery. Students will, however, be required to pay all charges for injury to microscopes, apparatus and other college property.

2. For special students:

Didactic lectures for each of the Chairs	$20.00
Dissection	25.00
Didactic and laboratory course in normal histology, physiology, pathology and pathological histology and bacteriology, each	25.00
Practical chemistry, including chemicals, per course	25.00
Operative surgery on the cadaver	25.00

3. Payment of not less than one-fourth of the fees is required at the commencement of the session, the balance by January 1st, ensuing.

4. A student repeating the course for any reason will be charged full fees for that course, unless otherwise directed by the Executive Faculty.

5. Sons and wards of Professors or ex-Professors of the Medical School shall be allowed a rebate of one-half of the usual fees for tuition, other fees to be without reduction.

6. The following scholarships are established, each to cover the entire course of four years, and valid only during satisfactory conduct and progress.

One awarded by the University Alumni Association.

One paid for by the Carroll Morgan Endowment Fund.

One awarded by competitive examination to a graduate of the Washington High Schools for the Department of Science and Arts and Medicine of the value of $80.00 per annum.

The President of the University has ex-officio the power to appoint to scholarships graduates of sciences and arts and others deemed worthy of such favor, the value of such scholarships being left to his discretion, but the number in no case to exceed 5 per cent of the total number of matriculates.

The expenses of a student during the school year, including tuition, books, board and lodging, laundry, and other incidentals, need not exceed $375.00, and $450.00 will be a liberal allowance.

Checks should be made payable to the School of Medicine, Georgetown University.

Requisites for Admission.

Candidates for admission must hereafter have a minimum preliminary education of not less than four years from an accredited High School or its equivalent. The preliminary examination will not be required of an applicant who can show that he has covered the work of such an examination by furnishing an official certificate to that effect issued by a reputable literary or scientific college, academy, high school, or State examining board.

Graduates in medicine are eligible for admission to the second class, and are excused from examination in the studies pertaining to the medical course of recognized institutions.

Those presenting certificates of examination for advanced standing from other reputable dental colleges of equal requirements will be admitted to the corresponding higher class without further examination.

The preliminary examinations will be held at college building on September. The regular session will begin September 1913, and end May 31, 1914. The lectures for the day course begin at 9 A. M. and continue till 6 P. M. The lectures for the evening sessions begin at 5 P. M. The Infirmary will be open daily from 1 to 5 P. M., and three mornings per week from 9 A. M.

Students applying for admission later than ten days after the opening day of the session cannot be credited with a full course unless such delay is due to sickness, which must be vouched for by the certificate of a reputable practicing physician. In such case the date of admission shall not be later than twenty days from the opening day.

Methods of Instruction.

The course of instruction will consist of clinical and illustrated lectures, recitations, demonstrations, dissecting and laboratory work, and clinical instructions. The number of students taken in each class allows each member to come into close contact with the professors, and insures the most thorough individual instruction. The Dental Laboratory is fully equipped with every modern appliance and ample lockers, etc. Here the student receives his first instruction. Every process of value known to mechanical dentistry is taught in this department.

Demonstrations by the instructors begin with taking impressions of the mouth by the use of the several materials employed for that purpose. The instruction, in its progress, includes consideration of the construction of artificial dentures and obturators in all their wide variety.

THE CLINICAL DEPARTMENT OR INFIRMARY consists of large operating rooms, supplied with all the latest equipments. The chairs are so arranged as to command the best light. There is a separate room for the administration of anæsthetics for the extraction of teeth; also for taking impressions, occlusions, and doing work requiring the use of plaster or wax.

There is also a department of Oral Surgery attached to the Georgetown University Hospital, where students have the privilege of witnessing all the operations pertaining to cleft palate, hare-lip, fractured maxilla, empyema of antrum, etc. We have also installed in this department the most modern X-ray apparatus for examination of defects and diseases of oral cavity, and for making Skiagraphs in cases of delayed eruption of teeth—impacted teeth, fracture of the jaw, etc. Both infirmaries are under the immediate and continuous direction of a corps of competent demonstrators, who are ready to instruct and assist the students in their work. In these departments the student is taught the art of operative and prosthetic dentistry. The press of patients is very great, and the opportunity for practice is excellent. The student not only witnesses every kind of dental manipulation as practiced by the experienced operator, but is himself taught to accomplish all that pertains to the daily duties of a dental surgeon by actual practice.

This intimate union of theoretical and practical instruction will be insisted on during the entire session.

NO STUDENT WILL BE ALLOWED TO OPERATE IN THE INFIRMARY unless provided with the necessary instruments, a list of which may be obtained on application to the demonstrator in charge, with the exception of forceps, lathes, and vulcanizers. All expenses attending operations upon college patients are borne by the institution.

Students must continue in attendance until the close of the session in order to obtain credit for the full term.

Any student associated in any capacity in an advertising dental office will not be allowed to continue his course.

The operating rooms of the college are open for instruction the entire school year, and students are obliged to attend regularly each session during the year.

A practical course of four months is given by the Infirmary, from June 1st to October 1st, for which a fee of $25.00 is charged. The course embraces a thorough instruction in Operative and Prosthetic Dentistry and Anæthetics.

Curriculum.

The instruction embraces a graded course of three years, each course followed by examinations thereon.

Punctual attendance upon the lectures and clinics is required of all students. The Faculty reserves the right to exclude from examinations, either in course or final, any student who has been habitually absent from lectures or other exercises.

DENTAL SCHOOL.

The following is a schedule of the time per week devoted to each study:

First Year.

Lectures and Recitations.		Laboratory.
Anatomy	4 hours	As Assigned
Osteology	2 hours for 3 mos.
Histology, General and Dental	4 hours
Materia Medica	2 hours	1 hour
Chemistry	3 hours for 3 mos.	3 hours for 3½ mos.
Physics	1 hour
Operative Technics	1 hour	12 hours
Prosthetic Technics	1 hour	12 hours
Physiology	2 hours

Second Year.

Anatomy	4 hours	As Assigned
Physiology	2 hours
Therapeutics	1 hour
Bacteriology		12 hours for 2 mos.
Operative Dentistry	2 hours	As Assigned
Prosthetic Dentistry	2 hours	As Assigned
Oral Surgery	1 hour
Dental Pathology	1 hour
Infirmary Practice	Throughout the year

Third Year.

General Pathology	2 hours
Dental Pathology	1 hour
Oral Surgery	1 hour
Prosthetic Dentistry	2 hours	1 hour for 3 mos.
Operative Dentistry	2 hours
Metallurgy	1 hour
Dental Medicine—Therapeutics	1 hour
Orthodontia	1 hour
Infirmary Practice	Throughout the year

Course of Study.

Oral Prosthesis.

PROF. SHIRLEY W. BOWLES, D.D.S., In Charge.
C. A. BAKER, D.D.S., Associate Professor,
Crown and Bridge Work.
J. G. SIBLEY, D.D.S., Crown and Bridge Work.
FREDERICK CARY, D.D.S., Crown and Bridge Work.
LEO J. SOLBACH, D.D.S., Metallurgy.

The instruction in this department is designed to impart a knowledge of all that pertains to the construction and application of artificial dentures and other oral appliance.

The more important subjects considered are: The preparation and treatment of the mouth for artificial dentures, the taking of impressions, a system of perfect articulations, the method of constructing the different bases used for dentures, and the construction and application of obturators.

Esthetic or artistic dentistry is systematically taught and enforced. In this it is shown how dentistry may be employed for improving natural deformities and for restoring the contours of the face.

A special feature of the teaching in this department will be the exhaustive study of Crown and Bridge work. Students will be thoroughly grounded in the principles of a safe and conservative practice, so that they may clearly appreciate the indications for Crown and Bridge work. This will be accomplished by clinical instructions, as well as special demonstrations.

Careful attention will be paid to the chemistry of metals and all the materials used.

Metallurgy.

A thorough knowledge of metal used in dentistry is taught. Students are also instructed in the art of making and tempering instruments. The amalgam used in the school is made by the students under the supervision of the Professor of Metallurgy.

Orthodontia.

PROF. C. A. HAWLEY, D.D.S.

The treatment of irregularities of the dental arch requires great skill and judgment. Lectures upon this subject will be thoroughly practical, and the student will be taught the most approved and scientific methods of correcting these deformities. This course of teaching will be illustrated by practical cases.

Crown and Bridge Work.

In addition to the presentation of this subject under Oral Prosthesis, a technical and a clinical course will be given with special instruction in porcelain crown and bridge work.

Operative Dentistry.

PROF. H. J. ALLEN, M.D., D.D.S., In Charge.
FRANK A. CASTEEL, D.D.S., Assistant Professor.
C. M. GEARHART, D.D.S., Oral Hygiene and Prophylaxis.

Instruction in this course presents the approved methods, appliances and materials used in filling teeth, together with the principles which form the basis of practice.

The treatment and restoration of diseased teeth and associated structures is presented from a combined mechanical and therapeutical standpoint.

Dental Pathology and Histology.

PROF. B. L. TAYLOR, D.D.S.

The histology and embryology of the teeth and surrounding parts are reviewed, and a general discussion of the diseases of the teeth and the mouth given with clinical demonstrations.

The lectures on this subject by Dr. Taylor include the comparative anatomy and the development of the teeth and their component tissues, with the functions of dental organs, all viewed from the standpoint of the practical dental practitioner.

Practice of Dental Medicine.

PROF. J. T. MCCLENAHAN, D.D.S.

Special attention will be given to dental pharmacology and the practical application of such drugs and agents as are generally used in a dental infirmary or in actual practice.

The oral manifestations of systemic conditions will receive attention.

Oral Hygiene and Prophylaxis.

This important subject will be thoroughly presented by a series of lectures, supplemented by clinical demonstrations in the infirmary.

Operative and Prosthetic Technics.

PROF. W. B. HOOFNAGLE, D.D.S., In Charge.
FRANK A. CASTEEL, D.D.S.,
E. J. BOE, D.D.S.,
Operative Technics.
P. BONNARD BAIN, D.D.S.
GEO. H. BECKER, D.D.S.
V. J. LOHR, D.D.S.
Prosthetic Technics.

This course, while of importance to all new students, possesses especial value to such as have not had the advantage of office pupilage and laboratory work before entering college. It combines the features of manual training and exact observation, enabling the student to become familiar with the forms and structures of the teeth, and to acquire a certain dexterity in the use of instruments before operating upon the living subject.

Oral Surgery.

PROF. WALTER D. WEBB, Major and Surgeon, U. S. A., Retired.

Oral surgery is a specialty which is a distinct outgrowth from dentistry. As the work of the dentist came to include operations upon the surrounding tissues, as well as upon the teeth themselves, the adoption of surgical methods and more thorough training in the principles and practice of surgery became necessary. The addition of instruction in this branch to the dental curriculum includes thorough instruction in the most advanced methods of operative technic, surgical anæsthesia, asepsis, and antisepsis, and after-treatment of the case.

The instruction is both didactic and clinical, and students are encouraged to study and treat personally cases under the supervision of the Professor of Oral Surgery.

Anatomy.

PROF. FRANK BAKER, M.D., PH.D., In Charge.
W. O. OWEN, M.D., Professor of Practical Anatomy.
PHILIP NEWTON, M.D., Assistant Professor of Anatomy.
WM. F. HEMLER, M.D., Demonstrator of Anatomy.
ERNEST L. MORGAN, B.S., M.D., Assistant Professor of Anatomy.
(Histology and Embryology).
B. L. TAYLOR, D.D.S., Instructor in Dental Histology.

General anatomy will be thoroughly taught by this chair in the most careful manner. Models, plates, and the cadaver are abundantly supplied for the proper illustration of this subject. Special attention will be given to the descriptive anatomy of the head, face, neck and oral cavity.

The demonstrator of practical anatomy will have charge of the class in the dissecting room, where dissecting material will be supplied in abundance.

Osteology.

This course is conducted by Dr. Newton, and includes a careful study of every bone in the human body, the pupil being required to point out and designate the important and technical features upon an actual specimen. For the study of the skeleton is very much like the study of the softer parts in the dissecting room, and is an indispensable preliminary to that work.

Histology.

This course is conducted by Dr. Morgan, and consists chiefly of laboratory work. Recitations, with explanatory talks illustrated by charts and blackboard drawings, precede the laboratory work of the day and aid in interpreting its specimens. The laboratory is large and well lighted. Each student is furnished with a microscope, locker and accessories, and is instructed in the theory and practical use of the microscope. The elementary tissues are studied in the fresh state as well as after being stained and mounted. In the study of the organs, practical instruction is given in the preparation of mounted specimens, the actual work so far as is practicable, being done by the student. The relations of histology to embryology, physiology and pathology are duly considered. Throughout the course, drawings with descriptive notes are made of the microscopic appearances.

Physiology.

REV. FRANCIS A. TONDORF, S.J., In Charge.
HENRY R. SCHREIBER, M.D., Assistant Professor.
JOSEPH J. MCCARTHY, A.B., M.D., Assistant Professor.

One of the features of the progress and development of modern Dentistry is its closer association with the wider field of General Medicine, through recognition of the fact that the foundations of each special branch are common to all. The dental practitioner of today, therefore, must acquire a fuller knowledge of the whole organism, in order that he may the more intelligently deal with that part of it which is his immediate province. To this end the student will find, in this course, especial emphasis laid upon the fundamental principles of Physiology, while the practical application will be pointed out in lectures, recitations, and practical demonstrations.

Materia Medica and Therapeutics.

PROF. RYAN DEVEREUX, B.S., A.M., M.D.

A complete course of materia medica and general therapeutics will be given by this chair, while special attention will be called to the nature and therapeutic uses of those drugs required in dentistry. Students will be given opportunities to become personally familiar with the physical properties of drugs, the compounding of prescriptions, and the methods of applying topical remedies.

In this course the student will be made familiar with the different agents used to accomplish anesthesia, the contraindication to their use, and practical demonstration in the infirmary of the different methods employed for the administration of the various anæsthetics.

Chemistry and Toxicology.

PROF. JOHN D. HIRD, A.M., LL.M., In Charge.

It will be the aim of the professor of this chair to give an accurate knowledge of the principles of the science, dwelling especially upon those points which are of peculiar interest to the dental student. Careful attention will be paid to the vital chemistry of anæsthetics, the special chemistry of the mouth, the stomach, and intestinal tract.

Pathology and Bacteriology.

RALPH A. HAMILTON, M.D., In Charge.

The study of these important subjects is obligatory. This has been made necessary on account of their close relationship to dental pathology and therapeutics. The instructions are principally practical, and embrace full laboratory teaching of the most important subjects of these studies.

Physics.

PROF. FRANCIS A. TONDORF, S.J.

A course in the elements of physics, with special reference to their application to medicine and dentistry, will be given during the first year.

Graduation.

At the close of the third year a student who has passed all examinations satisfactorily receives the degree of Doctor of

Dental Surgery (D.D.S.) on the following conditions:

Candidate must be of age and of good moral character.

Candidate must have passed a satisfactory examination in all the branches of the curriculum; must have attended the practical instruction in all departments, and the last course of instruction must have been at this college.

Candidate must sign an agreement with the Dean to live up to the ethics of the profession.

The examinations are conducted orally, and in writing, and are held at the middle and close of each term, thus dividing the strain upon the student.

Prior to such examination specimens of operations upon the natural organs performed in the Dental Infirmary must be exhibited to the Professor of Operative Dentistry, and such other specimen work as he may require; also an approved specimen of dental mechanism constructed in the Dental Laboratory upon a model of practical use must be submitted to the Professor of Oral Prothesis.

No student will be admitted to examination for advancement or graduation until all indebtedness for instruction shall have been paid.

Fees.

Matriculation (payable but once)	$ 5.00
Tuition, each year	125.00
Graduation Fee	10.00

Students will be required to make an annual deposit of $10.00 to cover loss, breakage or damage to the property of the school. This deposit, less the charges made against it, is refunded to the student upon his withdrawal.

A student repeating a course will be charged full fees for that course.

Payment of not less than one-fourth of the fees is required at the commencement of the session, the balance by January 1st ensuing. This payment must be made upon registration, and students will not be admitted for re-examination without previous registration.

ADVANTAGES OF STUDYING LAW IN WASHINGTON.

While a more systematic, comprehensive training for the bar may be obtained in a law school than by reading in a law office, each method of education has its advantage. At Georgetown Law School the class exercises begin at 6.30 p. m., thus enabling the student to enter a law office and to become familiar with the practical work of the profession, while pursuing his studies at the School. So far as practicable, students who place themselves in timely communication with the Secretary are located in law offices in the City, where they may gain an insight into the actual conduct of the business of the profession. The arrangement of the class exercises at the hour referred to also enables the employees of the Departments of the Government, and others whose time is occupied during the day, to avail themselves of the privileges of the School. In addition to the Law Library of the School, and the Riggs Memorial Library of the University, containing over 100,000 volumes, students have access to the Law Library of the Capitol, and to the Library of the Supreme Court of the United States. These two collections of law books are unequalled anywhere in the United States. The Senate and House of Representatives, the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the Court of Claims, the Court of Commerce, the Court of Customs Appeals, and the Interstate Commerce Commission are in session during the academic year; attorneys also appear daily before the Patent Office, the Pension Office, the General Land Office, and the several Executive Departments of the Government. The opportunities for professional study and for acquiring familiarity with practice, thus presented, are not found elsewhere. Especially is this true in the case of the Supreme Court of the United States, before which the student may hear the arguments of the foremost representatives of the American Bar. Washington offers advantages for the study of patent law and practice which are, of course, unequalled, by reason of the fact that the Patent Office is located in the City.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

Georgetown Law School, established in October, 1870, and one of the oldest law schools in the District of Columbia, is a department of Georgetown University, founded in 1789. From 1870 to 1897 the course of study prescribed for the degree of Bachelor of Laws covered two years. In accordance with the recommendation of the Committee on Legal Education of the American Bar Association, the course was extended to three years in 1897. In 1878, a Postgraduate Course, of one year, leading to the degree of Master of Laws, was established. Special students were admitted beginning with 1878. In 1910, a course in Patent Law was added, and, since then, the degree of Master of Patent Law has been conferred.

On November 30, 1891, the main portion of the present law school building was erected and occupied. In January, 1911, an addition to the original building was erected, doubling the capacity of the school. A further addition to the Law School buildings has been completed and was occupied in October, 1913. This new addition, equal in size to the older buildings, contains additional lecture halls and recitation rooms, and a large auditorium, with a seating capacity of 825, suitable for special lectures to the entire student body, debates and similar exercises. The building owned and occupied by the Georgetown Law School is considered one of the best equipped of its kind.

SYSTEM OF INSTRUCTION.

In the Undergraduate Course, a combination of the text-book and case-book methods is employed. The advantage derived from the study of approved cases is fully appreciated, and major subjects in the course are treated by the text-book method in the first year of study, and by the case-book method in the year following. Where a text-book is mainly used, leading cases are assigned for study in connection with the text. The student is required to read the daily assignment for each course in advance of the lecture. The lecturer then goes over the ground covered in the text and cases, explaining what is obscure or difficult, giving practical illustrations of the principles treated, and frequently questioning the student upon the matter under discussion. A recitation, in charge of an Instructor in Law, follows, in which the same matter is again considered; questions based upon the text and cases are put to the student, and he is required to apply principles to concrete cases. The interval between the lecture and the recitation is sufficiently long to enable the student to give additional time and preparation to the subject-matter. There are thus several opportunities to become familiar with each lesson, first, by study in advance of the lecture; second, by the explanation of the lecturer; third, by reading in preparation for the recitation; and, fourth, in the recitation itself.

In the courses treated by the case-book method alone, selected cases are assigned in advance, and the student is expected to brief the statement of facts and the law of each case in preparing himself upon the lesson. The professor takes up each case in turn in the class-room, requiring the student to give a statement of the facts and of the principle of law involved; questions are then put upon the particular case, and upon similar statements of fact, with a view to developing a full knowledge of the principle, in the customary manner followed in the teaching of law by the case-book method.

The lecture classes at Georgetown Law School are comparatively large, owing to the growth of the School, but, as will appear from the Programme of Instruction, beginning at page 9, the classes are subdivided, for the purpose of recitations, into smaller sections, each in charge of an Instructor in Law. In this way the student is called upon to recite frequently. The work of these Instructors in Law is pursued under the immediate direction of the Lecturer, as a result of which the instruction in the School, on each branch of the law taught, is uniform and consistent. Lecturers and Instructors will be glad to assist students by further individual explanation at any time after the regular class hours.

ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS.

Undergraduate Course. The minimum requirement of candidates for admission is a high school education, or its equivalent. At the time admission is sought, graduates of Colleges and High Schools must produce certificates, under the hand and seal of the proper officer of the institution, certifying as to their graduation; evidence of work at Colleges and High Schools must be produced in the same form. These certificates will be kept on file in the School. If evidence of graduation from a College or High School can not be presented, an entrance examination will be required. This examination will cover, in general, the principal subjects taught in a High School, particularly English and American History, Mathematics, Civil Government, Political Economy, English Rhetoric and Composition. A thorough preliminary education as a preparation for the study of law is of utmost importance, and the entrance examinations are conducted in the interest of prospective students, in order to determine whether their education is such as to fit them for that study. Satisfactory evidence of good moral character is required by the Faculty of each candidate for admission to the School.

Postgraduate Course. This course is open to graduates of approved law schools in which the course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws covers three years, and to those members of the bar of jurisdictions in which three years of study are required before admission, who have spent one year in practice after having been admitted. Certificates of graduation or of membership in the bar must be presented at the time admission is sought.

Patent Law Course. The course is open to students of the Senior Class and of the Postgraduate School, to members of the Bar and to graduates of approved Law Schools.

Special Students. Persons unable to meet the entrance requirements for the Undergraduate Course may, with the consent of the professors whose courses they desire to take, be admitted as special students, not candidates for a degree, provided their general education and business experience, in the judgment of the Faculty, qualify them to pursue the study of law with profit.

THE ACADEMIC YEAR.

The academic year, extending over more than eight calendar months, usually opens on the first day of October; should the first day of October fall on Sunday, the opening day will be designated by the Faculty. The year closes on the sixth day of June, following. The academic year 1913-1914, opens on Wednesday, October 1, 1913, in the Georgetown Law School Building, Sixth and E Streets, N. W., in the City of Washington. The Christmas Recess will extend from Monday, December 22, 1913, to Thursday, January 1, 1914, inclusive. The Easter Recess will extend from Thursday, April 9, 1914, to Saturday, April 11, 1914, inclusive.

Undergraduate Course.

PROGRAMME OF INSTRUCTION.

The course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws at Georgetown Law School covers three school years, and is intended to give the student a thorough training in the fundamental principles of American jurisprudence.

An outline of this course of instruction follows:

FIRST YEAR.

Elementary Law, Professor DOUGLAS. First Term.

This course consists in a general survey of the system of American jurisprudence; it is intended to serve as an introduction to the study of law, and to give the student a clear understanding of the relative importance and position of each branch of the law taught later in the course.

Text-book: Robinson on Elementary Law.

Criminal Law and Procedure, Professor WRIGHT. First Term.

The elements of the common law felonies and misdemeanors and the principal statutory offenses are treated in this course. Special attention is given to the theory of the law of crimes. Supplementing the general course, the subject of criminal procedure is also discussed.

Text-book: Clark on Criminal Law. (2nd Edition.)

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. John E. Laskey, Mr. C. C. Miller, Mr. Vernon E. West, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Personal Property, Professor EASBY-SMITH. First Term.

This course includes an extended consideration on the nature and classes of personal property, the modes of alienating it, and the rights and obligations incident to its ownership.

Text-book: Darlington on Personal Property.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Jos. D. Sullivan, Mr. Conrad Reid, and Mr. Clinton James.

Contracts, Professor GOULD. Second Term.

The fundamental principles of the law of contracts are discussed in detail in this course, and their application illustrated by references to the leading cases on the subject, both English and American. Consideration is also given to the subject of quasi-contracts.

Text-book: Clark on Contarcts; Throckmorton's Cases on Contracts.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Edmund Brady, and Mr. Charles J. Murphy.

Real Property, Professor BAKER. Second Term.

A full treatment of the general principles of the law of real property is given in this course, particular attention being paid to the historical side of the subject, and including tenure and seisin, equitable ownership, future estates and interests, rights and obligations incident to ownership, the transfer of rights in land.

Text-book: Minor and Wurtz on Real Property.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Joseph D. Sullivan, Mr. Conrad Reid, Mr. Vernon E. West, and Mr. Ralph D. Quinter.

Domestic Relations, Professor WRIGHT. Third Term.

The law governing the relationships of master and servant, guardian and ward, parent and child, and husband and wife, is considered in this course, particularly the rights of the husband or wife in the property of the other during coverture and in the case of intestacy.

Text-book: Spencer on Domestic Relations.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Paul E. Lesh, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Sales and Bailments, Professor ADKINS. Third Term.

In this course the fundamental principles governing sales of personal property, and the law of bailments, are fully treated.

Text-book: Tiffany on Sales. Browne on Bailments.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Paul E. Lesh, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Torts, Professor DOUGLAS. Third Term.

The course of lectures on this subject, besides comprising an exposition of the general principles underlying the law of Torts, includes a discussion of the subjects of false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, slander and libel, injuries to family relations, including death by wrongful act, trespass, nuisance, negligence and other kindred subjects. Leading cases illustrative of the various subjects embraced under the general title of Torts will be used by the Professor, and it will be necessary for the student to use both the text-book and the volume of illustrative cases.

Text-books: Chase's Cases on Torts (2nd edition). Cooley's Elements of Torts.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Jos. D. Sullivan, Mr. Conrad Reid, Mr. C. C. Miller, and Mr. Vernon E. West.

SECOND YEAR.

Real Property, Professor JOHN J. HAMILTON and Professor HOEHLING. First Term.

Elaborating the course on real property in the first year, in this course it is sought to give the student a thorough acquaintance with the modern law of real property by the case-book method of instruction; part of the period is devoted to a lecture, and part to a discussion of approval cases, illustrating the more important principles.

Text-book: Teideman's Cases on Real Property.

Insurance, Professor O'DONOGHUE. First Term.

The essentials of a valid contract of insurance, the leading doctrines regarding the more important principles of the general subject, mistake, misrepresentation and fraud are treated in this course.

Text-book: Elliot on Insurance.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Edmund Brady, and Mr. Paul E. Lesh.

Agency, Professor WILSON. First Term.

The principles of the law of agency, with references to leading cases are considered in this course.

Text-book: Huffcut on Agency.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Charles E. Roach, Mr. Edmund Brady, and Mr. Paul E. Lesh.

Criminal Procedure, Professor ADKINS. First Term.

Supplementing the course on the substantive law of crimes, in this course the principles of criminal pleading and procedure are fully treated.

Text-book: Clark on Criminal Procedure.

Common Law Pleading, Professor CLABAUGH. Second Term.

Special attention is given to the historical side of this subject; the fundamental principles of the common law with respect to actions, the purpose and effect of different pleas and the regular steps in an action at law, from its commencement to judgment are fully considered.

Text-book: Perry on Pleading.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. George E. Sullivan, Mr. C. C. Miller, and Mr. C. Clinton James.

Negotiable Instruments, Professor DOUGLAS. Second Term.

The lectures on this subject include a detailed discussion of the various kinds of negotiable contracts, their essential ingredients, the parties to them, the law of transfer by endorsement, the rights of holder for value, and actions and defenses.

Text-book: Daniel and Douglas on Negotiable Instruments.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. John E. Laskey, Mr. Paul E. Lesh, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Partnership, Professor HOGAN. Second Term.

The growth of the law of partnership, and its general principles are carefully studied in this course, with references to leading cases on the subject.

Text-book: Mechem, Elements of Partnership.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. John E. Laskey, Mr. Paul E. Lesh, and Mr. James B. Horigan.

Equity, Professor GOULD. Third Term.

A very thorough and careful consideration of the fundamental principles of equity jurisdiction, its growth and development as a separate system of jurisprudence, including a discussion of equitable remedies.

Text-book: Bispham on Equity Jurisprudence. Shepard's Selected Cases.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. William Henry White, Mr. C. Clinton James, and Mr. Ralph D. Quinter.

Bankruptcy, Professor JOHN J. HAMILTON. Third Term.

A thoroughly practical course on the subject of bankruptcy, based upon a careful explanation of the Bankruptcy Act, Section by Section, including a consideration of the more important cases.

Text: The Bankruptcy Act and Remington on Bankruptcy (Student's Edition).

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. William Henry White, Mr. C. Clinton James, and Mr. Ralph D. Quinter.

Evidence, Professor HOEHLING. Third Term.

The more important topics in this course include a discussion of the place of evidence in the general system of law, a full analysis of the principal rules of evidence and consideration, particularly, of the competency of witnesses, at common law and by statute, with special reference to the respective functions of the jury and the court. The text of the author is brought down to date by references to leading State and Federal decisions.

Text-book: Greenleaf on Evidence (XV. Ed.).

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. John E. Laskey, Mr. Edmund Brady, and Mr. Charles J. Murphy.

THIRD YEAR.

Equity, Professor GOULD. First Term.

A continuation of the course on equity jurisprudence begun in the preceding year, special attention being given to leading cases illustrating the maxims and principles of equity.

Text-books: Bispham on Equity Jurisprudence; Shepard's Selected Cases.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. William Henry White and Mr. Ralph D. Quinter.

Equity Pleading and Practice, Common Law Practice, Professor CLABAUGH. First Term.

The principles of equity pleading, including the nature and effect of the various pleas, are treated at length in this course; the student is instructed in the practical conduct of a case at law, according to common law practice.

Text-book: Fletcher on Equity Pleading.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Howard Boyd and Mr. George E. Sullivan.

Common Law Pleading, Professor WILSON and Professor O'DONOGHUE. Second Term.

The case-book method of study only is employed in this course, with a view to developing a clearer understanding of the application of the principles of common law pleading, taught in the second year class.

Text-book: Ames' Cases on Pleading.

Corporations, Professor WRIGHT. Second Term.

The law of private corporations is fully treated in this course; their creation, management, powers and dissolution are considered, including the relations and liabilities of stockholders, members and third parties. Municipal corporations and their powers are also considered.

Text-books: Clark on Corporations; Shepard's Cases on Corporations.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Howard Boyd and Mr. William Henry White.

Constitutional Law, Professor SHEPARD. Third Term.

A careful study of the principles of constitutional law, including a consideration of constitutional history, with references to leading decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Text-book: Cooley's Principles of Constitutional Law.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Howard Boyd and Mr. Geo. E. Sullivan.

Wills, Professor HOGAN. Third Term.

This course treats of the testamentary disposition of property, real and personal, the essentials of a valid will, and, in general, probate practice and the administration of estates.

Text-book: Rood on Wills.

The Instructors in Law, assigned to conduct the recitations on this subject, are Mr. Howard Boyd and Mr. Geo. E. Sullivan.

Evidence, Professor BAKER and Professor HOGAN. Third Term.

This course consists in a careful study and analysis of selected cases, illustrating the leading principles of the law of evidence; it is intended to develop a thorough knowledge of this subject, which is essential in the trial of cases.

Text-book: Thayer's Cases on Evidence.

COURSE IN PRACTICE.

The system of instruction in practice includes lectures on that subject and the preparation of legal instruments by the student in addition to the customary work before the practice courts.

Special attention is paid to practice court work, with a view to duplicating, as nearly as possible, the conditions surrounding the actual conduct of cases in court.

In order that the student may be in a position to derive the utmost advantage from the practice court, a preliminary course of instruction and practical exercises has been established. In this course, the drafting of pleadings, contracts and other legal instruments is taken up in a thoroughly practical manner, and the student is taught how to look up the law and to prepare opinions for clients and briefs for submission to the court. The preparation of cases for trial, and trial procedure, including the impanelling and challenging of jurors, the examination of witnesses, presentation of the law of the case to the court and of the facts to the jury, raising of objections in the course of the trial and their preservation for review on appeal, and the procedure incident to the removal of cases from the trial to the appellate court are carefully explained, step by step, in the conduct of actual cases before the trial judge. The students are also required to prepare legal instruments and pleadings of various sorts, and to criticise, under the supervision of the professor in charge of the course, the papers prepared and submitted by one another.

Courts of first instance and an appellate court have been established, all presided over by experienced trial lawyers. The courts of first instance hold two sessions weekly, and their work is divided into general and special terms. At special term, motions, demurrers, and all proceedings of an interlocutory or preliminary nature which, in actual practice, ordinarily precede the trial or final hearing upon the merits, are heard and disposed of, while at general term such proceedings are had as are incident to and connected with the trial and final hearing. The practice conforms, in general, to that of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. Cases may be removed to the Court of Appeals from the trial court by writ of error or appeal, conformably to the practice of the United States Supreme Court.

All students in the third-year class are required, as a condition to graduation, to attend regularly all sessions of the practice courts as well as the lectures and other class exercises, and to obtain a satisfactory rating in the course.

The clerk of the practice court is the clerk of the equity side of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

THE POSTGRADUATE SCHOOL.

The system of instruction in this School constitutes real university postgraduate work in law, along more advanced lines than those customarily followed in undergraduate education. The student is thus afforded an opportunity to round out the legal education received in the undergraduate course, by a fuller investigation of the fundamental principles of the Common Law, the study of comparative jurisprudence and the continuation, at the same time, of the practical training of the profession. As will appear from the list of professors constituting the Faculty of the Postgraduate School, the greater number are specialists in the subjects treated by them. In several courses, the text used is that of the lecturer. In general, conducted examinations are not held; at the conclusion of a course, certain leading topics are assigned by the lecturer and the student is required to submit, within a prescribed time, a thesis upon these topics, thus allowing ample opportunity for a thorough investigation of each topic under consideration. Supplementing the courses on the theory and history of law, there is a course in General Practice, Pleading and Evidence, and a course in Federal Procedure and Practice. The Postgraduate School aims to encourage individual research of legal problems. The special opportunities for such work in Washington are noted in the introductory statement on page 7.

PROGRAMME OF INSTRUCTION.

History and Development of Law and Comparative Jurisprudence, History of English Law, Professor CONRAD.

In these courses a series of lectures is delivered on the history of the development of law, from ancient to modern times, particular attention being given to the growth of the English Common Law, as compared with the Roman or Civil Law, and other systems of jurisprudence.

International Law and Foreign Relations of the United States, History of Constitutional Government, Professor TAYLOR.

In the first of these courses, the fundamental principles of International Law are carefully considered, with special reference to their historical development. By the same method, the principles of constitutional government are developed in such a way as to outline the origin and growth of the English constitutional system in the old land and its reproduction in the new. In a word, the entire process is outlined through which, first, typical English States in America first came into existence; second, through which such States were finally united in the Federal Republic of the United States. The texts used are those of the Lecturer; International Public Law by Hannis Taylor, and The Origin and Growth of the American Constitution by Hannis Taylor.

Legal Ethics, Professor HAMILTON.

Consideration is given in this course to the character, equipment, habits and conduct necessary for professional achievement and standing, which should be possessed, cultivated and applied by the lawyer in his relations to the courts, to the profession, to clients and to the public; practical suggestions are also given, which will be helpful to the student entering upon the practice of the profession.

General Practice, Pleading and Evidence, Professor BAKER.

In this course the student will be required to draft not only the different pleadings, both in law and equity, and all motions incident to practice in both courts, but contracts, deeds, leases, and other papers, which come within the practice of the general practitioner. Questions arising on the pleadings prepared by the students will be argued by them, and questions of practice and evidence will be put to the class, and, after proper preparation, every student will be expected to argue on the side assigned to him. Students are also called upon to argue question extempore after they have been fully discussed by the students assigned, and after full discussion a number of students are assigned as a court to decide the case. Each student assigned to a case must present a written brief, and all decisions rendered by the students, as a court, must be in writing.

History and Institutes of Roman Law, Professor SMITH.

The purpose of this course is to indicate in what respects the development of the Roman law resembled and in what respects it differed from that of the English law; to emphasize those doctrines of the Roman law which are of modern interest; and to compare the Roman and the English solutions of similar legal problems. In these respects the lectures supplement the ordinary treatises. Students are advised, before attending the course, to read Ledlie's translation of Sohm's Institutes, or Moyle's Institutes.

Federal Practice and Procedure, Professor BROWNE.

This course deals, in particular, with the Judicial Code (act of March 3, 1911; 36 Stat., 1087; Chap. 231. Public No. 475; "An act to Codify, Revise and Amend the Laws relating to the Judiciary") and, in general, with the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts and practice before them.

Railroad Law, Professor YERKES.

The various regulative acts of Congress on the subject of carriers are considered, in general, in this course; the fundamental principles regarding the duties and liabilities of carriers of passengers and of freight are treated at length.

Conflict of Laws, Professor MINOR.

The course begins with a discussion of domicil, and of the proper use of foreign laws in questions involving the status of capacity, marriage, divorce and the fiduciary relations. Next follows the application of foreign laws to the transfers of property, real and personal, in the various forms in which these points present themselves. This is succeeded by an exposition of the law governing foreign contracts in respect to their validity, obligation, interpretation and discharge; of the law governing foreign torts and crimes; and of the law controlling the remedy.

The text used is that of the lecturer, Minor on Conflict of Laws.

Natural Law and Canon Law, Professor CONWAY.

The general principles of natural law and of canon law are fully treated in this course; the growth and development of the canon law, as contrasted with that of the common law of England, and the effect of the canon law upon the common law are also considered.

Medical Jurisprudence, Professor WOODWARD.

The lecturer in this course is himself a physician, whose work as Health Officer of the District of Columbia brings him in contact with the trial of cases in court; he also holds the degree of Bachelor of Laws, and Master of Laws from Georgetown Law School. In this course consideration is had of those principles with which the lawyer should be familiar in order to handle properly cases involving questions of medical science.

COURSE IN PATENT LAW.

Professor McGILL.

This course has been established for the benefit of those students who may desire to specialize in patent law practice; it is open to members of the Third Year Class and of the Postgraduate Class, to members of the Bar, and to graduates of approved law schools. The course consists in a systematic study of the principles of patent law, including a thorough training in Federal practice and procedure with reference to patent causes. Recitations are conducted by the lecturer from time to time; students are also required, as part of the course, to conduct patent causes, to prepare pleadings, and argue before the lecturer, who sits as a practice court of patent law for this purpose. Special attention is given to the subject of injunctions. The course extends throughout the entire year, and consists of two sessions each week. Inasmuch as the course gives the student a thorough training in practice, members of the Third Year Class who pursue it will not be required to take the regular practice court work required in the Third Year Class.

SPECIAL LECTURES.

A course of special lectures, to be delivered to the entire student body of the Law School, by men of national prominence in judicial and professional life is being planned. These lectures will be delivered in the large auditorium of the new Law School building.

EXAMINATIONS AND RATINGS.

Recitations are conducted upon each subject in the course, in conjunction with the lectures; in addition, each branch of the law treated is made the basis of a written examination at the conclusion of the lectures thereon. An average of at least seventy per cent on the written examinations, and on the recitations, independently, must be attained at the close of each school term, in order that the student may advance with his class. Students who fail to attain a grade of at least seventy per cent in the written examination on more than two subjects in any one school year, will not be permitted to advance with their class, but must repeat the courses. Students in the Senior Class who fail to obtain a rating of at least seventy per cent in the written examination on two subjects assigned for that class will not be given a re-examination, and will not be permitted to graduate with their class. The general average of a student for any one course is obtained by adding the rating attained in the recitations and the written examination on the course, and dividing the result by two. The general average on all courses, thus obtained, determines the class standing of the student. Re-examinations for students who fail in subjects during the year are held on the Monday following the opening of School in the Fall. Special re-examinations are given in the discretion of the Faculty. Candidates for a degree in the Third Year Class must have been in regular attendance for at least one year, and must pass a satisfactory examination upon the entire course of study for the Third Year Class.

Regular and punctual attendance of every student at all class exercises is required. The Faculty must be satisfied at all times of the serious purpose of every student, and if it be found that any student is not giving proper time and attention to his studies, his name will be promptly dropped from the rolls.

ADVANCED STANDING.

Candidates for advanced standing, that is, those desiring to complete the course in less time than the regular period of three school years, must, at the time admission is sought, submit certificates of previous study at an approved law school, or under the direction of a reputable practitioner. Such certificates must show that the candidate has either passed successfully the required examination upon or has acquired a thorough knowledge of the subjects in the course which have already been covered by the class he desires to enter, up to the time of his registration; otherwise, an examination upon these subjects will be required. An examination will always be required of candidates whose study has been pursued solely under the direction of a practitioner; in no case will a candidate for advanced standing, who has studied only under a practitioner, be admitted to a higher class than the Second Year Class.

PRIZES.

The following prizes are offered in the several classes in the Undergraduate Course:

First Year Class.

A prize of $50 to the member of the First Year Class maintaining the best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to John F. Martin, of Oklahoma, June 9, 1913); a prize of $25 to the member of the First Year Class maintaining the next best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to John D. Foley, of North Carolina, June 9, 1913).

Second Year Class.

A prize of $50 to the member of the Second Year Class maintaining the best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Frank J. Keelty, of Indiana, June 9, 1913); a prize of $25 to the member of the Second Year Class maintaining the next best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Frederick R. Gibbs, of Tennessee, June 9, 1913).

Andrew's American Law. "Callaghan & Company, Law Publishers, Chicago, Prize." Offered to the student of the Second Year Class who obtains the best general average for the year (awarded to Frank J. Keelty, of Indiana).

Third Year Class.

A prize of $75 to the member of the Third Year Class maintaining the best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Ben. A. Matthews, of Georgia, June 9, 1913); a prize of $40 to the member of the Third Year Class maintaining the next best average in recitations and examinations during the year (awarded to Lewis Burnam Bridges, of the District of Columbia, June 9, 1913).

PRIZES FOR ESSAYS.

Wherever possible, essays submitted for prizes should be typewritten. Unless otherwise specified, they must contain not less than 5,000 nor more than 10,000 words, a statement of the authorities consulted must be appended and an assumed name must be signed, the true name of the contestant being handed to the Secretary in a sealed envelope, at the time the essay is submitted. The subjects for prize essays will be announced on January 2, 1914, and essays must be handed in not later than May 1, 1914. The Faculty reserves the right not to award the prize should the essays submitted therefor not be considered as meeting the required standard; the prize will not be awarded unless more than one essay be submitted therefor. The winning prize essays each year are bound and placed in the Library.

A prize of $40 is offered to the author of the best essay, upon a legal subject to be assigned by the Faculty, among the members of the Third Year Class; (awarded to Milton A. Kaufman, of the District of Columbia, June 9, 1913).

A prize of $40 is offered to the author of the best essay, upon any legal subject, to be assigned by the Faculty, among the members of the Postgraduate Class (awarded to Paul B. Cromelin, of the District of Columbia, June 9, 1913).

Students of the Law School are also entitled to contest for prizes open, in general, to all students of the University.

A prize, donated by the T. and J. W. Johnson & Co., of Philadelphia, of a set of "Smith's Leading Cases," to the author of the best essay upon any legal subject, among the members of the Third and Fourth Year Classes (awarded to Horace H. Hagan, of Oklahoma, June 9, 1913).

A prize, donated by the American Law Book Company, of New York, consisting of the first thirteen volumes of the "Cyclopedia of Law and Procedure," to the member of the Postgraduate Class who shall write the best graduation thesis, on a legal subject, to be assigned by the Faculty (awarded to J. Ballard Moore, of Michigan, June 9, 1913).

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Realizing the benefit derived from public speaking and extemporaneous debate, the Faculty awards annually a series of prizes to be contested for by members of the debating societies of the school. There are four preliminary debates during each school year; the best debater in each of these contests is awarded a prize of $25. The four winning debaters chosen in this way participate in a final debate; the prize for the winner of this debate is $50. No student who has engaged in one preliminary debate will be eligible for another preliminary debate. The debating societies are under the general supervision of a member of the Academic Faculty and a member of the Law Faculty, for the purpose of assisting the students in deriving the utmost benefit from the exercises in public speaking.

The debating prizes for the school year 1912-1913 were won by John Connolly, Jr., '15, Iowa; Asa B. Mustain, '14, Arkansas; Alfred J. Bonomo, '14, Louisiana; Ashton H. Williams, Jr., '15, South Carolina.

FEES AN EXPENSES.

The tuition in the Undergraduate course is $100 for the Academic Year. With regard to tuition, the Academic Year is divided into two terms, beginning, respectively, on the first day of October and February; one-half of the tuition for the year is due and payable on each of these days. For the accommodation of students, the Secretary is authorized to receive monthly instalments of tuition, but these must be strictly in advance.

The tuition in the Postgraduate course is $100 for the Academic Year, payable semi-annually, or in monthly instalments in advance, as in the case of the tuition in the Undergraduate course.

The tuition for the Patent Law course alone is $40; there is no extra charge for this course in the case of members of the Third Year and Postgraduate Classes.

The tuition for Special Students is $50 a year, payable semi-annually, or in monthly instalments, as in the Undergraduate and Postgraduate courses.

The fee for attendance upon the lectures in any one course in the Postgraduate School is $30.

A registration fee of $2 is charged each student in the Law School upon enrollment. The fund thus created is set aside for the expenses of the Law Library of the School, and is administered for that purpose as a trust fund on behalf of the students.

The graduation fee, which includes all expenses incident to graduation, is $10.

No deduction can be made for absence from lectures or recitations. Upon enrollment, the payment of the registration fee and tuition for at least one month in advance will be required.

There are no dormitories connected with the Law School. The cost of board and lodging varies ordinarily from $25 to $40 per month, according to the location and appointments selected. The cost of text-books for each school year is about $30.

LAW LIBRARY.

A well selected Law Library, comprising the latest editions of standard text-books, particularly those in use in the School, reports of the Federal courts, and the leading State reports, together with the Reporter System, has been established for the accommodation of students, and is in charge of a competent librarian, with several assistants. In the library will also be found the latest editions of the leading law periodicals and reviews. The library is open on the regular school days from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M. The fund created by payment of the registration fees is set apart for investment in the library.

SUPPLEMENTARY COURSES.

Arrangements are being made so that courses in History, English and American, Economics, Oratory, English Rhetoric and Composition, English Literature, and Logic, may be pursued at the Academic Department of Georgetown University, by students desiring such instruction as preliminary to graduation in law.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS.

There are a number of flourishing student organizations in the School, formed for the purpose of promoting the study of law among their members and of acquiring experience in debate. The membership of the Junior Debating Society is made up from the First and Second Year Classes, and that of the Senior Debating Society from the Senior and Postgraduate Classes. Weekly debates are held by each society, and there are also frequent intersociety debates for prizes offered by the Faculty. The Morris Law Club (Senior and Junior Branches), the Carroll Law Club, the Edward D. White Law Club and the Forum are made up of students from the undergraduate classes; members of the Faculty and other prominent members of the Bar deliver talks before these clubs.

The Delta Chi, the Phi Alpha Delta, the Sigma Nu Phi, and the Theta Lamda Phi Fraternities have chapters at the School.

The Permanent Secretary of the Class of 1912 is John R. Dillon, address No. 8 I Street N. E., Washington, D. C.

The Permanent Secretary of the Class of 1913 is Bolitha J. Laws, address No. 54 U Street N. W., Washington, D. C.

THE GEORGETOWN LAW JOURNAL

THE GEORGETOWN LAW JOURNAL is a law review, published and edited by the students of the School of Law, with the assistance of a Faculty Committee. It is issued quarterly and consists of leading articles on legal topics, editorials, book reviews and comment on current decisions.
